Women Point Out Man as Sex Fiend In Street; Link to Strieff Slaying Seen

'Enough Evidence'

Identified by two women victims as they cruised about town seeking him, a 21-year-old Negro was under arrest last night in a climactic finale of one of Washington's most intensive manhunts.

Capt. Ira Keck, acting chief of detectives, declared last night that chemical tests have revealed enough evidence to warrant holding the man.

Following his arrest yesterday, the suspect was taken to the office of Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg, deputy coroner, 1332 I Street Northwest, for chemical study. Police are positive he is the same bandit who raped one woman in an uptown cleaning establishment last Tuesday and was thwarted in another attempt upon a woman the following day.

Capt. John Fowler, chief of the department's special squad, said he also will be questioned in connection with the strangulation and rape of Miss Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 28-year-old War Department clerk, last June 15.

The arrest of the thug came in spectacular fashion. Detective Sergts. Elmer Lewis and Dan Jones, of the robbery squad, were cruising in an automobile with Mrs. Vada Abarca, 28, Takoma Park, Md., who was robbed and raped by a colored man, and Miss Katherine Harper, 30, 1035 Quebec Place Northwest, who escaped a possible similar fate last Wednesday.

When the car reached the intersection of Georgia Avenue and Hobart Place Northwest at about 3:15 p. m., Mrs. Abarca suddenly screamed and shouted:

"Oh, my God! That's him!" She was on the verge of collapse.

Miss Harper also gasped an exclamation and pointed toward the man standing about 20 feet east of Georgia Avenue, facing toward an Aristo cleaning establishment about 150 feet away. The man wore a cocoanut straw hat, mixed gray trousers, blue-striped shirt, brown shoes and dark sun glasses.

Lewis told Jones, the driver, not to stop but to make a U-turn so as not to arouse suspicion. After making the turn Lewis jumped from the car, gun in hand, and grabbed the suspect. The man said, gruffly:

"What is this, anyway? What is this?"

Forced to Disperse Crowd

Lewis then took the man to a nearby gas station and called police headquarters. A crowd of about 100 persons, mostly colored, had gathered at the scene, and Lewis was forced to disperse them when a colored man threatened trouble.

Meantime, a scout car from Tenth Precinct, drove up and the suspect was placed inside and removed to police headquarters. Jones took the two women to a nearby drug store where a sedative was given them. Both were in a highly nervous state. Then Jones drove them to their homes.

At headquarters, the suspect was

Sen. Houston Dies at 87; Two Days Before Texas Election

United States Senator Andrew Jackson Houston, of Texas, 87-year-old son of Gen. Sam Houston, hero of San Jacinto, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore last night.

He had not been well since his surprise appointment to the Senate on April 21, anniversary of the Battle of San Jacinto, in which his famous soldier-father routed a larger Mexican army to win independence for Texas.

A. J. HOUSTON

He had been in retirement for 24 years when Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel appointed him to take over the unexpired term of the late Senator Morris Sheppard. Physicians said at the time that the excitement was too much for him.

The octogenarian, oldest man ever named to the Senate, died at 8 p. m. following an operation for a stomach ailment.

His passing was a reminder of the comparative youthfulness of the United States. His famous father, who also served in the Senate, was 6 years old when George Washington died. The elder Houston was 61 when the boy he named after Andrew Jackson was born.

Forced Into Fight After Traffic Arrest, Marylander Charges

A 24-year-old Chevy Chase man, who will be married tomorrow, filed charges in Police Headquarters yesterday that he had been beaten up by eight policemen at the Tenth Precinct Station, following a bachelor testimonial party.

The bridegroom-to-be, Lisle Lipscomb, a salesman, of 6309 Florida Street, his eye blacked and face cut, asserted the assault took place after he was booked at 2:30 a. m. yesterday in the station house on Park Road Northwest for four traffic violations.

He particularly accused three policemen, testifying that one of them engaged him in a backroom fist fight with the encouragement of the others.

Investigation Promised

Inspector Edward J. Kelly, who received the complaint, announced that an immediate investigation would be made, and proper action taken. The policemen would not discuss the accusations, but said they would relate their story when Lipscomb appears in Police Court this morning on the four charges. Lipscomb posted $33 for appearance in court.

The young man's brother, Andrew, an attorney who has recently successfully handled two cases in which defendants accused the police of mistreatment, commented:

"I wouldn't put it past those policemen who beat up my brother to have done it out of revenge for my exposing the action of their fellow policemen in those two cases."

In a formal complaint, Lipscomb described events as follows:

With two companions, George Elam, of 5406 Thirteenth Street Northwest, and Graham Weigle, of Kensington, Md., he was driving home from a bachelor's dinner at a Virginia night club.

He turned into a one-way street—Hobart Street Northwest—but realized his mistake and backed out.

After driving several blocks, he said, he was stopped by a police scout car and was told to drive to the Tenth Precinct. When he arrived a charge of driving the wrong way on a one-way street was lodged against him.

"I told the officer—Private Parke H. Sams—that I did not think the

OPM Blamed In Shortage Of Aluminum

Put Too Much Faith In Alcoa Figures, Senate Report Says; Deficit to Be Huge

By James B. Reston
Copyright by New York Times

The special Senate committee investigating the defense program reported yesterday that an aluminum shortage of at least 300,000,000 pounds per year threatens to curtail aircraft production by 25 per cent in 1942.

Inaccurate estimates of aluminum requirements for the 33,000 Army and Navy planes now being built or planned were responsible for this situation, Senator James Mead (Democrat), of New York, told the Senate in reading the report of the Truman committee.

By the OPM's own admission, he said, the United States will need 100,000,000 pounds of aluminum per month starting next March for the defense program alone; the absolute maximum that can be produced by that time under present plans is 75,000,000 pounds a month, or 25 per cent below requirements.

Furthermore, the Truman report added, the OPM now admitted that 600,000,000 pounds a year would be necessary to meet civilian requirements in addition to the 1,200,000,000 pounds needed for defense. This, the report asserted, was well above the capacity production of all plants operating, being built or in the blueprint stage at the present time.

Other Sources Inadequate

Even if the Administration did succeed in doubling its present aluminum imports from Canada to 200,000,000 pounds annually and got 300,000,000 pounds out of pots and pans, the report said, it would still fall short of projected requirements.

Responsibility for the difficulty was placed by the committee on officials of the OPM and the Aluminum Co. of America. For months, the defense advisory committee and the OPM had said that talk of an aluminum shortage was misleading and unpatriotic and had ignored the warnings of the Reynolds Metals Co. which, the report asserted, "proceeded, without encouragement from the OPM, with the construction of facilities for the production of 120,000,000 pounds of aluminum annually."

During this time, the Truman committee charged, "the OPM had apparently completely relied on the Aluminum Co. of America as a

Penksa Convicted In Second Degree Murder Verdict

After 7½ hours deliberation, a District Court jury at 10:20 last night returned a verdict of second-degree murder against Gazie A. Penksa, 32, in the shotgun slaying of Joseph L. Caliguiro, 21, at Eighth and F Streets Northeast, last March 15.

The sentence carries a minimum penalty of 7 to 21 years imprisonment and maximum punishment of life imprisonment. Justice Jesse C. Adkins indicated he would impose sentence today.

Assistant United States Attorney Allen J. Krause had demanded the first degree penalty, after a long list of Government witnesses had described the shooting.

Defense Attorney Charles Ford pleaded for a verdict of either second degree murder or manslaughter on the ground Caliguiro was walking menacingly toward Penksa when the fatal shot was fired.

The Government claims Penksa went out in search of Caliguiro, who was the friend of Ann Carlo, Penksa's sister-in-law. In his own defense Penksa told the jury, "I took the gun for protection."

Nats Give Ladies Money's Worth

There was many a late dinner in Washington last night as 7,500 ladies' day fans sat through a 16-inning thriller at Griffith Stadium in which the Washington Senators defeated the Chicago White Sox, 3 to 2, after having been beaten by the White Sox the day before, 2 to 0, in 13 innings.

Jimmy Bloodworth, the Nats' second baseman, drove Buddy Lewis home from second base with a single for the winning run. Bloodworth previously had gone to bat seven times in the game without a hit. Edgar Smith went the route for Chicago; Ken Chase pitched 12 innings for Washington, and Alex Carrasquel held Chicago the rest of the way.

Russian, Nazi Tanks Locked In Titanic Battle, Soviets Say; Reds Raid Rumanian Oil Field

Armored Forces Beating Panzers, Moscow Claims; Admits Enemy Has Penetrated to Minsk Area; Bucharest and Helsinki Bombed

(Other News of the War on Pages 2 and 3.)

By the Associated Press

Great forces of Russian tanks are waging a violent and winning battle against German tanks in Poland and every Axis attempt to drive into the Ukraine from Rumania by parachute and by massed infantry has been beaten down, the Soviet military report declared early today.

The German high command in its communique subordinated Russia to the struggle at sea with the British, and diplomatic Germany openly summoned all its resources in power politics to gather more support for its campaign against the Soviet.

The Russian communique was a tale of success from the Polish front to the Black Sea; of parachute troops killed as they landed by charging cavalry, of successful raids into German and Rumanian lines, and of fierce bombing attacks on Bucharest, the port of Constanta and the rich Ploesti oil fields of Germany's Rumanian ally.

The Red army skipped over the action along the northern front except to say that Soviet soldiers were in action against "infiltrating enemy tank units" in the Minsk area of western Russia.

Russians Shower Bombs on Helsinki's Environs

Despite Finland's formal arrayal beside Germany against Russia, the Russian army said there was no land action yesterday along the Russian-Finnish frontier.

The wail of air raid alarms sounded repeatedly over Helsinki, Finland's oft-bombed capital, and new showers of Russian bombs fell on that city's environs soon after President Risto Ryti told the Finns they were at war again against Russia. But this time, he said, it was a defensive war and they were not alone as they were in the winter of 1939-40.

The huge tank engagement was being fought in the Luck sector of southeast-central Poland and, said Moscow, was going "with a manifest advantage for our troops."

[The New York Times reported from Bern, Switzerland, that the Germans have been smashing through the Russian defenses on the Niemen River above its junction with the Wilja River, during the last two days and have succeeded in driving a wide salient in Russian-held Poland to within 30 miles of Minsk.

[The drive appears to have been based on Insterburg as the northern and Brest-Litovsk as the southern pivot.]

Red Cavalry "Exterminates" Parachute Force

German tactics now familiar to the world—to attempt to gain a foothold behind enemy lines by parachute troops—evoked an energetic and prompt Red army answer, the war report indicated.

"The strongest resistance" is meeting every German attempt to land parachute troops, the communique declared. Local residents are helping round them up and in one instance in the Ukraine—fertile wheat country which Adolf Hitler evidently wants—a Red army cavalry force "immediately attacked and exterminated all the parachutists at the moment of landing."

The Russians indicated they were holding their own on the Bucovina and Bessarabian fronts, hurling back German and Rumanian attempts to cross the Prut River and meting out punishment of their own.

A scouting force crossed the Prut, took ten prisoners, captured materiel and returned safely.

The Red air fleet raids on Rumania left oil refineries in the Ploesti area ablaze, the communique said. It gave no details of the raids on Bucharest and Constanta.

Two Nazi Submarines Reported Destroyed

At sea, the Russians reported the destruction of two German submarines by Russian air and naval action.

These, which were among the broadest claims to success yet made by Moscow, came at the end of a day during which it already had become obvious that the Germans had run up against serious trouble in their invasion.

This unexpected setback was suggested by Berlin itself in its failure to come through during the day with detailed news of those victories "baffling the imagination" which had been promised in advance.

Whether the apparently general success of the Soviet defense was anything more than temporary was of course wholly uncertain. But it seemed clear that the Red troops had survived without catastrophe the shock of five days of a mighty Nazi assault.

Reds Count on Distance as Ally

Officially, nothing whatever was said in Berlin about the eastern land and air front except for a restrained paragraph reporting that "after decisions fell in our favor in numerous border battles, successes in operations of great dimensions are beginning to show themselves."

Military spokesmen spoke privately of deep advances by Nazi arms, but didn't say where they occurred.

From Moscow it was reported that the master plan of the Red army was to attempt to absorb the Nazi advance forces in the vast distances of the Soviet Union and there to destroy them. This historic maneuver would be similar to what the French tried against the Nazis last spring, with the vastly important difference, however, of the extent of the terrain involved.

Among the day's aerial actions, as unofficially reported in Berlin, was a heavy joint German-Rumanian bombing attack on Russian naval bases, munitions depots, railways, roads and marching columns of men on and near the northern coast of the Black Sea. The Germans claimed that in this area Soviet military traffic had been substantially halted.

Russian Reports Discounted

Only 'Act of God' Can Avert Soviet Defeat, U. S. Experts Say

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Only an "act of God" can save Russia from defeat by Nazi Germany's veteran war machine, authoritative sources here declared last night.

Qualified war observers said that despite the fact that the opposing forces on the Eastern Front are about equal in numbers, Germany's superiority in war training, leadership and aerial equipment should enable the Nazis to whip the Red Army this summer.

Discouting the reports of Soviet successes to date, these informed sources declared they were local in character and in strategically unimportant areas. The Russian army, it was said, apparently is passing up its main chance of stalemating the war by withdrawing and instead is attacking the weak Rumanian army in the south.

Russia is said by these authoritative quarters to have 165 divisions of 15,000 men each on the Eastern Front, as compared with 137 German, 20 Rumanian and 10 Finnish divisions of like size in the area. The Nazis are said to be using 12 mechanized divisions, compared with some 24 Soviet tank divisions.

German superiority in the air, however, is marked, the Nazis having had 6,000 planes in the East at the start compared with 4,000 Red aircraft, according to these sources. Moreover, if the Berlin claim of having destroyed most of the Soviet air force is true, the experts see little chance of a later strategic Russian retreat.

Officials, here, meanwhile, expressed some concern over the implications of a German conquest of Russia in its relation to the United States. Should the Red army be crushed, the Nazis should have no difficulty in taking over the vast Soviet area, including that on the Bering Sea lying within 30 miles of American soil.

The United States Pacific Fleet, it was said, could not operate in Bering Strait against German planes

OPA to Freeze Tire Prices At June Level

Price-Fixing Bill Hinted as Chrysler, Others Offer Rebuff

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Confident that its authority will be reinforced within a matter of weeks by drastic price-fixing legislation, the Office of Price Administration yesterday answered rebuffs from two major industrial groups which this week declined to heed its price-setting "requests" by announcing that ceiling prices on tires and tubes would be frozen at mid-June levels.

Price Administrator Henderson declared that limits would be set early next week on both wholesale and retail prices of new and newly retreaded tires and new tubes at the levels charged prior to June 17. Conferences with industry representatives will be held in the next few days, he added, for the purpose of "smoothing out" details.

Neither Henderson nor other OPA executives would make further official comment on the disclosures Wednesday that the Chrysler Corporation and several New York furniture manufacturers declined to rescind recent price advances despite the OPA's request for such action. OPA officials indicated privately, however, that the refusals and impending reports to Congress concerning the , now being prepared,

C.I.O. Expected To End Strike At Shipyards

Union Orders Vote; A. F. L. Machinists Agree to Return

C. I. O. machinists, scheduled to vote last night on ending their strike in 11 San Francisco shipyards, were expected by informed quarters here to join in the decision adopted late Wednesday by fellow strikers in an A. F. of L. local to go back to work Monday.

The meeting of the 600 C. I. O. machinists was called yesterday after the 1,200 A. F. of L. workers had voted 5 to 1 to end a strike that has hampered $500,000,000 of defense ship construction for more than seven weeks.

Principal issue in the dispute was a demand for wages higher than that provided in a "master contract" negotiated under Government supervision and accepted by other metal trades and shipbuilding workers, and, initially, by 38 out of the 39 shipbuilding concerns on the Pacific coast.

The recent agreement of the holdout company—Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation—to accept the master contract, paved the way for the A. F. of L. settlement. The unionists were assured of coverage by the master contract before deciding to end the strike.

If the C.I.O. union, which operates in the Oakland area, agrees to end

Calls for Self-Sacrifice

By the Associated Press

Vatican City, June 26.—"Self-sacrifice" was urged by Pope Pius XII in a radio broadcast to the United States today to combat a "current of paganism" and "the natural enemy within" which he said were "breaking down the self-respect and decency" of the peoples.

The pontiff is to deliver a radio speech to the world Sunday in which, usually reliable sources said, he will define the Catholic Church's position toward Soviet Russia "as a foe of religion and a factor in the war."

The pontiff deems the war situation now that it has extended to the seat of "atheistic" communism so important, unofficial informants declared, that it requires a special message.

He spoke for 15 minutes in English today from his private library, addressing the closing session of the National Eucharistic Congress at St. Paul, Minn.

Paganism, he said, is "sweeping over the peoples." The church has been "persecuted in some of its members," he added, and Christian culture is being "undermined."

Issuing his call for self-sacrifice, he declared it was "hard to say how far-reaching the suffering will be."

He said a "current of black paganism" was "carrying along in its onward rush newspapers and motion pictures" and that "only young men and women of self-sacrifice will escape the flood."

"You live in a country where the tradition of human freedom allows you to practice your faith without let or hindrance," he said. "Your natural enemy is within you—that natural drag of our fallen humanity to self-seeking and sin. Self-sacrifice must combat him."

Pending the Pope's pronouncement on the new war situation, Vatican circles maintained their customary silence. Even the church newspaper, Osservatore Romano, has refrained from commenting on the situation in which Germany and Italy are at war against Russia while Britain and the United States have promised the Soviet Union their aid.

The Pope's attitude was one of strict neutrality between the warring powers before Russia became involved and observers doubted that he would now champion either the totalitarian Axis or the Anglo-Saxon democracies.

He was expected, however, to express once again the church's antagonism toward communism, as his predecessor, Pius XI, did on various occasions.

Family of Five Finds It Impossible to Buy Fluid on $25 Salary

The family of even modest affluence ought to pay a visit to the Thurstons. They are no kin to the late Howard Thurston, magician, which makes no difference anyway, since the household's wife and mother still would be unable to turn faucet water into fresh cow's milk, much as she'd like to.

There are three children in the house, an unpretentious but tidy frame dwelling at 613 Third Street Northwest. Margaret, 3, is the eldest. Then come Neal, jr., 2, and Grace Ann, 7 months.

None of these children has ever tasted fresh cow's milk.

"Oh, wait," Mrs. Flossie Thurston said yesterday, correcting herself. "Margaret and Neal drank it last summer, when we stayed at my sister's on her farm in Western Maryland. We came back home the first of September. Since then there's been no milk in the house."

And why is that? Simply because Mrs. Thurston cannot afford to pay 13 cents a quart for milk. And the rules forbid her buying the nickel quarts which are available to needy families—some of them, not all.

Winning Great Tank Battle in Poland, Reds Claim

Nazis Hurled Back 'With Heavy Losses' At Prut River; Oil Fields Bombed

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Friday), June 27.—Red army troops fighting on the plains of old Poland were reported successfully battling a great German tank thrust aimed today at Minsk, White Russian capital 160 miles inside Soviet territory.

An undisclosed number of German tanks yesterday broke through advance Soviet lines in the north and a war bulletin issued here said fighting there still was in progress.

In central Poland "violent large-scale engagements of tank troops" also occurred in the direction of Luck. This German thrust apparently was aimed at the Ukraine, and the communique said "fighting continued throughout the day with a manifest advantage for our troops."

The Russians were said to have thrown thousands of men and tanks against reputedly the most powerful army in the world with the aim of cutting off and ripping apart the main German thrusts at White Russia.

Far to the south along the Prut River boundary between Rumania and Russia the Red army also was declared to have stemmed repeated avalanches of attacking Germns and Rumanians, inflicting "heavy losses" and even counter-attacking across the river to capture men and guns.

Oil Fields Bombed

Soviet bombers heavily attacked the oil fields where Adolf Hitler draws much of his strength for a continuing war in the east, it was said.

Fires were left raging in the Ploesti region north of Bucharest, the communique said. Iasi, just across the Prut River, Bucharest, the capital, and Constanta, Black Sea port manned by Germans, also were attacked.

Another fierce land action was being fought by the Germans in central Poland toward Luck, about 50 miles east of the Bug River boundary.

Groups of Nazi parachutists were reported wiped out or captured when they landed in White Russia and in the Ukraines, the vast wheat region Hitler prizes.

German efforts to span the Prut River were especially furious near Cernauti, capital of former Bucovina, the Russians said.

Batteries Silenced

German-Rumanian batteries on the western side of the Prut River were silenced by Soviet artillery, and three pontoon bridges thrown across the river were wrecked, the communique said.

The Russians reported Rumanian prisoners said that in each of their regiments 40 German soldiers and officers were mingled "because the German command does not trust the Rumanian soldiers," and that German artillery units were planted behind the Rumanian troops as an extra precaution.

The German and Rumanian troops were said to have suffered "heavy losses" also near Skuleni on the Prut River.

Soviet planes caused "extensive destruction" in bombing the Rumanian oil fields at Ploesti north of the capital of Bucharest, and also raided Bucharest and Constanta, Black Sea port which has been attacked repeatedly.

"Oil refineries in the area of Ploesti are burning.

"Enemy fighters offered weak resistance to our bombers. The number of destroyed enemy aircraft and our losses are being established."

"In the Baltic Sea our air force and light naval forces sank two enemy submarines."

'Chutists Rounded Up

The Soviets emphasized the strong resistance German parachutists were meeting from soldiers and peasantry in the Ukraine.

"For instance, when the enemy was effecting a parachute landing in a small Ukranian town, a Red army cavalry unit stationed nearby immediately attacked and exterminated all the parachutists at the moment of landing."

This latest Soviet announcement, like that of last night, continued to cite individual cases of Soviet heroism. For instance, how one regimental commander broke through a German encirclement and continued to resist all German attempts to advance.

No land encounters occurred on the Soviet-Finnish frontier yesterday, it said.

Like French Tactics

Violent engagements were reported over the entire line, from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

The press published a description of one action at an unidentified river in the Ukraine in which a German attempt to force a crossing was repulsed with the aid of peasants. (If not a border river, the account amounts to admission of German penetration in the grain-rich Ukraine.)

People Urged to Fight

Disclosure of the civilian participation in the fighting came as the government press and radio exhorted the population to defend the fatherland and reminded it that hard times lie ahead.

"We know and will not forget for a single moment that the enemy is strong and that he has marshalled all his forces for the blow and has mobilized all his resources," said an editorial in the official party newspaper, Pravda, which was transmitted also by Tass.

"Fighting will be difficult," Pravda continued. "Many trials, many privations, many sacrifices are in store . . .

"We possess armed forces which are not only not inferior to the armed forces of German fascism, but are superior."

A trial air-raid alarm was reported held in Leningrad similar to the one held in Moscow Monday.

In the capital, sale of vodka, wine and other alcoholic drinks was prohibited in one of a series of new severe wartime rulings. Civilians were ordered off the street between midnight and 4 a. m., and a 10:45 curfew was imposed on theaters, restaurants and other public places.

British Seek Soviet Pledge To Bar Peace

By the Associated Press

London, June 26.—Britain was reported tonight to have sent a military mission speeding to Moscow via the middle East and at the same time was said to be planning to ask the Soviet Union to pledge itself not to conclude a separate peace with Germany before the end of the war as Russia did once before—in the spring of 1918.

The military mission, understood to represent the army, navy and air force, was reported en route to sit in with the Soviet high command to discuss details of British help in beating Germany.

U. S. Ambassador John G. Winant has been conferring here with both British and Russian officials, presumably on the question of American aid for the Soviet Union.

Russia was known to want, for one thing, an even harder bombing of the German western front by British planes, an undertaking involving American aid indirectly since the flow of American planes here permits the British to take greater risk in their new mass attacks.

British planes have made winter attacks on long flights to German-occupied Poland, but such flights to the new eastern front in the short nights of the summer are considered not feasible.

In connection with the reports that Russia would be asked to sign an agreement against concluding a separate peace, informed quarters suggested a formal British-Soviet alliance probably would be a necessary first step, and they said there was no indication that such an alliance was being considered immediately.

They added, however, that "no one knows whether there eventually will be one," and they conceded that both Britain and the United States probably would welcome Russian assurance against a separate peace as a condition for the sending of material aid which would fall into German hands in the event of a Russian capitulation.

Numerous unsettled questions between the two countries have been pushed into the background, probably for the duration of the war, hence there is a general disposition to consider any possible Anglo-Russian understanding as a purely fighting arrangement.

Russia's Great War Machine Starts Rolling Without a Hitch

(Editor's Note: Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press chief of bureau, in Moscow, gives the following first hand report on Russian civilians under blitzkrieg on the basis of unusual experience as a war reporter. Cassidy, a native Bostonian, was a member of the Paris staff when Germany invaded France and saw the masses of civilians who clogged French roads in flight. The contrast he presents in the following dispatch is the first eye-witness account of wartime Russia outside Moscow by an American newspaperman.)

By Henry C. Cassidy

Moscow, June 26.—From the Black Sea to Moscow, through regions rarely seen by foreigners recently, even in peacetime, I have watched from behind the Russian lines as the Soviet provinces went to war with Germany.

The general impression was that the Soviet forces got off to a smooth start.

Mobilization was carried out without any apparent hitch. The blackout was installed effectively. Trains were running promptly. Agriculture and industry appeared to be working at top pitch.

The Soviet countryside showed two striking contrasts to France of a year ago.

First, there was no panicky rush of refugees to tangle transport. In fact, I found it difficult for a civilian to move at all unless he had a real reason.

Second, the people maintained complete Slavic calmness and confidence.

War nerves never reached these remote districts.

The skies over central European Russia appeared to be under absolute Soviet control.

Through the Ukraine I saw no German planes, not even the scouting craft such as penetrated deep into France in the early days of the war there.

The population stiffened suddenly and listened open-mouthed to a broadcast of Foreign Commissar Molotov's speech announcing the German attack.

The outbreak of fighting brought a surge of patriotic emotion. Broadcasts of marching songs echoed through the mountain valleys of the Caucasus after Molotov's speech. Successive news broadcasts brought bursts of cheering and hand-clapping from steadily growing crowds.

Uniformed troops on leave lined up at railway stations to rejoin their regiments. Newly mobilized men marched in shirt-sleeves through the streets. Army cars and trucks raced by. Houses were transformed into barracks.

Blue light bulbs (for black-out illumination) were produced for public buildings, candles were distributed in hotel rooms and the Russian Riviera plunged that night into obscurity.

Ambassador Lawrence A. Steinhardt wired Erskine Caldwell, American writer, at Sochi informing him that the ambassador was advising all Americans to leave the country unless they had compelling reasons to stay. The author of "Tobacco Road" and his wife, Margaret Bourke White, had been touring Russia but had not yet arrived at Sochi. Later it was learned the Caldwells were due to arrive in Moscow tonight.

Welsh Union Head May Get Embassy Post

London, June 26.—It is understood in London that James Griffiths Labor member of Parliament for Llanelly in Carmarthon, Wales, is likely to be invited to go to Washington as labor attache to the British Embassy. It is a new job in the British diplomatic service.

Griffiths, who is 51, was president of the South Wales Miners Federation from 1934 to 1936, the year in which he entered Parliament for Llanelly. He is well liked and has won the general respect of the House of Commons, where he is highly regarded as the representative of Welsh miners.

Communists In Britain Now Support Churchill

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, June 26.—Willie Gallacher, Britain's only Communist M. P., today said that because the "situation had now changed" the Communist Party in Great Britain offered now to support the Churchill government in any step it took in the war toward cooperation with Russia.

Furthermore, Gallacher said, the party would put its campaign for a people's peace in the background and demand a much greater production drive in Britain's armament factories and open discussions with the Labor Party. The Scottish M. P. admitted that Prime Minister Winston Churchill's speech on Sunday proffering all aid to Russia in aid against "the common enemy" Nazism, had "agreeably surprised him."

Finn President Calls on Nation To Fight Soviet

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, June 26.—New showers of Soviet bombs thundered down in the environs of this capital tonight soon after the Finns were told by their president that they were at war again with Russia, but defensively, and this time not alone as they were in their 1939-40 defeat.

The new attacks by the Red air force were reported in an official announcement which said that 13 raids were made by a hundred planes on Turku (Abo), oft-bombed port city on the southwest Finnish coast.

Even as the Finns were called to arms again, as on that fateful November 30, 1939, Russian planes were pounding Finnish cities, concentrating on Turku, the particularly hard-hit city of the last war's bombings.

The bombing around the capital itself reached its peak after 8 o'clock tonight when "many planes," the official announcement said, raced across the Helsinki area dropping explosives.

The official tally showed how the raids accelerated in waves through the afternoon and evening: 3 p. m., one plane; 3, six planes; 7:10, nine planes; 7:40, 11 planes; 8:40, "many planes;" 9:10, "many planes."

One bomber was reported downed. Damage was officially declared insignificant in this vicinity.

However, in the three-hour morning riding on Turku damage was acknowledged as extensive.

Many were wounded and some were killed.

Russian artillery based at Hango kept up a continuous bombardment of Finnish territory but no objectives of importance were reported hit, although forests were set afire.

Sture was subjected to incendiary raids and Finland's most important port, Kotka, was reported bombed again.

"We shall fight for the freedom of our country and for the creed of our fathers," declared President Risto Ryti.

The Kremlin, he told his radio audience, "has decided on even more brutal measures against Finland than before."

But, he added, "now we are not alone! Great Germany, under the leadership of Chancellor Hitler, has decided to wage war against the Soviets and other nations have joined Germany.

"Russia in this task is facing a united front stretching from the White Sea to the Black Sea."

Sadly the President alluded to the many conflicts in which Finns have fought.

"Citizens," he said, "centuries have shown that on the site on which fate has placed this nation, permanent peace cannot be achieved.

"The pressure of the east is always upon us. To reduce this pressure, destroy the eternal menace, and secure a happy and peaceful life for coming generations, we now embark upon our defensive battle. Our confidence in our army and its field marshal, Baron Mannerheim, is absolute."

French in Syria May Flee Through Turkey

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, Turkey, June 26.—The evacuation of 20,000 French troops now fighting in Syria across this country and eventually back to France is on the point of being arranged, according to reliable information here.

It is understood the matter was discussed today when the Turkish foreign minister, Shuru Saracoglu, received Jacques Benoist-Mechin, an undersecretary of the Vichy cabinet, who arrived here yesterday with a special French mission.

It is reported in well informed quarters that under the proposed arrangement no Arab or Armenian troops will be permitted to enter this country.

Report Nazi Setbacks

Istanbul, Turkey, June 26.—It is reported here that the Rumanian government has transferred its seat from Bucharest, following a series of air raid alarms in that capital. At the same time there are many indications here that the Axis drive against Russia is not going any too well on the southern front, despite Rumanian contentions to the contrary, which claim an entire Soviet division has been scattered.

Moscow radio asserts that enemy contingents trying to cross the Pruth River were thrown back and that Cernauti is in Soviet hands. It appears that Red army counter-attacks have pushed the Rumanians and Germans back after their initial thrust.

The Red air force is battering Rumanian cities and not only was Bucharest bombed at 7 o'clock this morning but Constanta, Sulina, Galati, Jassy, Barila and Tulcea have all been severely bombed, according to reports here.

Rumanian official sources claim that 400 Russian planes have been destroyed on the Rumanian front, 70 by the Rumanians and the rest by the Germans. They predict that by tomorrow night the Germans will have established complete air supremacy and then great land operations will commence.

Germans Fail To Tell Details Of 'Successes'

By C. Brooks Peters.
Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, June 26.—Although correspondents had been given to understand the German high command would today become more informative and give some intimation of advances the German armed forces had made since Sunday against Soviet Russia, no such information has yet been revealed here. Today's communique declares merely:

"The operations on land and in the air in the east are being continued according to plan. In that the decisions in numerous battles on the border have been won, successes in the operation in our favor on a large-scale are indicated."

[German bombers have been raining explosives for two days on the Russian industrial city of Leningrad, the official news agency D. N. B. disclosed early today.]

[Military leaders claimed ground operations were proceeding satisfactorily, the Associated Press reported, but no cities were mentioned, and German diplomacy sought to rally other peoples to support this new war.]

Beyond that, except for front-line soldier correspondent reports which give no geographical names and are mostly expressed in military generalities, the Germans revealed nothing today which is new regarding the progress of their advance in the new eastern theater.

Curious About Stalin

German quarters expressed curiosity, however, as to the present whereabouts and activities of the Russian premier, Joseph Stalin. He did not, they say, deliver a proclamation either to the Russian people or the Soviet forces upon the outbreak of hostilities, nor has any mention been made of him in the press or on the Russian radio since the war began.

The German high command emphasized, meanwhile, that the battle against Britain "successfully" continues. Eight enemy merchantmen, totaling 48,800 tons, are reported to have been sunk by U-boats of the Reich navy.

The heavy cruiser Admiral Scheer, under Capt. Krancke, is said to have returned to a German port after a lengthy voyage in the South and North Atlantic, preying on enemy commerce. The Admiral Scheer is said to have sunk, as previously reported, a total of 152,000 tons on this voyage, including one entire convoy, totaling 85,000 tons.

Admit Cruiser Sinking

The high command admits today that the auxiliary cruiser Pingui was sunk in a duel with the heavy British cruiser Cornwall in the Indian Ocean. The commander, Capt. Krueder, and most of the crew are reported to have been lost. In the Atlantic and in the Indian Ocean the German raider is credited with having sunk more than 140,000 tons of enemy merchant tonnage and to have taken as prizes another 60,000 tons, which have already arrived safely in German harbors under prize crews.

The heavier raids of the British air force on German-controlled territory continue. Yesterday, the Germans say, they shot down 21 enemy planes in dog fights, and another five with antiaircraft batteries in the sector around Calais.

Vichy Forces' Resistance In Syria Slackening

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press War Correspondent

With the Allied Forces in Syria, June 26.—Resistance of the Vichy French grew feebler today as the British and Free French forces followed up their occupaton of Damascus with steadily increasing pressure on other points in this French mandate.

In the air, planes with French insignia but which appeared to be German models and were believed piloted by Germans, renewed their blows against the Allies, however.

The British said these attacks were hardly felt by them but caused casualties and damage in Damascus, Mardjayoun and other towns.

Mardjayoun, a town of 10,000 population, has changed hands three times since the British-Free French campaign here started less than three weeks ago. It was badly damaged today by six French-marked bombers escorted by fighters.

Main Street Wrecked

Entering the town shortly after the raid, I found that almost every house along the main street was a wreck. Three civilians lay dead in the middle of the square in which a fountain still tinkled incongruously.

Only a few Arabs slunk along the streets. Everyone else had fled. The British and Free French have made several small advances in the past 24 hours. They took few prisoners, however, because the Vichy French withdrew hastily except when supported by artillery or machine-gun nests. Close battle was difficult to achieve.

Documents and correspondence seized by the British in captured centers were said by them to indicate dissent among the Vichy leaders in Syria.

The British said several high Vichy officers were under arrest in Beirut on charges of not fighting seriously or of having opposed Gen. Henri Dentz on certain points.

Ammunition Running Low

In many places the defenders appeared to be running short of ammunition.

At the front north of Merdjayoun, they were firing about one shell to every six from the British batteries.

On the coastal road, Australian troopers supported by Britons advanced a little without serious opposition. They reached a point some 11 miles south of Beirut, but still must face the main defenses of that city.

In the central sector—the name given to the difficult terrain between the mountain ranges of Liban and Anti-Liban—Merdjayoun was taken by a British flanking movement which compelled the Vichy French to withdraw. The British are continuing to push them slowly back.

At Damascus, the Free French proceeded some miles northward toward Homs as the Vichy forces retreated. The Vichy men still were entrenched on a ridge west of the city, however. Meanwhile, a clean-up of Vichy elements south of Damascus continued.

The civilians of the occupied areas, which take in about one-third of the Syrian population, are tending toward cooperation with the British.

They were promised independence, the army chiefs asserting the occupation was undertaken solely to keep the Germans out. To do this will require the maintenance of an army of occupation in Syria, the British say.

Therefore, most of the Syrians realize there is not much chance for independence before the end of the war with Germany.

Cuban Legislator Killed in Hotel

Havana, Cuba, June 26 (AP).—Gilberto Pardo Machado, Liberal member of the House of Representatives, was shot and killed today in a Havana hotel.

The police arrested Rene Hernandez, also Cuban, who they reported said he killed Pardo Machado when he refused to pay $400 he owed him.

British Fleet Shells Beirut As Natives Flee

By the United Press

Vichy, June 26.—The British fleet heavily shelled Beirut tonight simultaneously with a marked increase in the pressure on French defense forces everywhere along the ragged Syrian front, according to official dispatches.

Observers here agreed unofficially that the widespread and intense offensive bore the earmarks of a major drive to beat down French resistance and conclude the Syrian campaign.

The naval shelling of Beirut, capital of Lebanon and main port involved in the Middle Eastern hostilities, was the first such direct attack on the city.

The bombardment caused considerable damage, but few casualties because a good portion of the civil population had been evacuated. The population, normally 180,000, had dwindled to barely 80,000.

Long columns of refugees had been puoring out of Beirut, but the poorer natives who could not afford to go far merely retreated to the mountains from which they watched the city being destroyed from the air and sea.

The bombardment was taken here to be an attempt to soften up the city's defenses for an assault by the Australian column which pushed up the coast but bogged down south of the capital.

The official reports from Beirut said that coincident with the fleet action, the Royal Air Force bombed Beirut, Homs and Soueida, while the British and DeGaullist French invaders were in action elsewhere.

Beirut already had been bombed violently twice during the night. Most of the bombs were said to have fallen in the port district and the business center.

A British column driving north ran into a French ambush in the desert at Douma on the Damascus-Homs road, officials reported here. They said ferocious fighting had been going on for 24 hours there in the foothills.

The French continued a slow withdrawal from the Merdjayoun sector. After abandoning that town they took up a new position near Hasbaya from which they apparently expected to undertake a counteroffensive.

A war office communique said that in an attempt to relieve pressure on the rear, the British attacked in the mountainous region east of Merdjaoun. Both sides lost hevily, but the attacks were repulsed, the communique said.

Italian Unit Off to Russian Battlefront

By International News Service

Rome, June 26.—The first motorized division of an Italian expeditionary force being formed to join Germans warring against Russia was en route to the battlefront tonight after being inspected by Premier Mussolini.

While a communique was revealing the troop departure after Mussolini made his inspection at an undisclosed location in the Po Valley of northern Italy, Rome diplomatic circles expressed belief that Japan soon would join in the conflict against the Soviets. These circles took the view that American aid to Russia would force the Japanese to act.

Admiral Gino Ducci, writing in the authoritative Giornale D'Italia, urged Nippon's immediate entrance into the conflict.

"Why wait?" he asked. "Entry of the United States may come at any moment. It would be illogical for the United States not to use the present situation for strategic advantages in Siberian territory. Japan's opportunity to precede the Americans in this action is vanishing."

Arriving at the undisclosed reviewing point by airplane, Mussolini gave the motorized expeditionary division a minute inspection, the communique stated. It was arrayed in full battle equipment.

Mussolini complimented the division's commanding officer on its excellent appearance and after greeting relatives of war dead and inspecting two military hospitals, left for Rome by plane.

[A dispatch from London stated that while no official comment on the departure of the Italian division was forthcoming, military circles believed the Fascist troops would be used only to keep communication lines open. It was felt that the Germans would not use Italian troops in a major operation.]

Accompanying Mussolini were Gen. Ugo Cavallero, chief of staff; Gen Von Rintelein, chief of the German military mission, and Gen. Francisco Pricolo, chief of the Fascist air force.

Spanish Falangists Seek Volunteers To Fight Russia

By the Associated Press

Madrid, Spain (Friday), June 27.—The Falangist Party early today announced the opening of recruiting offices to enlist Spanish volunteers to fight against Russia.

Only yesterday it was reported that Adolf Hitler had demanded from each country sympathetic to his "New Europe" a token force to fight against communism.

The decision of the Spanish group was disclosed in a proclamation by Jose Luis de Arrese Magraz, secretary general of the Falange Party.

R. A. F. Lashes French Coast For 15th Night

By International News Service

London, (Friday), June 27.—Royal Air Force bombers last night and early today lashed at the German "invasion" coast of France and ranged far inland for the fifteenth consecutive night of shattering raids on Nazi industrial areas.

An air-raid alarm sounded in London at 1:30 a. m. today.

Fog and dangerous flying weather failed to halt the R. A. F. in its sustained offensive sweep. By midnight all German radio stations with the exception of the Breslau medium-wave station went off the air, indicating the presence of British bombers over Nazi territory.

This radio blackout, according to British aviation circles, held a hint that the R. A. F. might be taking advantage of mist and low-flying clouds to batter Berlin and far-eastern Nazi industrial areas. Only when the British are heading for these distant targets do the Germans halt their broadcasting, it was explained.

Meanwhile, informed aviation circles expressed belief that a German pocket-battleship, torpedoed by coastal command planes June 12 and 13 while trying to run the British blockade and gain the open sea, had been severely damaged in raids on the Kiel naval base.

It was known that the Nazi battleship took refuge in Kiel harbor, limping to safety under protection of naval and aerial help. Since that night, Kiel has been blasted four times, the latest raid Wednesday night and early Thursday. It was believed the pocket battleship had been hit in these attacks.

All day and into the night the boom of giant bomb explosions could be heard rolling across the channel through the blinding fog as British squadrons carried out "aid Russia" diversion sweeps along a wide area of the French seaboard centering on Boulogne.

Missing Air Student Found Dead on Tracks

Franklin, N. H., June 26 (AP).—Through papers in a billfold, a battered body found on railroad tracks today was identified as that of Robert Chafee, 27, missing flying student, who was quoted by a fellow cadet at Mitchel Field, N. Y., as saying, "The weak do not have the right to get in the way of the strong."

The young Harvard graduate, son of Prof. Zecharian Chafee, of Harvard, had been training to become an Army Air Corps weather observer.

Japan Press Reports Accord of U. S., China

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, June 26.—Two Japanese newspapers, Yomiuri and Miyako, asserted today, on the basis of what is represented as information reaching reliable quarters here, that the British Ambassador to China, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, told visiting Chinese in Hongkong that procedure has been completed for conclusion of a military alliance between the United States, Britain and China, and that in case of trouble in the Pacific the American fleet would rush to China's aid.

These reports originally appeared in Nichi Nichi several months ago but were denied on all sides, including Japanese official quarters. But this time, the two papers assert, the Japanese government attached great importance to the report and ordered authorities on the spot to investigate it, while at the same time studying counter measures to meet such a situation.

This is important in view of the alarm raised in the press regarding the danger supposedly facing Japan if American aid to Russia should be sent by way of Vladivostok.

Meanwhile the government and military and naval authorities continued conferences to study effects of the Russo-German War on Japan from all sides, including military economic and ideological phases.

The government and high command met in another liaison conference, and the Emperor received in audience Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka and Masatsune Ogura, minister of state, who in some respects stand at opposite poles of Japanese policy.

At the vice ministers' meeting Capt. Hiraide, head of naval intelligence, was called in to report on questions concerning the United States, which presumably dealt with the foregoing alliance report.

According to all indications, all the conferences brought no decisions so far, and semi-official suggestions are that the promised statement of policy is likely to be postponed for some time while the conferences continue.

As a result of the police warning against "false rumors and groundless reports" the press has become wholly noncommittal again. But Chugai Shogyo, organ of the business world, expands on how important it is to pursue national policy according to fundamental principles, and then reproaches Britain and the United States for supporting Bolshevist Russia, which they abhor.

"Stick to your principles of conduct," the paper exhorts.

A Land of Refugees

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, June 26.—One of the most conspicuous effects of the war on Japan is that it has changed this country from a land of tourists to a land of refugees. Japan has everything a tourist wants but because of the world conflagration there are no tourists. All tourist facilities therefore, including steamships, hotels and good food, provided for the tourist industry are now offered refugees arriving in Japan from Europe, America and Oceania.

Since the outbreak of the European war thousands of refugees, comprising Jews, Poles and other nationals, have been pouring into Japan via the Trans-Siberian Railway from Germany and German-occupied countries en route to the Americas or Australia. During the winter an average of 500 arrived weekly. Many were transported to the United States by the American Jewish Relief Association, but many were left with little chance to go anywhere and new ones were not admitted till those present were evacuated.

The outbreak of Russo-German hostilities, however, made the Germans themselves who are visiting and traveling in the Far East refugees in Japan. As a result of that conflict the Trans-Siberian Railway, as the last route linking Japan and Germany, was severed. There are at present some 100 German visitors in Tokyo, including those in the German economic mission headed by Dr. Helmuth Wolthat and the German cultural mission headed by Dr. Erwin T. Baelz, of the German propaganda ministry. They will be compelled to prolong their sojourn in Japan indefinitely.

Japan Troops at Standstill

New York, June 26 (AP).—The German radio in a broadcast heard tonight by N. B. C. said that Japanese military operations against China have come to a complete standstill since the outbreak of the German-Russian war.

Attributing this report to Chungking, provisional Chinese capital, the German broadcast said all Chinese fronts were quiet and that in sectors where the Chinese had counterattacked they had been virtually unopposed.

"The radio attributed the situation to Japan's uncertainty over her position in view of the new war.

Germans Deny Asking Britain Not to Aid Soviet

Ankara, Turkey, June 26 (AP).—A spokesman of the German Embassy indignantly denied reports attributed to British sources in Ankara that German Ambassador Franz von Papen, through a Turkish intermediary, had proposed to British Ambassador Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen that Britain assume a "hands-off" attitude toward the German-Russian war.

According to the report, Sir Hughe was informed at the Turkish foreign office Monday of the "hands-off" suggestion and replied that Prime Minister Churchill's speech of Sunday had adequately defined British policy.

The Nazi spokesman today said, "The entire story is crazy. Germany is not concerned over what Churchill talks of doing for bolshevism, nor does Germany fear that British intervention in Russia will be any more effective than in Norway and Greece."

Dutch Sub Sinks 2 Ships

London, June 26 (AP).—A Netherlands submarine operating with the British navy has sunk "an enemy tanker of about 7,000 tons and an enemy supply ship of about 500 tons," the Netherlands admiralty announced today.

Soviet Defeat Certain, U. S. Experts Say

and submarines, requiring that strong American military and air protection be maintained in Alaska.

Little prospect was seen here of a Russian-Japanese clash in the Far East as a result of the German attack on the Soviets. Japan was said to have only 11 divisions in Manchuria facing 52 divisions in the Soviet Siberian army, with 56 other Japanese divisions involved in the war in China.

On the basis of newspaper reports and confidential information to date, the war observers here declare that reported spectacular fighting mainly has been flanking moves of little importance to the outcome of the war. Russia's drive into Bessarabia against Rumanian troops, likewise should have little bearing on the outcome of the campaign, it was said.

Little has been heard from the main German advance, directed from Brest-Litovsk toward Moscow, with Minsk, an important rail center, as the first main objective. Defeat of the Red army, however, rather than territorial gains is considered the real Nazi aim.

All of Russia, with its rich oil fields and grain, will fall easily into German hands, once its army is crushed and the heavily populated area west and south of the Volga River is occupied, it was said.

Time Limit on Drive

Victory must be obtained by late September, however, for the October rains will make a morass of Russia's "black earth" section, west of the Ural Mountains. Some unseasonable rain just before the German drive began, has delayed the Nazi schedule slightly.

Military observers here see little prospect of Great Britain giving any direct help to the Russians. The one route open for shipment of supplies or troops—around the northern tip of Norway to Murmansk—has been mined by the Nazis, it was said.

Other informed sources here yesterday tied up the mysterious flight of Rudolph Hess to Scotland, with the Russian-German War. According to reliable reports received, there was a sharp cleavage between the Nazi party and the German army over the proposed Russian campaign, just before Hess made his famous flight.

The army wanted to attack the Soviets, according to this data, while the Nazis wanted to make an all-out attack on England. Army chiefs won and as a result have increased their power in relation to that of the ruling political party.

Truce Expected in Shipyard Strike

the stoppage, it was indicated here that an aftermath may be a decision of the local to rejoin the A. F. of L., from which it split a few years ago. After it severed connections, it received a C. I. O. charter, but nevertheless worked closely with the A. F. of L. local, particularly in the current dispute.

Meantime, a strike began in 13 plants of the United States Gypsum Co. after 4,000 C. I. O. workers failed to achieve demands for a 10 cents an hour wage increase.

At the same time, the week-old strike of 156 A. F. of L. electrical workers at the Curtiss-Wright Airplane factory under construction at Columbus, Ohio, ended after conferences here with OPM labor chief Sidney Hillman.

The electricians quit to protest telephone installations by telephone company linemen who, the electrical workers contended, were non-union employes. The phone workers, however, insisted they were members of an independent plant union.

Compromise Effected

The back-to-work order was given after Hillman assured the A. F. of L. electricians that phone installations would be delayed until the controversy was adjusted.

The National Defense Mediation Board yesterday disclosed that for the first time an industrial concern had refused to heed the board's recommendations. In a telegram to company and union officials, the board said that the attorney for the Marlin Rockwell Corporation, Plainville, Conn., had declined to accept recommendations that its current dispute with C. I. O. auto workers be arbitrated.

As a result, the board said, it had appointed Prof. Harry Schulman, of Yale University, as special representative to make findings of fact and recommendations. On the basis of this information, board spokesmen indicated, public recommendations of the board would be issued.

Meantime, it was learned, the 1,100 workers involved were being polled on whether to call a strike. A previous threatened stoppage was deferred at the board's request.

Women Denied Full Rise

Principal issues of the dispute, it was learned, was a union demand for a 10 cents an hour increase. The company agreed to granting the sum for its 950 male employes, but offered only 6 cents to the 150 women in the plant.

The gap in the dispute, it was calculated, would amount to an added pay roll for the company of $20,000 a year, plus a like amount at another plant, where wages would presumably have to be equalized. Labor sources said the company's profit last year was $2,000,000. The firm manufactures ball bearings for airplanes.

In another dispute certified to the board, involving striking Pittsburgh truck drivers, the board set hearings for Monday after Pittsburgh Mayor Cornelius Scull reported that a mass meeting Wednesday night failed to effect a settlement. In the meantime, the board asked the striking A. F. of L. teamsters and the 179 trucking concerns involved to secure a resumption of operations in the light of the President's emergency proclamation.

Wages Are Issue

The major issue in the strike revolves about a wage demand in which union and companies are only 2 cents apart.

OPA to Freeze Tire, Tube Prices

would quickly bring legislative developments to a head.

Initial move in this direction, it was believed, would be a message to Congress from the President, calling for a price-fixing law based on emergency and defense powers.

Henderson has told Congressional leaders, it is known, that he would welcome such legislation and would make suggestions on its form, but, contrary to prevalent reports, his office has never drafted any proposed bills.

At present the OPA's enforcement powers are indirect and depend on threats of placing compulsory Government orders, or denying priorities on transportation, scarce materials and the like. These acts, however, depend on cooperation with other Government agencies and would be effective principally in obtaining obedience to price orders mainly for defense materials. Another major compliance weapon on which Henderson has relied has been the force of public opinion, which he could presumably marshal against a violator by issuing public statements and reports to the President and Congress.

The legislation, it was believed, would grant price fixing powers to the President, who, in turn, could delegate them to OPA. It would provide fines and prison sentences for willful violators of price orders, and would grant powers of injunction to prevent violations.

The legislation, it was thought, would give authority to fix prices and rents, but would contain nothing to enable the Government to dictate wage levels. On this point, OPA officials believe that with firm authority it can control the cost of living to a degree that will deter labor unions from making unreasonable wage demands. If such demands persist, however, wage-fixing legislation would be in order, it was said.

U. S. Faces Huge Aluminum Shortage, Senate Told

source of information as to availability of aluminum and had discouraged anyone else from going into the business of producing aluminum."

Observing that the Aluminum Co. of America was at that time the only producer of aluminum in America, the report added:

"It is reasonable to conclude that 'Alcoa' had convinced OPM of the adequacy of the supply in order to avoid the possibility that anyone else would go into a field which they had for so many years successfully monopolized."

In other ways, too, the report continued, the production of aluminum could be increased: First, power sites owned by the Aluminum Company of America have not been developed; secondly, OPM has done nothing about a Bureau of Mines report recommending six weeks ago that aluminum be produced from alumite; and thirdly, the aluminum plants are poorly a located.

At the present time, the committee observed, bauxite is going from Arkansas and the Guianas to East St. Louis, where the alumina is extracted. From there it travels to Vancouver where it is made into ingots and then to the rolling mills in the East before going back to the West Coast, where 40 per cent of the planes are built.

The greatest investment cost in creating facilities for the manufacture of aluminum and the most difficult necessary to obtain is power. Under favorable circumstances, the report said, plant facilities could be erected in ten months.

Unless the Nation started at once to create new facilities, it concluded, "we may be unable to get the aluminum when we need it or we may have to ration private consumption of electricity in the home."

When Senator Mead finished the report, Senator Ralph Brewster, (Republican), of Maine said that the aluminum situation was merely "a tragic case history" in the Government's failure to coordinate.

"The biggest bottleneck in our preparedness effort is the President's desk," he said. "Responsibility still centers there for far more than any one man can possibly accomplish."

Though a Nation-wide appeal for aluminum pots and pans is shortly going out, he said, the Army has purchased in the last few weeks more than $500,000 worth of aluminum utenils. What was needed be stressed, was a "resources administrator" who would get on with the job of mobilizing our industry and relieve the President of some of his tasks.

District and nearby civic officials are prepared to round up pots, pans, ice trays and anything that has aluminum in them in the national defense effort, it was indicated yesterday.

They await word from Civilian Defense Director Fiorello LaGuardia to proceed with their campaign which is expected to reach the kitchens of 100,000 housewives in this area.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, executive secretary of the local defense council, said yesterday everything is in readiness to proceed with the collection, which will begin late in July, probably on July 21.

Capt. Whitehurst said he will call a meeting soon of the various chairmen of defense committees in the local council to map out a complete program for the District's efforts in rounding up spare aluminum in the city.

U. S. to Heed Soviet Pleas, Envoy Told

The United States Government last night formally notified Soviet Russia that it will give immediate attention and as favorable consideration as is possible to any request for American aid in the Russo-German war.

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles announced he had informed Soviet Ambassador Constantine Oumansky to this effect in a 40-minute conference at the State Department.

Welles said the Soviet envoy came in to inform him officially of the "predatory" attack upon his country by Germany.

The acting Secretary added he had told the ambassador that, in the light of the policy of the United States, as announced by the President and by the State Department, any request for material assistance that the Soviet government submitted to the United States Government "would be given immediate attention and as favorable consideration as is possible."

The ambassador made this statement to reporters:

"I called on Acting Secretary Welles to officially notify him of the predatory attack of Nazi Germany upon my country and received from the Secretary a clear answer as to the attitude of the Government of the United States toward this attack and as to the future relations between the United States and the U. S. S. R.

"The Acting Secretary made it clear that all questions deriving from the German attack on the Soviet Union will receive immediate and friendly attention of the United States Government."

Oumansky refused any information as to whether he had brought any request for aid.

The ambassador also declined any comment on President Roosevelt's statement in which he pledged the Soviet Union all possible assistance in defending itself against German invasion.

During the afternoon Welles also conferred with Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador; Jan Ciechanowski, Polish Ambassador; Hugh Le Gallais, Luxembourg Minister; W. Bostrom, Swedish Minister; and Hjalmar Procope, Finnish Minister.

The Swedish Minister told newspapermen he had delivered to the Acting Secretary a statement by the Swedish government which explained its action in permitting one division of German troops to be transported through Sweden to Finland. The other envoys evaded all questions.

Death to Be Asked For Accused in Daughter's Rape

Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margolius today will demand the death penalty for George Hodge, 39, charged with a criminal attack on his 16-year-old daughter, Mary Louise.

The Government charged yesterday in the District Criminal Court of visiting Judge Charles G. Briggle that the alleged rape took place April 21 at Hodge's home, 413 East Capitol Street.

Witnesses for the defense will be produced this morning by Defense Attorney Robert I. Miller.

Prosecutor Margolius is seeking the death penalty following United States Attorney Curran's statement Wednesday that his prosecutors will demand the death penalty in all rape cases in the District.

Quake Thought To Be in Japan Recorded in Italy

By the Associated Press

Rome, June 26.—Italian seismographs registered a terrific two-hour earthquake today which experts estimated to be about 6,000 miles from Rome and probably in either Japan or Central America.

Rafael Bendandi said his instruments at Faenza were broken by the power of the quake which began at 2:10 p. m.

(In London seismographs registered an earthquake which was believed to compare with the one which rocked the Soviet Republics of Kazaka and Kirghis in 1938, when the buildings of Frunze, Capital of Kirghis, were destroyed with a few seconds.)

(Direction of the shocks was never determined.)

By Mary Barnsley,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hollywood, June 26.—In the twenties, Gloria Swanson's fans used to gasp at sensational gowns which made her known as a "clothes horse." But discriminating women didn't try to copy them.

It may be a different story when they see Gloria's new screen wardrobe. It's flowing Grecian lines are flattering to the average as well as fashionable. And on her head she'll actually wear becoming hats instead of the plumes and jeweled headdresses she used to affect.

Rene Hubert, who has designed all the Swanson screen wardrobes, has freely used shirred bodices, pleated skirts and dolman sleeves. Indulging Glorias penchant for drapery, there are scarves and "throws" to be worn around the throat or across the bodice. There are capes on street and evening dresses, and hostess gowns.

Because Gloria, 43, is more slim than she was in her twenties, Hubert said she now is easier to dress. Her lack of height is his chief problem.

Gloria likes to appear taller than her 5 feet 2 inches. A raised waistline, which makes the skirt longer and creates the illusion that her legs are long, does the trick.

After a seven-year absence from films, Gloria plays a glamorous stage actress in "Father Takes a Wife." Her 20-odd costumes make the picture a fashion parade.

On Gloria's dress form in Hubert's workroom was a hostess gown in black wool and silk jersey. The bodice was shirred on a cord from the point of the V-neck to the wide belt. Turquoise jersey made its full-length cape.

The rest of the wardrobe was visible only in Hubert's water color sketches.

A full-skirted evening dress of white mousseline boasts sequins in rainbow colors. With it Gloria will wear costume jewelry made of mirrors. She wears this gown on the stage.

Morgenthau Forecasts Sale Of British Holdings in U. S.

By John MacCormac
Copyright by New York Times

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., said today that he had not receded from his original position that the British Government, to raise money necessary to pay off their pre-lend-lease armament contracts in the United States, should divest themselves of British holdings in this country.

He made this statement when asked about the statement yesterday by Jesse Jones, Federal loan administrator, that he was ready to lend the British money against their American investments. ... ...

Morgenthau said he expected the British investment ultimately would be sold when market conditions were more favorable.

Jones acted after consultation with me," said the Secretary. "In fact, I sent the British to him. Our markets have been such that it has been very difficult not only for the British but for American manufacturers to make large flotations of stocks here recently. The Administration is anxious that the British should realize the maximum amount of money on their securities and for the time being they can do more through borrowing than through selling."

Morgenthau was asked whether the sale of American Viscose Co., in which the banks were criticized for taking too large a profit, had had anything to do with the alteration of the Administration's policy.

"Not so far as I am concerned," he replied.

Asked whether he had any conversations with Morgan, Stanley & Co. about it and whether he had requested them to return a part of the Viscose profits, the Secretary replied that Dillon-Read representative had visited him recently and that he had taken the position then that as they were his guests it was up to them to talk about their business if they cared to do so. He still took that position, said Morgenthau.

The question was put whether British dissatisfaction with the proceeds of the Viscose sale had influenced the decision to seek a loan rather than further sales.

"All I can say," replied the secretary, "is what Sir Edward Peacock, who is in charge of it, told me before he said goodby. He said that, talking for himself and his government, they were entirely satisfied."

Morgenthau said that the grant of a loan would give the British dollars to meet their obligations, which amounted at the beginning of the year to $1,400,000,000, but which had been substantially reduced since.

Randolph Seeks Aid for Buyers

Installment buyers would be given five days' notice by registered mail before sellers would be permitted to repossess goods in default of payment under a provision of a bill introduced yesterday by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee.

The measure also would require that repossessed goods be held 15 days before resale and would permit the buyer to redeem goods during the first ten days by paying reasonable charges for possession and storage.

12 U. S. Airline Transports Go To Britain Soon

President Roosevelt will shortly sign an emergency Executive order requisitioning 12 American transport airplanes to transfer to British Empire service, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Robert Hinckley announced last night.

From 12 to 18 additional planes may be requisitioned by the President in the near future to help satisfy an urgent British request for transports, officials reported.

These transfers, aviation industry spokesmen said, will cause some disruption to existing commercial airline operations, and may even curtail some passengers, mail and express services.

This Government recently turned over 20 planes to Britain, after London had asked for at least 50 transports to augment its depleted fleets of such air carriers, especially at empire points in Australia, New Zealand and Egypt.

Navy Asks Bill To Retain All Enlisted Men

The Navy Department requested the Senate Naval Affairs Committee yesterday to approve legislation enabling it to hold all enlisted men in service "as long as the national interest is imperiled" regardless of the expiration dates of their enlistments. At the same time a bill was introduced in the House by Representative John J. McIntyre (Democrat), of Wyoming, which would authorize President Roosevelt to retain the National Guard and Reserves in Federal service until June 30, 1943, except that those who have served the present required statutory period of one year and hold a rank below that of captain could resign if they desired.

This bill is in line with a recommendation made last week to the President by Secretary of War Stimson, and indications given earlier by Mr. Roosevelt that such action was forthcoming. As yet, no move has been made to extend the legal limit of one year's duty required of Selective Service trainees, many of whom are nearing the end of this period.

However, under the provisions of the Selective Service Act, such men automatically become members of the Army reserves at the end of their training. Consequently, it is generally believed that they immediately can be called to extended active duty under the "unlimited emergency" recently declared by the President without recourse to special enabling legislation.

The Navy's request, presented by Rear Admiral C. W. Nimitz, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, was that the Senate Military Affairs Committee add to a pending bill the provision that enlisted men can be compelled to remain in the Navy indefinitely whenever Congress formally declares that the national welfare is in danger.

Admiral Nimitz's proposal was attacked by Senator Hiram W. Johnson (Republican), of California, as an unwarranted violation of the "good faith" demonstrated by men who joined the Navy in the belief that they would be free to leave it at the end of a specified time or to reenlist voluntarily, as many of them do. Nimitz defended the move as necessary to the national security although he conceded it might be an "infringement" of private rights.

"The best possible men to have in the Navy are those now serving," he said. "Where the interests of the individual and the Government come in conflict, the Government's interest must prevail."

Search Abandoned For Bomber Crew

Lima, Peru, June 26 (AP).—Search was abandoned today for the bodies of three men who died yesterday when a United States Army light bomber caught fire and fell into the sea off the Peruvian coast between Barranca and Huach

No trace of the wreckage was found by United States and Peruvian planes and a Peruvian destroyer which searched the scene from the time of the crash until this afternoon.

The Gallup Poll

Roosevelt's Popularity Sets New High of 76% While 86% of British Approve Churchill

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., June 26.—President Roosevelt's popularity with the American voters has reached a new high in the American Institute of Public Opinion's continuous Presidential popularity index. A vote of confidence in the President is expressed by 76 per cent of those interviewed from coast to coast in the latest survey, while 24 per cent say they disapprove of the way he is handling his job as President.

This compares with a vote of 73 per cent in his favor found in May. The President's popularity has risen steadily since the election last November, when he defeated Wendell Willkie by a majority vote of 55 per cent.

A survey conducted throughout England and Wales by the British Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Institute, shows an even larger popular vote of confidence in Winston Churchill as Prime Minister of England. After a little over one year in office—a year crammed with fateful events for the British Empire—Churchill enjoys the confidence and support of more than 80 per cent of the British electorate.

Two Nations Polled

The comparative popularity standing of the heads of the world's two largest democracies follows:

United States
"In general, do you approve or disapprove of the way Roosevelt is handling his job as President today?"

Only 1 voter in every 20 (5 per cent) expressed no opinion or was undecided. Among those with opinions the vote is:

Approve	76%
Disapprove	24

Britain
(Poll by British Institute)
"In general, do you approve or disapprove of Mr. Churchill as prime minister?"

Approve	86%
Disapprove	9
Undecided	5

Churchill's popularity has fallen off slightly since the period before the Nazi Balkan invasion and the capture of Crete. On the eve of the April fighting in the Balkans he enjoyed the support of 89 per cent of British voters polled. Results of the British survey of public opinion are published regularly by the London News Chronicle.

Benefit of Free Press

Only in countries having a free press and democratic institutions is it possible to measure the true popularity of public leaders, or the true state of opinion on issues of the day. In Britain, for example, the British Institute has, without censorship or interference, conducted surveys to determine whether the British people are satisfied or dissatisfied with their government's conduct of the war—a type of survey which could not be conducted in Nazi Germany, or Fascist Italy or any of the other dictator countries.

The latest survey on that subject has just been reported in England by the News Chronicle. It shows the following trend:

"In general, are you satisfied or dissatisfied with the Government's conduct of the war?"

Today
Satisfied	53%
Dissatisfied	30
Undecided	12
February, 1940
Satisfied	59%
Dissatisfied	28
Undecided	13

Foreign Policy Poll

In the United States, the American Institute recently measured public sentiment toward President Roosevelt's policy of aid to Britain to determine how much dissatisfaction existed. It showed the following:

"Do you think President Roosevelt has gone too far in his policies of helping Britain or not far enough?"

Too Far	23%
About Right	55
Not Far Enough	22

It is interesting to note that the number who say the President has gone too far (23 per cent) is roughly comparable to the number (24 per cent) who say they disapprove of the way he is handling his job as President.

Hillbilly Tunes Hail Texas Election Eve

Election Tomorrow; O'Daniel Stumps To Mountain Music

By the Associated Press

Dallas, Tex., June 26.—Texas is electing a Senator again, to the tune of mountain music.

The town square is empty, except for a few loafers. It is noon on a June day and the sun is hot.

A big white sound truck wheels up and stops. Eight white-shirted boys and two pretty brunette girls, carrying fiddles and banjos, climb up. "W. Lee O'Daniel" is embroidered in big blue letters across their backs.

They tune up and the crowd begins to gather:

"I'll Be With You When I'm Gone" (words and music by W. Lee O'Daniel), or "Beautiful, Beautiful Texas" (words and music by W. Lee O'Daniel).

(Texas is electing a Senator, and hillbilly music mingles with body blows as an unprecedented field of 27 candidates trade punches. But most of them are shooting at O'Daniel, former flour salesman, song writer, poet and old-age pension advocate who prays, preaches and campaigns from the same platform.)

The Governor arrives. The crowd grows.

O'Daniel, stout, round-faced, usually smiling, blazes away at his opponents. He is running for Senator now and he says President Roosevelt is surrounded by pussyfooting politicians.

He talks to the old folks. He says they ought to get two Federal dollars for one State dollar in old-age assistance. The hillbilly boys and girls shout "whoopee" and play again. One of the girls is O'Daniel's daughter, Molly, now engaged to marry a millionaire oil man's son.

This time it's a song (words and music by W. Lee O'Daniel) the Governor says he sat up all night to compose and dedicate to President Roosevelt back in 1933. Then O'Daniel reviews his latest fight with the Legislature, there is more music and cheers. The entourage rolls on to the next town. Half a dozen to a dozen times a day——

Texas is electing a Senator on Saturday, June 28. A 1-vote plurality will turn the trick. Because O'Daniel figures poll-tax-exempt old folks number around 200,000, he is sure he will win. There are only 800,000 instead of a million possible votes, because most people weren't figuring on an important special election and did not pay their poll taxes. But Morris Sheppard died, and the election is to fill his place, occupied by aged Andrew Jackson Houston, son of Sam Houston, at his death last night.

Let's look at the other candidates:

Attorney General Runs, Too

Gerald C. Mann is the attorney general of Texas. He is 34, dark, athletically lean, keen-eyed. A decade ago he was a Southern Methodist football hero.

He wants $40 a month pay for soldiers, freight rate equality for the Southwest, all-out defense effort, an end to strikes in defense industries.

Now comes Lyndon Baines Johnson, also dark, young and personable. "Roosevelt and unity" is his slogan. The young New Deal Congressman is campaigning with the indorsement of Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Then there's big, blond, unsmiling Martin Dies, chairman of the House Committee investigating un-Amercanism.

Those are the so-called "Big Four" of the race. Gland Surgeon John R. Brinkley was in it for a while, but stepped out without explanation. Long-bearded Arlon Barton Cyclone Davis, son of a politically famous father, is running; so is the Rev. Sam Morris, Baptist minister known to radio audiences as "The Voice of Temperance"; so is John C. Williams, former Navy flier, who speaks in favor of augmented air defenses; so is Politte Elvins, former Missouri Representative, who is now a citrus farmer, the only Republican in the field.

City Children Drink Milk in Country

and light and clothes and food and medicines and other expenses, the family is hard put to make both ends meet.

Margaret and little Neal should be drinking a quart of milk each daily. So should Mrs. Thurston, who is nursing the baby. Likewise Grace Ann, after she is weaned.

They Get Canned Variety

But none is getting any. Canned milk, yes, in moderate amounts.

"That's going up in price, like all other foods," remarked Mrs. Thurston. "Looks like I'll have to stop buying it, too, or at least cut down the quantity."

Nostalgically, she recalled the happy days on her sister's farm last summer. That's when Neal, jr., and Margaret—there was no Grace Ann then—had all the milk they could drink, for there were three cows on the place.

The sister's six children were strapping, healthy specimens.

"One of them, 14 months old, was bigger than Neal here, though he was four months older, said Mrs. Thurston. "And my 2-year-old niece was bigger than my Margaret, though she was then nearly 3."

The family could do nicely with three quarts of milk daily at 5 cents each. That would be 15 cents. They are consuming three tall cans of evaporated milk each day; cost, 27 cents. The three cans have to do not only for the children but also for cooking, baking, coffee and other uses.

The youngsters are not weaklings, but they could stand the physical buildup that an adequate amount of fresh milk would give them. Last winter, said their mother, all three suffered from colds and influenza.

Residents of Washington ever since their marriage, the Thurstons have never asked for relief. The 5-cent milk program is a failure as long as it denies participation to families in their circumstances.

Besides doing all the housework and caring for the three children, Mrs. Thurston works a little vegetable garden.

Birds Ate Lettuce

"The birds ate up all the lettuce," she said, without bitterness, as she surveyed the tiny plot to the rear of the house, "but we'll have beans and tomatoes."

One may ask why she would have to pay 15 cents for milk—if she bought any. Why couldn't she go to the stores that sell two quarts for 19 cents.

The answer is that Mrs. Thurston is so tied down to the house she can't go out to shop. Groceries are delivered.

That brings up the problem: Suppose such low income large families as hers were made eligible for nickel quarts. How would she get them when the nearest milk depot is at 476 C Street Northwest—six blocks distant.

That predicament, which is actually being faced by many milk-card families who are finding that the nickel quart program is a near joke because of inaccessibility, demonstrates the need of broadening distribution facilities. There are now only 11 milk depots in the entire city.

Office complications incidental to the approach of a new fiscal year have necessitated postponement of action by the Surplus Marketing Administration on the request by Conrad Van Hyning, acting welfare director, to liberalize participation in the low cost milk project.

For the same reason, the S. M. A. has not yet acted on the application for a cent-a-glass program which would make milk-drinkers of thousands of needy school children.

It's families like the Thurstons who hope the decision will be favorable—but soon.

Sen. Houston Dies at 87 In Baltimore

the death of Senator Sheppard. There are four candidates—Gov. O'Daniel, Attorney General Mann, Representative Martin Dies and Representative Lyndon Johnson. Gov. O'Daniel has been the betting favorite in the race.

Senator Houston, who, according to seniority rules, was the "junior Senator from Texas," arrived here on May 30. He was accompanied by his physician, Dr. Delano R. Ayes, and his two unmarried daughters, the Misses Margarite and Ariadne. He took an apartment at the Carroll Arms Hotel and next day took his oath as Senator.

A few days later, he was named a member of the Senate District of Columbia Committee, a post most Senators try to avoid. The aged Texan, however, said that he was "pleased."

Despite his great age and his illness, Senator Houston attended a number of sessions of the Senate after taking his oath. He introduced one bill appropriating money for air conditioning and otherwise equipping the San Jacinto monument near Houston.

Andrew Jackson Houston was born June 21, 1854, at Independence, Tex. He was 9 years old when the tumultuous life of his father came to an end. The old general had served two terms as President of the Republic of Texas, and one term as Governor of the State.

The son followed his father into the military service, but he leaned more toward civil and literary pursuits. A graduate of West Point and two Texas military schools, he organized a detachment of Cavalry, which joined the "Rough Riders" of Theodore Roosevelt in the Spanish-American War.

In 1874, he organized the Travis Rifles, which stood guard over the Democratic Legislature during the turbulent reconstruction period. He later was active in the Texas National Guard, in which he rose to brigadier general.

Houston spent most of his life, however, in practicing law and at his hobbies, painting and writing.

He lived in La Porte, on Galveston Bay near Houston, with his wife, the former Betty Good, of Dallas, who died in 1907. His first wife died in 1884.

Houston's only important political efforts were in 1910 and 1912 when he ran unsuccessfully for the governorship of Texas on the Prohibition ticket. He was the first Catholic Senator from the Lone Star State.

Parran Appeals For Nurses in Talk At Bryn Mawr

Surgeon General Thomas Parran last night issued an appeal for "all young women who are willing to be nurses" to volunteer as nurses for the Nation's military and naval forces as well as for civilian needs.

Parran, speaking from Washington over a coast-to-coast network, said a total of 30,000 additional nurses are required to care for the fighting forces, for defense workers, and public health services.

District's $38,930 Aids Fight on Paralysis

The Commissioners yesterday presented checks totaling $38,930 as the District's share of the birthday ball celebrations, to Juvenile Court Judge Fay Bentley, chairman of the District Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

A sum of $23,688 was derived from the dances and the remainder from the March of Dimes.

Eucharistic Congress Ends As Downpour Breaks Heat

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BENEDICTION—Clasping in his right hand the Monstrance within the center of whose sunburst of golden and silver rays reposes the blessed sacrament, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, approaches the outdoor altar to give the final benediction to massed thousands

By The Associated Press

St. Paul, Minn., June 26.—The ninth national Eucharistic congress ended late today with thousands in the church center at the Minnesota Fairgrounds humbly receiving from the personal representative of Pope Pius XII the benediction of the blessed sacrament.

Skies clouded up in the late morning and let loose a deluge about 1 p. m. that knocked temperatures in the sun at the fairgrounds from about 100 down to 75 degrees.

The procession, an honor guard for Christ preliminary to the giving of the last benediction of the congress by the papal legate, his eminence, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, opened with a picturesque tableau of the life of Christ from the prophecies of the Old and New Testament to the crucifixion.

The men and women in this unit of the procession had been caught in the heavy downpour, and their hair matted about their faces from the rain, and their clothing, streaked and soggy, added touchingly to the theme of sacrifice for Christ upon which the congress was assembled.

Then followed a military guard from Fort Snelling, Boy Scouts, flag guards, Catholic societies of men and women in summer dress, girls in their ornamental capes in all colors of the rainbow, nurses, parish after parish, and knights of holy orders in court dress with swords.

Announcing that the supreme moment of the procession was at hand, appeared the crosier bearer carrying the shepherd's crook of the papal legate. The cardinal, marching under a white canopy supported by Knights of Columbus, carried into the Fairgrounds within his hand the blessed sacrament held within the great silver monstrance. As the monstrance passed by all along the line people knelt, many in the wet and mud.

Text of Pope's Broadcast to U. S. Eucharistic Congress

Vatican City, June 26 (AP).—The text of the Pope's broadcast today to the Eucharistic Congress in St. Paul follows:

Venerable brothers and dearly beloved children, as we send our voice across the great expanse of sea and land to join in your prayer of adoration and thanksgiving our soul is stirred by the memory of those inspired words of the New Testament prophet, "Great and wonderful are thy works, Oh, Lord, God Almighty . . . who shall not fail thee and magnify thy name?" (Apocalypse 15:3).

Wonderful, indeed, is this universe come from the omnipotent love of the Creator: wonderful are its elements which allow God's human creatures to mingle their voices in glorifying Him despite the apparent barrier of time and space.

You have come, venerable brothers and dear children, from North and South, from East and West of the vast United States, from Canada, from Mexico and from the islands of the Caribbeans. Our beloved son, the Cardinal Archbishop of Philadelphia, has presided over your gatherings in our name, and as our legate has brought us, as it were, visibly present among you.

You have knelt in fervent prayer before the tabernacle of your hidden God; you have raised your eyes and bowed your heads in adoration before the sacred host exposed in the priceless monstrance. But you know that the bread and wine of our sacrifice of the new law has not been transubstantiated into the body and blood of Christ to find a resting place in tabernacle or lunette.

No host is ever consecrated but that it should find at last its way into the breast of man, and so during these days as our thoughts have taken frequent flight to your twin cities on the upper reaches of Pere Marquette, father of streams, where we had once the pleasure of visiting our venerable brother, your devoted archbishop—we seemed to see in vision thousands, yes tens of thousands, of our dear children reverently, fervently receiving from the consecrated hands of God's priests the body and blood of their Lord and Master, their God and Redeemer.

The nations of the world are there; there are no people of Europe but has children of its own blood there among you; Asia, Africa, Australia; and we see our dear Negro children and our dear Indians are there, all partaking of the one victim of Golgotha, all entering into union with the Godhead through Christ Jesus, who then abides in them through His holy spirit.

O sacrament of tender love! O sign of unity! O bond of charity! Exclaimed St. Augustine and the zealous Apostle of the Gentiles, whose honored name your city has borne for just 100 years, has taught a divinely inspired truth in these words: "For we, though we be many, are one body of Thee, all that partake of one bread" (I Corinthians, 17).

"For what gives the bread?" asked St. John Crysostom. "The body of Christ. And what do they become who partake of this? The body Christ; not many bodies, but one body. . . . There is not one body for thee, and another for thy neighbor to be nourished by, but the very same for all."

Yes, the sacrament of our altars is a source of union which transcends all the accidents of history, all the diversifying traits and peculiarities, which have divided our scattered human family into different groups. It reconsecrates, it elevates, it sanctifies that union which our common nature and our universal destiny proclaims. It purifies that love which every human heart should cherish for all his fellow man—that love which quickens our zeal to come to the spiritual and moral rights of our fellow man—it deepens that love and steadies it, so that no withering blast may make it droop and die.

It is St. Augustine who has expressed the sublime and awful truth so tersely, when writing of the blessed sacrament. "If you have received worthily, you are what you have received."

St. Thomas, following him, tells us that we are transformed into Christ, and venerable brothers and early beloved children, it is a victim we have received; it is into a victim we are changed.

Well may you ask what elements of victimhood are to be found in your lives. And it was eminently fitting that you should have proposed as a subject to be discussed in the youth section of your congress:

"Christ's sacrifice and the importance of personal sacrifice." Sacrifice, especially self-sacrifice, is an essential element in the life of a victim. Early explorers record in their relations their utter amazement at the mighty current that sweeps down the Mississippi River. There is a stronger current of black paganism sweeping over peoples today, carrying along in its onward rush newspapers, magazines, moving pictures, breaking down the barriers of self-respect and decency, undermining the foundations of Christian culture and education.

Only a young man and woman of self-sacrifice—we were almost going to add, heroic self-sacrifice—will escape the flood.

You live in a country where the tradition of human freedom allows you to practice your faith without let or hindrance. Your chief enemy is within you—that natural drag of our fallen humanity to self-seeking and sin.

Self-sacrifice must combat it. Your parishes multiply, your schools and colleges and universities are thronged, your youths' associations flourish, your organization of social and civic service are reinforcing those bulwarks of morality and religion, without which no nation can aspire to prosperity and peace.

But you must not forget that you belong to a church whose founder and head was scourged, marked and crucified (Matthew 20:19), and that His body, which is the church, as it has always suffered persecution, so it is today being persecuted—persecuted in some of its members so artfully, that it is difficult to measure how farreaching the effect may be. And—bitter tragedy of it all—loyal Catholic fathers and mothers with sorrow gnawing at their hearth, must contemplate the danger, which every day looms more threatening, that their children and their children's children may be deprived of their previous heritage of faith, which they had hoped to safeguard for them.

In our discourse of last Easter, as you will remember, our paternal heart sent a special word of comfort and encouragement to those whose fidelity to Christ is forcing them to walk the srorowful way of the cross.

These venerable brothers and beloved children, are members of the same body, Christ, as you. Through the sacrament of our altars the same life-giving spirit has nourished their souls and yours. If they are asked to suffer for faith the physical pain and mental anguish of Christ's passion, have they not a special claim to the prayerful sympathy of Christ's other members? "Who is weak, and I am not weak?" (Two Corinthians 11:29) was the cry of the apostle's heart of St. Paul; it should find a clear echo in every truly Catholic heart, an echo which like the apostle's voice, is not broken against the narrow confines erected by man, but carries to every corner of the earth, where members of Christ's body are suffering and in need.

This burning, unquenchable zeal to defend and to spread God's kingdom on earth, which made St. Paul's soul so truly Christ-like, has run through all the sessions of the young congress, we are sure, and has been fanned to steadier, purer flame by your love of the divine victim of our holy sacrifice. Your lives will bear testimony to that zeal of an apostle. And may the heart of Jesus and the most blessed sacrament be praised, adored and loved with grateful affection, at every moment, in all the tabernacles of the world. Even to the end of time.

With this familiar prayer on our lips, as a pledge of the sacred heart's tenderest and overflowing love for all men, to those present, to all who have taken part in the congress even though only in spirit, to all our dear children of the United States and those countries represented by their bishops, with the deep affection of our paternal heart we impart the apostolic benediction.

George Blumenthal Dies at 83; N. Y. Art and Hospital Patron

Copyright by New York Times

New York, June 26.—George Blumenthal, 83, president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and president emeritus of Mount Sinai Hospital, died today at his home, 50 East Seventieth Street here, after a long illness. He leaves a widow, the former Mrs. Mary Ann Clews.

Mr. Blumenthal retired from active banking in 1925 to devote his life to art and medicine. He became president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in 1934 and continued his interest in the Mount Sinai Hospital, of which he was the head from 1911 until his retirement in April, 1938.

Blumenthal

Mr. Blumenthal was born at Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, in 1858. He came to this country in his youth and at the age of 24 became associated with the German banking firm of Speyer & Co. He remained there about ten years, when he was made a partner of Lazard Freres in 1893. He had been senior partner for 21 years at the time of his retirement.

In 1896 Mr. Blumenthal was as one of five men who were managers of a syndicate which, at a critical time, pledged $50,000,000 with which to sell foreign exchange in order to avoid further gold exports from the United States. J. Pierpont Morgan and Jacob H. Schiff also were members of the syndicate.

It was, however, as an art collector and patron that he was the best known. In 1928 he gave $1,000,000 to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. When his own collection was sold at public auction in Paris in 1932, it brought 4,000,000 francs. Most of the collection was of eighteenth century masterpieces. He was the cofounder with Mrs. Blumenthal of the American Foundation for French Art and Thought, and, in 1921, established two bursaries for French artists and writers to develop talent.

With Hospital 36 Years

Apart from finance and art, Mr. Blumenthal's predominant interest was Mount Sinai Hospital. In 1928, when he had been associated with Mount Sinai 36 years in one or another capacity, he gave the hospital $103,701 to meet its deficit. He was then its president, as he was to be for many years to come. During his long association with the hospital he saw it grow from a small institution. It was New York's first great medical center among the nonmunicipal hospitals, placing special emphasis on research.

Mr. Blumenthal's 1928 contribution brought the total of his gifts to Mount Sinai to almost $2,000,000. In 1921 he contributed $250,000 for the construction of an auditorium. He also made gifts of about $500,000 to endowment funds and toward the building expansion program. In 1926 he gave $50,000 to meet the deficit incurred the previous year. He became president of Mount Sinai in 1910. His interest in medical work was not confined to this hospital, however. In 1926 he donated $60,000 to the Public Assistance Hospital of Paris, France, stipulating that the gift be used for the development of a clinic for nose and throat diseases in children's hospitals. He was president of the American Hospital in Paris.

During the 46 years in which Mr. Blumenthal took a leading part in the work of building Mount Sinai, it grew to an organization occupying most of the three blocks from Ninety-eighth to 101st Streets, between Fifth and Madison Avenues, with 857 hospital beds, a highly rated training school for nurses, a research laboratory and the auditorium building for clinical conferences and lectures, which he donated.

The budget of the hospital in 1938 was more than $2,000,000 when he became president emeritus and its medical staff consisted of more than 200, with more than 500 additional physicians and surgeons connected with the dispensary or outpatient departments. Mr. Blumenthal, it was said at his retirement from the hospital, devoted half his day to the hospital and half to his work for the Metropolitan Museum of Art. His retirement was announced at a dinner at the Hotel Pierre which was attended by many notable New Yorkers.

Ardent Art Collector

Always an ardent collector of art objects, Mr. Blumenthal made generous gifts to the Metropolitan Museum. In 1928 he made his gift of $1,000,000, in the name of George Blumenthal and his first wife, the former Florence Meyer. He stipulated that the income of the fund be added to the principal until the death of both, at which time the trustees of the Museum were to have the privilege of disposing of both the income and the principal, the only restriction being that the principal must be expended for the purchase of works of art.

On January 9, 1934, Mr. Blumenthal was elected to succeed the late William Sloane Coffin as president of the Museum. Mr. Coffin had died the previous month. Mr. Blumenthal thus became the seventh president of the Metropolitan Museum since its foundation in 1870. Besides the chairman of the finance committee he had served on many other important committees.

In 1925 Mr. Blumenthal gave 1,000,000 francs to the Sorbonne, in Paris, and at the same time gave funds for a special pavilion at the Hospital Des Enfants Malades. In August, 1937, he presented the New York Public Library with a valuable collection of original editions of the works of Anatole France, Andre Gide, Paul Valery, Pierre Loti, the Comtesse de Noailles, Lamartine and other French authors. All the books were in special fine bindings by Gruell. They had been collected over a period of many years and at great expense by Mr. and Mrs. Blumenthal.

For many years Mr. Blumenthal maintained a chateau at Grasse, near Cannes, France. His home at 50 East Seventieth Street was one of the show places of New York and was filled with works of art of his own collecting.

Mr. Blumenthal married Miss Florence Meyer, sister of Eugene Meyer, editor and publisher of The Washington Post, in 1898. She died in Paris in 1930. In December, 1935, he married Mrs. Mary Clews, the former Miss Mary A. Payne of New York and a widow of James B. Clews, banker.

Roosevelt at Hyde Park; To Take Four-Day Rest

By a Staff Correspondent

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 26.—President Roosevelt arrived at his Hudson River retreat here tonight for a long-deferred four-day rest.

Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend supervisor, conferred with the President aboard his special train from Washington, but left the train at New York, planning to rejoin the President Saturday.

Sees Marine Corps Chief

Possibly portending some major move on the foreign scene, the President spent more than an hour before train time in Washington at a luncheon conference with Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps. The subject of their conversation was not disclosed.

There were several indications aboard the Presidential train en route here that no program of material aid to Russia is in preparation.

It was pointed out that none of the White House round-table conferences among defense officials that would precede such a move have yet been held.

The path was cleared, however, for a further statement by the President on how he proposes to implement his pledges to Russia. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles at a State Department press conference today referred to the White House a reporter who wanted comment on allegations that United States help to the Soviets has been "half-hearted." There was a possibility that the President might make a statement in refutation of these charges during the weekend.

Norse Royalty Guests

Crown Princess Martha, of Norway, and her three children Prince Harald, and Princesses Regnhild and Astrid, accompanied Mr. Roosevelt to Hyde Park as guests of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The President's eldest son, Capt. James Roosevelt, who has just returned from a round-the-world tour of war fronts, was expected at the Hyde Park estate Saturday with his new bride, the former Romelle Schneider.

The President today accepted the resignation of Emil Schram, incoming president of the New York Exchange, as chairman of the board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Addressing him as "Dear Emil," the President expressed his appreciation for Schram's services to the Government and wished him success in his new post.

Schram, who accepted the Stock Exchange post several weeks ago, entered the New Deal lending structure in its early days and served in various capacities until he was elevated to the chairmanship of RFC when Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones became Federal Loan Administrator.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

'In the Navy,' at Keith's, A Faster and Funnier Hit

Surpasses "Buck Privates" as a Song-Spotted Low-Comedy Vehicle for Abbott and Costello; "China Fights Back" an Inspiring Auxiliary

"IN THE NAVY." Universal picturization of a story by Arthur T. Horman, adapted to the screen by the author and John Grant, starring Abbott and Costello and Dick Powell, with the Andrews Sisters, Claire Dodd, Dick Foran, Billy Lenhart, Kenneth Brown, Shemp Howard, William B. Davidson, Thurston Hall and the Candos Brothers. Directed by Arthur Lubin. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

HAVING BEATEN the other screen comics into the Army in "Buck Privates," Abbott and Costello, those blown-in-the-bottle burlesque buffoons, now take over the Navy with generally disastrous consequences to themselves and almost catastrophic results to the fleet. "In the Navy," launched in the presence of hilarious audiences at RKO-Keith's yesterday, is far and away the swifter, more tuneful and funnier picture of the two. If "Buck Privates" was a four-star hit, this one, in comparison, should be accorded practically all of the stars there are in the flag.

There is, of course, no sense to the thing. Anyone who can find a plot can have it. There is, to be sure, a slender thread of narrative, having something to do with a feminine photographer's pursuit of a radio singing idol's attempt to elude his millions of worshippers by joining the Navy, but it serves only to string together the comedy "gags" the stars have brought along with them from the smoker circuits and as rousing a folio of songs as one would care to hear.

The superiority of "In the Navy" lies in the fact that it contains no dead spots, as was the case in "Buck Privates." When Abbott and Costello are not convulsing the customers with insane sequences that many of them must have seen a thousand times before, Dick Powell, the Andrews Sisters, Dick Foran, a lusty male chorus and the Candos Brothers are giving out with solo, trio and ensemble musical numbers and dances that have all the bang of a 16-inch broadside. The whole business is as crazy as a lunatic asylum, but it is right down the channel of all lovers of low comedy, set off with tunes that range from Harlem to Hawaii.

Old Chestnuts Pulled From the Fire

As already intimated, Abbott and Costello exhume a mass of their comedy routines that long have been familiar to burlesque fans. They still play the old shell game—with quart cups and lemons—pull the ancient money-changing racket and make plays on words for which they could justifiably be shot at sunrise. But they have a new one or two mixed in with their hoary hoaxes. Lou Costello, for example, has a heck of a time with one of those battleship sleeping-hammocks and in a dream in which, as commander of the fleet, he gets his ship through a series of deployments that would make Davey Jones turn over in his locker. Dr. Einstein, one suspects, would be interested in the mathematical processes by which Pomeroy Watson, as ship's baker, divides 28 doughnuts among 28 officers so that they each get 13 apiece! And that's the way it goes.

No need to go into the matter of the skill with which the stars execute their chores. They know their way around in slapstick as well as anybody. Dick Powell, as the ladies' pet of the airwaves, who wants to get away from it all, plays the part straight and handsomely and sings "We're in the Navy," and "Star Light, Star Bright" better than he has sung for the sound tracks in many a moon. The Andrews Sisters make the most of "Off to See the World," "Gimme Some Skin"—that would be Harlem for "handshake"—and "Hula-Ba-Luau," this last after the action has reached Hawaii for the sake of an exotic setting. Dick Foran, with another of the screen's better voices, has his one chance as a vocal petty officer in "A Sailor's Life for Me." Claire Dodd is the demon photographer whose magazine sets her on the hero's trail.

Heroism Under a Waning Blitz

In its new issue, "China Fights Back," chief auxiliary feature of the new Keith bill, the March of Time makes clear why the heroic Chinese, under Chiang-Kai-shek, are entitled to all-out American aid. Forced back into the mountains, their modern coastal cities destroyed, these amazing people have salvaged most of their essential industries and now are stronger than ever. Japan seems to have bitten off more than she can chew on the evidence of this release.

A new issue of the Pathe News, with its rooster crowing again, and a Government film celebrating the Federal housing program, with Frank Craven as commentator-star, complete a made-to-order entertainment for this season of the year and the present state of the public mind.

From Barracks Onto the Briny

ABBOTT AND COSTELLO, right to left, for a change, as they appear in the roles of two gabby gobs in Universal's production of "In the Navy," the successor to their earlier comedy hit, "Buck Privates." The supporting cast is headed by Dick Powell and the Andrews Sisters, for the sake of song

Mr. Sturges Pursues Bizarre Methods in Turning Out Hits

By Frederick C. Othman

United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, June 26.—Today we have Joel McCrea playing the part of a genius, Hollywood variety, who has just produced three smash hit movies, titled respectively, "So Long Sarong," "Hey Hey in the Hay Loft" and "Ants in Your Pants of 1939."

So his boss, who occupies an office so magnificent it actually looks like a movie maker's sanctum, demands that he direct "Ants in Your Pants of 1941."

Director McCrea refuses. He insists he's going out to see life in the raw, as a hobo, with 10 cents in his pocket. He bumps into Veronica Lake, playing a hungry movie extra—and so begins the fourth movie written and directed by the incredible Preston Sturges.

Sturges, who runs a restaurant and manufactures Diesel engines and wears the oddest hats this side of a burlesque show, made first "The Great McGinty." It was one of last year's best movies. Then he did "Christmas in July," which was last summer's funniest. His next was "The Lady Eve," which still has picture audiences laughing and which proves conclusively that a mister can be a sympathetic character.

All these pictures were comparatively inexpensive. They all made a jug of money for Paramount and it begins to look as if number four may do the same. It's called "Sullivan's Travels," and we're inclined to suggest now that you make a note of it for future seeing.

Miss Lake, the gal who wears her hair over her left eye in a long and blinding bob, finished her part in the film yesterday. Sturges had to scramble his shooting script and get rid of her scenes in a hurry in a race with the stork. Sturges won. Miss Lake's baby won't arrive for several weeks.

So this afternoon McCrea spent in the office of Porter Hall, the studio boss. Robert Warwick played boss number two and a hilarious scene they did, begging McCrea to rescind his decision to become a tramp. But the office is what we want to talk about.

Sturges decorated it with loving care, plus a marble fireplace, crystal andirons, ultra modern furniture, his own gold-plated Oscar—the one he won for "The Great McGinty"—on the desk, and an enormous photograph of an enormous movie studio on the wall.

This photo maybe is an ironic note. It consists of the architect's drawing of the projected Paramount Studio, which was to have been built from scratch in the bean fields on West Pico Boulevard. Came the war and Paramount forgot its plans. The new studio probably will not be built for years.

When the scene was finished in one long and almost breathless take, Sturges sent McCrea to his dressing room to remove his clothes. Everybody else had lunch and production resumed in another stage, which was dressed as the delousing room of a county jail. Here the naked McCrea—except for his shorts—and several extras underwent a hot shower and a bath of imitation steam, while Sturges cheered them on with word they were doing fine.

Then the prisoners went home. Not Sturges, though. He had to drop by his restaurant. Business has been bad lately. So Sturges is enlarging his establishment. Thinks maybe he'll get a better class of trade. This would seem to indicate that he runs his own business on the same wild-eyed lines as he writes his scenarios. He, of course, denies this, but with a smile.

Those Mad Marx Brothers Mix With 'The Big Store,' Capitol

By Richard L. Coe

"THE BIG STORE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original story by Ray Golden and Nat Perrin, adapted to the screen by Sid Kuller and Hal Fimberg, starring the Marx Brothers, Chico, Groucho and Harpo, with Tony Martin, Virginia Grey, Margaret Dumont, Douglas Dumbrille, William Tannen, Marion Martin, Virginia O'Brien, Henry Armetta, Anne Demetrio, Paul Stanton, Russell Hicks and Bradley Page. Music by Hal Borne, Sid Kuller, Hal Fimberg, Artie Shaw, Ben Oakland and Milton Drake. Directed by Charles Reisner. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

This comrade admits frankly to a Marx Brothers prejudice the very thought of which reduces him to six delicious flavors. The relative position in their complete works of their latest film, "The Big Store," is unimportant; the fact the boys are on the Capitol screen, involved in a department store fracas, is cause itself for laughter in the theater and fireworks throughout the week.

To make "The Big Store" truly Marxian, the boys have prevailed on that magnificent dame, Margaret Dumont, to join them in their present fortunes, having missed her incorrigible savoir faire in their previous "Go West." They also have ensnared another truly demented creature, one Virginia O'Brien, who does to a lullaby what has certainly never before been done to a lullaby. Her astounding presence lifts the art of the leider singer to new heights and the film to a brief departure from this world.

Sinister word has bruited it about that "The Big Store" is the Marx Brothers' final film together, which surely is one of the calamities of a tragic age. One can but trust the fates to halt so profligate a waste.

Meet Wolf J. Flywheel

Wolf J. Flywheel, enacted by that master thespian Groucho, is a detective of mean eclat, summoned to keep his eagle eye on the department store owned in part by "the charming and rich, beautiful and rich, lovable and rich, wealthy and rich" Margaret Dumont. The other part seems to be owned by the likable Tony Martin, whom murderous men are out to defraud. Into this troubled whirl drop Rasalli and Wacky.

It wouldn't be fair to say the Marx trio has its entire way in "The Big Store," which incidentally, they were all for calling "The Philadelphia Story." Executive wits turned thumbs down on that saucy pun and while in the mood probably inserted the mediocre "Tenement Symphony," one of those "musical" production numbers that has its heart set on pleasing someone though heaven alone knows who.

But there are plenty of truly Marxian escapades to offset such banality; a chase through the store on roller skates; a superb office for the impecunious Wolf J. Flywheel; moments of romantic ecstasy in which the goddess-like Dumont exchanges quotations from Shelley and Keats with her suitor, Wolf. The inimitable Harpo has a time with his harp, a couple of mirrors, eighteenth century France and a blonde. Chico, too, meets an old friend, none other than Henry Armetta.

Rae and Davis on Stage

The traditional romantic leads are played by Virginia Grey and Martin, while Douglas Dumbrille is the dastardly fellow who selfishly seeks to take La Dumont from her rightful owner, Groucho.

Altogether, if you appreciate the Marxes, you simply can't miss "The Big Store," even if it isn't undiluted Marx. And if, oh incomprehensible thing, you do not, realize you are of a minor number—yesterday afternoon's audience was huge and merry.

For the stage, Gene Ford has devised a "Femme Follies," with radio's Nan Rae and Mrs. Waterfall topping the bill. There isn't a man to be seen. The bouncing-juggling Trixie is in evidence, the Swinging Coeds sing, Alberta Mansfield dances and the Rhythm Rockets return from their two-week holiday to three routines, with miniature pianos for their finale partners. It's brief and pleasant, with Misses Rae and Davis (Mrs. Waterfall) obviously going over big.

Sam Jack Kaufman is back to lead a "Summer Overture;" Lyn Allison is charming as ever in a song from the pit; Benny Ratner of the orchestra offers a Marxian "imitation" and the tireless Art Brown succeeds in getting a lot of noise from his houseful of singers.

Veteran Teacher

Mrs. Fern Carter completes 20 years service at teacher for Our Gang members this week. She started with the group in 1931 at the Hal Roach studio, and has been with them since. Working with the present Our Gang at M-G-M on "Labor Savers," Mrs. Carter says she hopes to remain with the group 20 more years.

Picks a Tartan

Dennis Morgan, who collects plaid ties, has one of every known Scotch tartan.

Gas Alarm

William T. Orr has a gadget on his car that whistles when he's down to one gallon of gas.

HEDDA HOPPER

'Underground' Comes Out on Top

Hollywood, Calif., June 26.—"Underground" is very much like a beautiful woman. If you want to pick it to pieces, you'll find plenty of imperfections, but the general effect is more than satisfying.

MARTHA RAYE

As I left the preview, I could hear several "pickers" at work. One said that she'd never seen so much coffee drinking for a city like Berlin, which is supposed to be fresh out of it! Another complained of the absence of "blackouts." My private reaction to these and like remarks was "Nerts!"

Director Vincent Sherman has done a good job with a fine cast and a whale of a good story. As to the last, the rumored opposition of honest "German-Americans" to the film seems utterly ridiculous, since it presents a sympathetic and moving portrayal of what intelligent people still like to believe is the true German character. Philip Dorn, Martin Kosleck, Kaaren Verne, and Mona Maris are responsible for four splendid characterizations out of an exceptionally fine cast, which lack of space prevents my listing.

Dick Foran's only 31, but he's made 100 pictures up to date. And did you know how he crashed the movies? When he graduated from Princeton, a pal got him a job as a detective for Pennsylvania Railroad, who sent him to the Coast to chase up some missing papers. Here he met Winnie Sheehan, then at Fox, who put him under contract.

o•o

Martha Raye's secretary has written a story which she hopes to sell. "Oh," said Martha, "so you want to see yourself in print, eh?" "No," said the gal—"in mink!"

o•o

It's more than a rumor that another top producer will be indicated and taken through that income tax wringer in the very near future . . . Of all things, the boys who made Boogie Woogie famous are writing another song called "Cow Boogie," which colored cutie Ella Fitzgerald will sing in "Ride 'Em, Cowboy."

o•o

Now that Neil Hamilton has stopped holding out for strictly leading parts, he's making a comeback. It's taken Neil awhile to adjust himself, but his new part in the Edgar Bergen-McCarthy comedy, "Look Who's Laughing," will be his third in a row. And he was so good in "Father Takes a Wife" that Gloria Swanson has asked to have him in her next.

o•o

Lupe Velez celebrated completion of "Mexican Spitfire's Baby" by taking her stand-in to Catalina, and presenting her cook and chauffeur with a new station wagon so they could take a vacation.

o•o

Leslie Howard is going to make another picture in London, in which he will star and direct. David Niven is in the cast. Story, called "First of the Few," is about creator of the Spitfire plane . . . Wonder why the studio has gone to such lengths concealing the fact that Stirling Hayden used to be the handsomest model in New York. As a matter of fact, it was from an ad that they got the idea to put him in pictures.

o•o

Paula Trueman, who played the lead in George Kaufmann's "George Washington Slept Here," is in town on a vacation. She was visiting friends on a Warner set, and before she knew what struck here, they'd put her to work in "One Foot in Heaven." Seems Jimmy Cagney had wired the studio to be on the lookout for her.

o•o

Harry Sugarman, of the Beverly Tropics, says a motor cop is the only racer who always wins and then gets mad about it.

o•o

Regis Toomey got so air-minded while working on "Dive Bomber" that now he's taking flying lessons at the Paul Mantz school in his spare time from "Law of the Tropics."

o•o

If RKO's plans don't go awry, "Parachute Battalion" will have the biggest first-night audience of any picture. It will be previewed in the open air at Fort Benning, Ga., for a group of 10,000 soldiers.

Departmental Notes

New York, June 26.

SCHOOL DEPT.: David Stevenson is the 15-year-old son of W. H. Stevenson, editor of the British Ministry of Information. At Charter House, where David has been preparing for Oxford, the youngster is working for a commission with the Grenadier Guards . . . During a drill, last month, the tough Grenadier sergeant corrected one of young Stevenson's missteps and then assured him that he was too young and immature to become an officer . . . David protested immediately, and asserted that he was old enough. His voice rose, as his protests became more determined—rose, and rose . . . until he needed hospital treatment. Tonsilitis.

BORIS KARLOFF

FINANCE DEPT.: St. Clair McKelway, who received a $5,000 advance before going to South America—for a series of magazine articles which have not appeared as yet—discussed the publication of a book, as yet unwritten, with Simon & Schuster . . . McKelway asked for a $1,500 advance. Dick Simon offered to pay it, but in installments of $500 each . . . "But why not a lump sum?" asked McKelway . . . "Because," replied Simon, "I don't want you to live in luxury in North America."

TRAVEL DEPT.: Swifty Morgan was picked up by two G-men and taken to the FBI office for questioning—about a "$200,000 robbery" . . . "We've got you cold, Swifty," they told him, "so you'd better confess, and tell us where you hid the money" . . . Swifty asked for an Atlas . . . "From here to San Pedro, it's almost 3,000 miles,' Morgan began—moving his finger along the map. "Then a few thousand miles south is Venezuela. And there, in Caracas, that's the ideal spot" . . . "For what?" asked the G-men . . . "For a lam-minister with $200,000," Swifty explained. "Because if I had that much dough, that's where I'd be, instead of here, within reach," thereby winning his release, by order of J. Edgar Hoover, who had engineered this "arrest."

POETRY DEPT.: Somerset Maugham and Henry Bernstein were discussing American opinion of British writers . . . "When Americans speak of English poets, they always refer to 'Keats & Shelley,'" said Bernstein. "'Keats & Shelley,' always inseparable—as if they were the Dolly Sisters" . . . Maugham didn't smile, but remained expressionless . . . "Don't you agree?" Bernstein asked him . . . "Yes," was Maugham's cold reply, "but I remarked that already."

BOOK DEPT.: George Ade, the beloved novelist, essayist and humorist, has resolved not to write any more books, but to spend all his time now in reading, going to the movies, and sitting in the sun . . . "At last," he sighed, contentedly, "I have overcome the habit of writing."

FOOD DEPT.: "Chubby" is a member of the backstage crew working at the Fulton Theater, where "Arsenic and Old Lace" now is playing . . . Last week Chubby told Boris Karloff that he had had all his teeth removed and that he was getting a set of upper and lower plates . . . The day after the dental plates were installed, Chubby received a large crate. It contained a side of beef, weighing over 80 pounds. The note read: "Try them on these—Boris."

STORY DEPT.: A Columbia scenarist went to Producer Sam Briskin and asked: "If you're money-minded, I have a sure-fire movie comedy" . . . Briskin paid attentive ear—and the writer began: "It starts with a man who's just arrived in New York, on the Clipper. He's flat broke because he's lost a million dollars" . . . "Wait a minute," interrupted Briskin. "Any story about a man who loses a million dollars is not comical."

MOVIES DEPT.: Brynie Foy, the most prolific producer in the motion picture industry, had 86 pages of a new script prepared for him. The title of the story was "Brother Rat at Camp" . . . The Warner Bros.' legal department advised him that any use of the "Brother Rat" title or characters would entail the necessity of paying John Monks, jr., and Fred Finklehoffe, who wrote the original . . . "Pay for material?" gasped Foy—and abandoned the script.

SPORTS DEPT.: Billy Rose has rented a house on the Jersey shore, and will spend the summer in weight-reducing exercise . . . When he was asked about this sudden yearning for the dash along the beach, the swing of the tennis racket and outdoor setting-up routines, Billy half closed his eyes, patted his tummy, and explained: Eleanor called me Buddha—and she didn't mean it as a pet name, but as a complaint."

DRAMA DEPT.: Teddy Hart, who played in a succession of George Abbott farces before he began a road tour with Alexander Woollcott in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," returned to New York and told his friends about the trip . . . "How did you and Woollcott get along?" Hart was asked . . . "Oh, we didn't talk much," Teddy explained. "After all, Woollcott and I have nothing in common."

Roosevelt Asks $300,000,000 More for Defense Housing

President Roosevelt, in a special message to Congress, yesterday asked immediate authority to spend an additional $300,000,000 on defense housing.

He called for doubling of the $300,000,000 authorization in the Lanham Act but warned that a greater program might be necessary in the coming fiscal year. He said data presented to him indicated there would be need for at least 125,000 new houses, but said construction of 75,000 houses with the requested $300,000,000 would "fill the most urgent present needs.

The text of the message:

"To the Congress of the United States:

"The act of November 14, 1940 (public, No. 849, known as the "Lanham Act"), as amended and supplemented, has to date authorized a public housing program of $300,000,000 for defense needs. Appropriations have been made to the full extent of the authorization, and practically all of the funds appropriated have been allocated to projects.

"I am convinced, from information presented to me by heads of interested departments and agencies of the Government, that there remain further needs which cannot be provided for except by the enlargement of the authorization under this act. It is normally exceedingly difficult to predict housing needs, and during the present emergency accurate prediction is well-nigh impossible by reason of the rapid expansion of, and frequent necessary changes in, the national defense program which defense housing must serve.

"Data have been presented to me which indicate the possibility that the Government should be prepared to undertake the construction of at least 125,000 additional defense homes between now and July 1, 1942. It is thought best, however, to limit the additional program to $300,000,000 at this time, which will permit the construction of approximately 75,000 houses to fill the most urgent present needs.

"The effect of the national defense program has not yet been fully registered on the housing market. Some new plants heretofore brought into the defense program have not yet reached full capacity and many new facilities yet remain to be constructed. It has been recognized that increased subcontracting and curtailment of certain kinds of production for civilian use will reduce the need for new housing to some extent.

"However, in many cases new plants or increases of existing plants will of necessity be located in areas not affected by these factors. In practically every case where existing plants are increased, those workers who must be brought into the area will require a proportionately larger number of new houses, because those vacancies which were previously available have generally been absorbed.

"The importance of adequate housing in the defense program should be self-evident. Without housing for workers, industries producing ships, planes, tanks, and other defense materials cannot function to full capacity.

"I, therefore, suggest to the Congress the enactment of legislation providing an increase from $300,000,000 to $800,000,000 in the authorization contained in the act of October 14, 1940, as amended.

"In view of the urgency of this matter, I suggest that it receive the early consideration of the Congress.

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Car Stripper's 'New Leaf' Doesn't Help Him at All

When Andrew Davis, 24, colored, left Lorton Reformatory last November, he decided to turn over a new leaf.

He had been serving time for stripping cars of anything salable to a pawnshop. He was caught red-handed. So, when he was released, he decided not to sell the property he stole to pawnshops but to persons visiting Washington.

Last night, however, Davis landed in First Precinct Station charged with 31 cases of larceny. Police had searched his room at 204 L Street Northwest and found stolen property valued at $1,000.

Amnesia Victim Knows She's 23; Has Brother, Dale

Police and hospital attendants are trying to learn the identity of a 23-year-old girl who was taken to Emergency Hospital yesterday after she fell on a downtown street.

The girl suffered a bump on her head when she fell in front of 1339 F Street Northwest. She has not been able to recall her name, address or any events before the accident, although she talks lucidly to nurses.

A letter in her handbag disclosed she has a brother named "Dale," who is stationed in a Louisiana Army camp. She is described as 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds. She wore a white blouse, blue skirt, white shoes, white straw hat and white, cloth handbag.

charge justified. He then charged me with passing two stop signs and speeding 40 miles an hour," Lipscomb," declared.

The youth said he was remonstrating with the officer when two plainclothesmen entered the station house. One of them, making a telephone call, told him to quiet down. Lipscomb asserted, and when he continued to talk to Sams, he was struck on the neck by a blow from behind.

He turned to face his assailant, the motorist declared, "and tried to defend myself."

"At least eight of them jumped me then," the youth continued, "and then my friends attempted to intervene. Both of them were charged with disorderly conduct."

In his statement, Lipscomb said that several officers then suggested he fight the man who struck him from behind man to man.

As the fight progressed one of the bystanders removed the fighting policeman's gun from his holster and laid it aside, Lipscomb asserted.

"I took a pretty thorough beating," the youth related. "He backed me into a corner by a telephone booth, and I was unable to protect myself."

Besides Lipscomb, Weigle and Elam present at yesterday's hearing were Lipscomb's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Adgate Lipscomb, of Kenwood, and the complainant's fiance, Miss Ollie Ethel Foulk, 22, of 1530 Spring Place Northwest.

Police refused to discuss the case saying that their reply would be made in court.

Two 12-Year-Olds Admit Killing Boy

Chester, Ill., June 26 (INS).—Two 12-year-old boys tonight confessed the killing of Harry Knoke, jr., 11, who disappeared from his home Tuesday noon, State's attorney D. N. Conn announced.

He said the boys were Matthew Voudrie and Barney Byram, both of Chester.

Harry was the object of an organized search all Tuesday night, yesterday, and until this morning when the body was picked up in the Mississippi River near Neely's landing, 40 miles south of Chester.

Income of 85 Billion Dollars Is Forecast for U. S. in 1941

By the Associated Press

A total national income of at least $85,000,000,000 for 1941 was forecast yesterday by Agriculture Department economists, or a minimum increase of $11,000,0000,000 over last year.

Looking beyond 1941, the economists said it was probable that the 1942 income would reach $92,000,000,0000 and that the rate of industrial production would be 40 per cent greater than in the boom year of 1929.

These estimates were contained in a special report on the effect of the war and the defense program on agriculture, and most of the economists' findings concerned the outlook for the farmer, which was considered very good.

Given a continuation of favorable weather for the rest of the crop-growing season and a continuation of the war, the farmer may expect 1941 to surpass 1929 in prosperity, the experts said.

Their prediction was that 1941's cash farm income would be about $10,600,000,000—$1,600,000,000 better than 1940.

The economists said that a farm income of $10,600,000,000 would fall short of 1929's $11,221,000,000 in terms of dollars, but would surpass the latter in purchasing power. They expect the 1941 farm dollar to buy at least 15 per cent more nonfarm goods and services than the 1929 dollar bid.

On this basis, they explained, the anticipated 1941 farm income of $10,600,000,000 would buy as much as $12,190,000,000 would in 1929.

The report stated that, due largely to the influence of the lend-lease program, agricultural exports during the fiscal year beginning July 1 were likely to be about double the rate prevailing since last September. The emphasis will be on pork, dairy and poultry products, some dried fruits and canned vegetables.

Turkey's Position

Had Turkey been on the Allied side in World War I or, alternatively, had the Allies succeeded in forcing the Dardanelles at the time of the Gallipoli campaign in 1915, it is conceivable that the collapse of Russia, which occurred two years later, would have been averted and the war brought to an end sooner than it was. But because Turkey was allied to the Central Powers, and because of the Allied failure at Gallipoli, Russia remained in a state of "deadly isolation," as Churchill has put it. Only a small driblet of supplies from the outside world could reach her via the Pacific and Vladivostok.

This time Turkey is not Germany's ally but Britain's. And since the establishment of the Ankara government, relations between Turkey and Russia have been friendly. But it is by no means clear that it will be any more possible now than it was in 1915-1917 to use the Dardanelles route as a link between Great Britain and Russia. In the first place, the German capture of Crete and occupation of the Aegean Islands has made that route hazardous. Secondly, Turkey, while allied to Great Britain, has also signed a nonaggression pact with the Third Reich, doing so on the very eve of the outbreak of hostilities between Germany and Russia. Indeed, the German declaration of war on the Soviet union was followed by a Turkish proclamation of neutrality. Nonetheless, the Turkish leaders say that their nonaggression agreement with Hitler has brought about no change in their relations with Great Britain. They insist that the British alliance takes priority over all other commitments made by the Ankara government.

Exactly what this may mean in practice is far from clear. It is apparent from the attitude displayed by Winston Churchill in Tuesday's debate in the House of Commons that Great Britain refuses to write off Turkey as a loss. When members voiced criticism of Turkey for having signed her pact with Germany, Churchill intervened to close the discussion declaring that: "this really is a case of the least said the soonest mended."

In the meantime it is reported in Vichy that large numbers of Turkish troops have moved from the western border south to a point close to the Syrian frontier. This may mean that, with the menace of a German attack temporarily eased, as a result of Germany's preoccupation with Russia, Turkey may feel free to aid Great Britain in bringing the war in Syria to an end. This would obviously be to her advantage as well as to the advantage of Britain, which is eager to seize the opportunity provided by the Russo-German struggle to strengthen her position in the Mediterranean and the Middle East. Turkey's role during the coming weeks may prove less inactive than the circumstance that she is literally barricaded on all sides by nonaggression pacts would seem to indicate.

Schulte Bill

There should be no illusions in Congress as to the grossly restrictive nature of the Schulte liquor control measure which, as a result of a 6-4 report by the House District Committee, is shortly to be voted upon. It is primarily a device eventually to control and fix prices, and would actually force the customer to go to a liquor store to find out what he must pay for alcoholic beverages. The bill would so amend the local liquor act that advertising, through any medium, of liquor prices or free distribution of information on the subject would be abolished. Price lists would even be banned from display windows. For the bill expressly states that no holder of a retailer's license shall display any price list or sign that is visible from the street.

This, of course, would be an obvious infringement of fair trade, for it would keep prices secret until the customer is at the counter and beyond the reach of any retail competitor. Such a measure clearly caters to the interests of those in a position to dominate the liquor market. It is, or should be, a fundamental right of the consumer to know where he can shop to his own advantage. This is just as true in regard to liquor as to other commodities. It is sincerely to be hoped, therefore, that Congress will recognize the measure for what it is and not deprive the Washington public of information to which it is indisputably entitled.

Price Showdown

The Chrysler Co.'s refusal to rescind price increases on its new cars at the request of Leon Henderson is not an isolated instance of recalcitrance. Several furniture manufacturers, among a large group who had just marked up prices on new lines, ignored the request of the OPACS to make no additional price advances without discussing the matter. The furniture men responded by announcing further increases. These incidents point up Mr. Henderson's recent warning that we have about liquidated the "honeymoon with business" which has made voluntary price control possible. Indeed, Mr. Henderson has already announced that maximum prices are to be fixed for next year's motorcars.

This was inevitable. But, in order to insure conformity with such edicts, authority of the Henderson agency should be defined by law, and its orders should have the force of law so that recalcitrants could be disciplined. Moreover, we should not entertain too many expectations from such a development, if it is partial. The mere power to "crack down" on producers refusing to abide by fixed-price schedules will not protect the country against inflationary price advances unless the control system embraces all the major elements of production costs. The rebellious furniture manufacturers, for example, explain that prices are being raised to cover increased costs, actual and anticipated, of various materials entering into the finished product. Their argument is a valid one, in principle, regardless of whether the announced increases make unduly liberal allowance for prospective additions to cost.

Certainly rising wage rates spell substantial increases in industrial production costs which will necessitate price advances over a wide field. For example, since the beginning of 1940 to May 1 of this year the National Industrial Conference Board estimates that the average hourly pay of workers in 25 industries had risen nearly 8 per cent. In April alone over 800,000 factory workers received increases averaging close to 10 per cent. A few highly profitable concerns may be able to absorb such increases in labor costs, but for the great majority of producers wage increases will necessitate price markups unless plants are to operate at a loss. Coal—a vital commodity which enters directly or indirectly into all production costs—is unquestionably going to be dearer because of the recent increases in mine wages. The Bituminous Coal Commission is now holding hearings preparatory to announcing a revised schedule of minimum prices. As recently pointed out in these columns, prices of many important commodities, especially foodstuffs, have recently been rising with dangerous rapidity.

We have been slow to realize what is happening because advances in wholesale prices are reflected only belatedly in living costs. The living-cost index is, however, beginning to respond to the upward movement of prices—a development that will undoubtedly bring new demands for higher wages. There is no denying that we have made a bad beginning in permitting strategic cost factors—wages in particular—to rise. And that bad beginning is going to lead to a worse, maybe a disastrous, ending unless price control extends to the pegging of wages as well as other production costs.

There are some interesting parallels between our situation and that of Great Britain, as was shown by a recent discussion in the London Economist on "The Strategy Of Prices," which criticized the inadequacies of British methods. The Economist summed up the problem as one of stabilizing key prices—such as fuel, transport and labor—since these are prices which affect all other prices. "To say that all prices except the price of labor should be held down," it said, "is as fatuous and futile as it is to maintain . . . that all prices except the price of labor should be allowed to 'find their own level'—in other words, to 'rip.'" This authoritative journal of economic opinion concluded that it is "impossible to stabilize the price structure by pegging mere sections of it; and the need in every country that is faced with the inflationary consequences of wartime scarcity, in the United States no less than in the United Kingdom, is an all-in policy of control over strategic prices." That puts the matter in a nutshell. The argument is irrefutable, and we shall ignore it at our peril.

Save Your Gas

Washington is about to have a chance to show how effective or ineffective consumer cooperation can be in an emergency. The emergency, so-called, is the fuel shortage facing the Atlantic Coast area, due to the diversion of tankers to aid Britain. And the cooperation, it is hoped, will consist for the time being, at least, of a 20 per cent voluntary curtailment of gasoline and oil consumption by pleasure car owners. Commercial users of motor fuel will also be asked to cooperate. The District Petroleum Conservation Committee, acting with the approval of Oil Administrator Ickes, has come forward with a sensible list of suggestions for cutting consumption. These include practices which motorists ought to observe anyway as fundamental rules of safe driving: maintaining even speeds, avoiding racing up to red lights, using first and second gears no longer than necessary, keeping off congested roads, and so on. By reducing leisure driving and by striving constantly to "stretch" fuel supplies, the committee hopes that the District's monthly consumption of 15,150,000 gallons can be cut 3,040,000 gallons. This may not be possible, even though the committee plans an intensive educational program to impress motorists with the need for conservation. The year's heaviest driving lies just ahead during the vacation months. For vacationists, especially, it will take nothing short of an officially imposed rationing system to curtail their use of fuel. All should realize, however, that if the voluntary scheme, with its slight demands, fails, rationing entailing far greater material inconvenience may be inescapable.

Scoop!

We are proud to announce that by virtue of our newly installed Time Machine we are able to bring you the big news of the world one week before it happens, so to speak. This amazing apparatus is based on the Einsteinian discovery that the time at which any given event occurs must vary according to the point of observation. Through our Time Machine we are able to place our correspondents at positions in space where everything happens one week earlier than in Washington. The machine is tremendously expensive to operate and can be employed only for the collection of the most urgent and important news. For the present you must not expect us to give you next week's results at Aqueduct or Charles Town or next week's opening price of American Can. Here, however, hot off the curved and warping light waves, are next Friday's dispatches about the fighting on the Nazi-Soviet front.

Berlin, July 3.—The official German News Agency, D. N. B., today claimed "successes of interplanetary magnitude" in the operations against Russia. The swastika battle flag is now said to be flying over the entire Arctic coastline of Siberia to the Bering Sea. On the central Siberian front German advance units, after seizing the towns of Tomsk, Kansz and Kriensk, were reported pushing on in a ten-pronged pincers movement toward the Pacific Ocean. A delay of ten minutes in the passage of the Ural Mountains was admitted in official quarters. This, it was explained, was due to a miscalculation by the commander of the Stuka formations, which had been instructed to demolish the mountains and leave a perfectly smooth terrain for the passage of tanks and panzer divisions. Several million tons of bombs too many were dropped on the range creating a gully 11,000 feet deep and several hundred miles wide. Bridges, however, were rapidly thrown across the gully by the engineers corps. D. N. B. also stated that the Russian air force had been annihilated for the fifth time since the beginning of the campaign. The German high command was somewhat less explicit, merely stating that all operations were proceeding according to plan.

Moscow, July 3.—Victorious troops of the Red army have smashed still farther into enemy territory, according to today's communique. The communique states that in a north-northwesterly movement "our troops entered the cities of Salzburg, Munich and Nuremberg, in each of which places they were greeted by delighted throngs of liberated workers and peasants crying 'Long liff der Zoviet Vaterland!'" While a few mop-up squads of the G. P. U. remained for ideological chats with the populace of the captured towns, our main force pushed on toward Leipzig, completely encircling the entire enemy forces. Meanwhile, Red fliers yesterday destroyed 10,000 more enemy planes in the air or on the ground or in the mind. This brings the total of enemy planes destroyed to date to 1,603,049. Ten, maybe 11, of our planes have not yet returned to their bases.

Ankara, July 3.—After several days of what was described as unusually severe fighting, forces estimated at 75 Red army divisions and 92 German divisions have succeeded in completely destroying each other in the region between Minsk and Pinsk, according to advices reaching diplomatic quarters here today.

New York, July 3.—The Communist Daily Worker in a front-page editorial today charged that the threatened strike of charwomen in the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. is being instigated by "Trotskyist wreckers and Hitler stooges." The sole purpose of the strike, the paper declares, is to hinder the aid-Russia program and thus destroy the Soviet democratic way of life. It calls upon President Roosevelt to use the combined forces of the Army, Navy and Coast Guard to prevent the walkout.

There you are, ladies and gentlemen. Our wonderful Time Machine has brought you these items from next week's news at no extra charge. You have now a perfectly clear picture of the Russo-German fighting and its probable result.

FARM-WIFE

Before the flaming of the dawn
She's up to put the coffee on,
To set the table, to bake the bread,
To open the door of the chicken-shed,
To rattle the well-chain down, to drop
And draw the bucket to the top.

From kitchen-stoop the farm-wife sees
The dawn flame over the dew-dark trees.

The breakfast done, the bed-quilts laid,
The butter churned in the dooryard shade,
The rooms all swept and the halls between,
The furniture dusted, the dishes clean,
The dinner cooked and the dinner done,
The supper to get, and the wash begun,

Through the honeybee-drone of the afternoon
She washes and whistles a homespun tune.

The dark comes early, comes cool and deep.
When supper is over, when children sleep,
When fingers are weary, when farmers dream,
She scours the crock for the morning cream.
When supper is over, when crickets cry,
When frogs are croaking, when bat-wings fly,

The farm-wife dims a dusky lamp,
At step-worn dorsill stands a spell
To breathe a breath of evening damp,
To watch the stars above the well.

The Opposition

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself has said—
This is my own, my native land!"

These lines state as clearly as words can a love and reverence for one's native land—our native land—America! And this implies, naturally, a keen desire to protect it, keep injury from it; in the present instance keep it free from the scourge of falling bombs that destroy not only cherished public buildings but also lives of large numbers of the civilian population.

If this scourge descends upon us, it will be because we have not given sufficient aid to Great Britain, who so heroically has stood up under the most outrageous bombardments.

It will be too late, then, for those who have been so obstinately blind to cry out against the horrible destruction. They will be unable to say: "Why didn't you tell us?" They are being told again and again. Our great program for national defense tells them; the ringing voices of thousands of our great speakers tell, yet they foolishly follow the leadership of the un-American opposition, who, it would seem, have souls so dead that they prefer to see our land invaded! This is the only explanation of their stand. This talk of "foreign wars" is too nonsensical for even these opposers themselves to believe.

O-9 Disaster

In your editorial "Tragedy at Portsmouth," June 22, you ask many pertinent questions regarding the O-9 misfortune. Under the circumstances, it would seem that it would have been the part of wisdom to have tried out such a vessel in shallower waters, say from 50 to 100 feet, with the salvage ship nearby in case of accident, instead of letting her submerge at a depth where rescue of her crew was impossible! It looks very much like a case of supreme stupidity on the part of somebody who had charge of the performance of that sub. In testing an old life preserver, if I could not swim, I would prefer to test it in 8 feet of water instead of 800!

On The Russo-German Conflict

Comments on the Russo-German situation indicate the surprise of the authors. They grope around for reasons and very few even mention strategy and fear as causes. Walter Lippmann is an exception. In today's Post, he quotes Hitler to the effect that the necessity for keeping large bodies of troops, especially planes, on the Russian frontier prevented "a radical conclusion" of the war against England.

In my letter to The Post of August 1, 1940, I pointed out that there was as much of a chance of Germany invading Russia as of England, and I should have said, "the Germans had better invade Russia now, while the going is good." The present campaign would have been much safer last year when invasion by England of occupied territory was impossible. She had practically no army and the R. A. F. was nowhere near as strong. Now, Germany may have a hard time resisting Anglo-American air power. That the move has been made in spite of the fact that it makes western Germany vulnerable, indicates that fear of what Russia might do to Germany next year is one cause for an act which is desperate only because performed a year too late. The Battle of Britain was very bad strategy on the part of the German general staff, who should have known that England had an air force, without wasting valuable time and many thousand pilots to find out. Even with a much weaker R. A. F., an invasion of England would have been foolhardy, as is shown by the Cretan affair where only about 30,000 colonials without air support nearly foiled the German attack. In addition, if things went wrong, Russia was a frightful danger to Germany's rear.

Certainly, after the Battle of Britain, any thought of invasion must have vanished from the plans of the German general staff. Yet, the bluff of invasion worked. Fear of the myth kept England's army at home when it could have saved the situation, at least in Libya, and Germany, almost unopposed, protected her flank bordered by Serbia, Greece, Turkey, etc., before making her rear secure by the present conquest of Russia.

Once the Russian menace is "liquidated," doubtless late in the summer or next spring, Egypt, via Turkey, will be the next step. Here the nonaggression pact with Turkey is significant, as this procedure almost always precedes conquest. In the meanwhile, the continual bombardment of the French coast and the recent massing of German troops in Norway, supposedly, of course, for use in an invasion of Scotland, Iceland or the North Pole, certainly make it seem possible that England threatens at least a raid in force on occupied territory, and that Germany is aware of the threat. As for the invasion of England, feared by Churchill after the inevitable Russian collapse, even the release of planes from the Russian front can not offset the reinforcements we could send to the R. A. F. if we were not afraid of war with Germany. Loss of the Mediterranean will not be decisive and, in spite of Lindbergh's party, England cannot lose, provided we conquer the U-boat menace, as we did in 1917. Or else, this time, we fight alone in a very few years.

Washington, June 24.

The issues of World War II are more clearly based on ideals, upon a certain outlook on life, than was the last war. Until now the Allies clearly held the ascendancy in this important phase of the struggle. No doubt Hitler was sorely troubled from within the ranks of his followers by his unholy alliance with Bolshevism. At one fell swoop he has recovered the moral ascendancy and Churchill has been quick to seize the nauseating bait. Certainly the issue is that Hitler must be defeated. Hence there is all the more reason why the Allies should not take the bloody hand of Stalin in partnership. What a glorious issue Hitler will make of Churchill's overtures to Stalin, how stupid and insincere will appear all attempts to convince the people that this is really a war against all tyranny—red, black or brown.

Neither Great Britain nor the United States can hope to save Soviet Russia from the maw of the Nazi beast. Germany will crash through the gigantic bluff which the Soviet propaganda machinery has built up regarding the might of the Red army. We shall have another Finnish debacle on a more gigantic scale. Why should the Allies identify themselves with a completely lost cause? The thing for the Allies to do is to take advantage of German preoccupation on the Eastern Front and smash the German lines and factories on the west. This involves no alliance with the treacherous Russian bear, whose fifth columnists have been active all over the country in their effort to hamstring our defense program.

DEMOCRATICUS.

News And Hysteria

The newspapers, it seems to me, are faced with a serious and delicate responsibility of decision in reporting and editorializing Washington's current crime wave.

The situation is undoubtedly grave. But hysteria can be a whole lot graver. The summer months are the silly season—every old news hand knows that if one sea serpent is seen off Montauk, in the late Friday edition two dozen sea serpents, of different degrees of size and horrific countenance, wallowing in the waters from Fundy to Barnegat, are as predictable as Monday's sunburn. About all the harm that comes from that is to prevent a few timid people from going in swimming. But what can follow—and has in specific instances followed—the repeated reports of "attempted rape" is race riot.

Washington is a boom town this summer, filled with lonely people, beaten with the heat, rasped by wars and rumors of wars. People from every State in the Union, of every degree of mental soundness or hysteric instability. A large proportion of these strangers are women who do not know the town, nor the customs of this section of the country. Any competent neurologist can give you exact figures on the incidence of that form of maladjustment and personal insecurity which leads women to believe that they have, in some form or other, "been insulted by a man." The Strieff murder has shaken, and quite understandably, the nerves and imagination of thousands of normally sensible women. During the last two weeks, we have been told, daily, of the incompetence of the police, and the hideous unsafeness of every house and alley and street in the District.

Unquestionably the police should give, and are giving, more than usual attention to every complaint they get. Unquestionably they recognize a great many such complaints as routine hysteria. But it is equally beyond doubt that if the papers are going to have a front page story every day for a few weeks more, headed "Fiend Strikes Again" or "Negro Robs and Assaults White Woman," the police and the papers will have a new story on their hands, and an equally unlovely one. The best they can hope for is a petty flare-up of racial antagonism; the worst is hoodlum activities by amateur Klu Kluxers. It has happened before. No one wants news suppressed; but it sets up acute anxiety in a lot of thoughtful people to see news ballooned with helium.

F. W. C.

Washington, June 26.

Col. Lindbergh

Mr. Lindbergh's clarion call to new leadership was widely commented on by a surprised citizenry, and when surprise at the impertinence crystallized into resentment, Mr. Lindbergh entered a weak disclaimer of any intent to proceed by any but constitutional means. It seems however to have escaped notice that the hero repeated, though more obscurely, his offense in his very next speech. His latest ruse requiring some clarification was to the effect, roughly, "warmongers now misleading the people will be held to account—they will not escape." Meaning, I presume, that when American "men of Vichy" come to power, anyone who had tried to arouse the Nation to the catastrophic folly of allowing Hitler to win would be punished—Teutonically, no doubt. So what? So just this: Lindbergh isn't fooling anyone but a few chronic dupes who if they were not following him would be joining some equally preposterous crusade. The legend that he is a distinguished American and entitled to respectful hearing, ad infinitum, is about exhausted and so is the patience of a good many Americans.

The Post Impressionist

Country Weekly

Mr. Samuel Bixby, to my mind, was the ideal editor of a country weekly. When I first met him at the office of the Lonsdale Press, located in a pleasant and charming hamlet in up-State New York, he made a fine impression on me. Seated in front of the latest model linotype machine, his broad, healthy figure, his bronzed face and his amiable manner spoke of a man with a fine zest for living and a background of long experience.

Mr. Bixby had stopped short in his tapping of the linotype keyboard and spoke to me with his deep drawl:

"I haven't had much help here for the past year or so. It's been a bit too much lately to make up my news and editorials as I worked on the machine. That's besides the pressework. And don't forget we do commercial work here, too. That's why I want an assistant. Now tell me just what you can do!"

Mr. Bixby listened attentively as I enumerated my qualifications. I could give him a few more details than I had done in my letter. I mentioned the names of at least half a dozen small-time printeries that had employed me in New York. I spoke of my experience as compositor, proofreader and amateur pressman. At heart, however, I felt that my most real qualification was probably a sincere desire to breathe more freely in an atmosphere that was not as cramped and as poverty-stricken as was the East Side. Indeed, leaving the East Side for the country was like a breath of fresh air after a spell of suffocation.

Mr. Bixby mused a while after I had finished. Then he eyed me rather keenly and told me good-humoredly:

"I guess you can park with us in Lonsdale. I'll start you off with $15 a week. But you'll have a brilliant chance for advancement. You might find a few of the folks here in the village a bit odd, but you'll get used to them. Besides, to make up for some of the freaks, we've got many more honest-to-goodness, decent and fun-loving Americans. They've raised some mighty nice families that we can all be proud of."

Mr. Bixby inspired me with his talk to a high flush of patriotism for Lonsdale, the State of New York, above all, the United States of America. But I soon had to come down to earth as he ordered me to my first duty. That was the task of rearranging some type that had been "pied" in a rather large type case.

"My little grandson, Al, has been fooling with this boldface type this morning when he came here with his mother," Mr. Bixby explained. "He sure is a little rascal if ever there was one."

I busied myself at my job and Mr. Bixby returned to his work on the machine. Mr. Bixby had done all the talking and I had kept my silence, excepting when I told him of my experience. That was because the man's innate friendliness had not yet gotten a real hold of me. That was to come a bit later and was to become a real part of my relation to the Lonsdale country weekly.

Neither of us had done much work, however, when there walked in a personage who looked more like a character from a picture or a book than real life. One could tell offhand that he was a farmer, by the way he wore his shabby overalls and his much too wide-brimmed hat. Coupled with his garb, however, was his effort to hold up some crude, heavy bundle in his hand. All in all these gave him the semblance of a caricature.

"Ahv kum to geev ye the potatoes for that there las' sebscription yahv geeven me," he announced. I could not at all place the accent, but it was odd, to say the least.

"Thanks, Bud," Mr. Bixby said simply, still not budging from his beloved keyboard.

"Yahre welkum, Mr. Beexby."

As he walked out, his salutation was made all the funnier by a strange grimace . . . I could not for the world figure out what this sudden distortion of his face meant. A bit later, however, I was to find out that it was his way of smiling.

When he had gone, Mr. Bixby sighed a bit wearily. Then he spoke to me confidentially from his perch at the machine:

"Here's an example of one of Lonsdale's odd fish. But he's harmless. Besides, he makes you laugh sometimes."

I was about to ask Mr. Bixby about the farmer's dialect, but he told me himself with a little chuckle:

"Bud lives up in them there hills." He pointed to the distance beyond the trees and shrubbery surrounding the Press' office where the mountains were fairly visible. "He's Scotch-Irish. He came from Scotland some ten years ago. Anyway, he's good for my potato supply."

The rest of that day was rather uneventful. There were still four days to go before the next issue of the paper would come out. When I had finished redistributing the type, Mr. Bixby, instead of giving me more work to do, relaxed once more at his keyboard and began a tale of more of Lonsdale's characters. At any rate, I was at a loss to see at the moment where Mr. Bixby was so pressed for work.

The story that my employer now told me dealt with Lil West and Slim Manville. Lil, it seemed, was Lonsdale's prize old maid. She had a very interesting history, especially the phase of her "career" which had to do with her affair with Slim Manville. Slim turned out to be a gambler of sorts, after he had put up a front as a fine, upright chap before Lil.

"Ever since then," Mr. Bixby concluded, "Lil has led the life of a recluse. But she's given the village a lot of chance for gossip. When I get the chance, Joe, I'll tell you some of the stories that have been circulating about her."

In the four remaining days before the "deadline" I was to discover that a country weekly office can really become a teeming, busy place. I was to discover, too, the real Lonsdale. It was, by and large, a fine village nestled in the mountains amidst farms and populated by the "mighty nice families" of which Mr. Bixby had spoken. Last but not least, I was to get to know, in time, my genial, interesting employer. And to know Mr. Samuel Bixby, country editor and gentleman, was to like and admire him.

Far Eastern Picture

By Ernest K. Lindley

LINDLEY

AMERICAN AID to China, about which much has been heard but little done, is beginning to take substantial form.

Several shiploads of materials recently have reached Burmese ports, and more are on the way. They include steel, copper, lead and other metals and explosives to supply Chinese arsenals, airplanes, trucks and large quantities of asphalt. About 100 fighter planes of the Curtiss P-40 type, and a number of training planes have already been consigned, and more than 100 American Army pilots have already volunteered for service as instructors with the Chinese army.

One of the first big tasks to be undertaken with American aid is the surfacing of the entire length of the Burma road, making it a dependable all-weather supply route. And Daniel G. Arnstein, of the Terminal Taxicab Co. of New York, is en route to take over the difficult job of reorganizing the Chinese motor transport service. Experts believe that in six months the quantities of supplies carried over the Burma road can be increased three or four fold.

WITHIN a few days the appointment of an American political adviser to Generalissimo Chang Kai-shek will be announced. He will be a man who knows well both China and American policy with regard to it.

Plans are in the hopper for more aid on an expanding scale in months to come. There is no sign yet that the Administration is going to modify its Far Eastern policy.

The revival of suggestions that the time has arrived to reach a peaceful settlement with Japan is being rather generally discouraged.

Similar suggestions were heard a year ago, when the downfall of France and the peril of England led many to believe that we would soon have to withdraw our fleet from the Pacific to check a greater menace in the Atlantic. Japan moved into Indo-China, but has not attempted the attack on the East Indies or Singapore which would mean war with Great Britain, and probably with us.

Unless Japanese policy is sharply revised, it seems unlikely that ours will be. As this is written, the Japanese government has not revealed what it intends to do as a result of the Nazi attack on Russia. A few prophets have been predicting privately that within a few days the Japs would move against Russia.

BUT THE policy-makers whose forecasts have been right most often during the last several years believe that the Japanese are too confused and weak to take new major risks. The Japanese ambition to take the Maritime Provinces, and indeed all of eastern Siberia back to Lake Chad, is an old one. But the Russian forces in the Far East are considerable, and include submarines—perhaps as many as 60 or 70—and bombing squadrons which almost certainly would make bonfires out of Tokyo and other Japanese cities. These forces are supplied to a large extent by new armament and munitions plants east of the Urals. Even if, or when, the Russians caved in in Europe, an attack on the Russian forces of Siberia might be a serious undertaking for the Japanese. However, the Japs would certainly be uneasy if the Germans arrived on the Pacific, either in person or vicariously through a puppet regime in Moscow, and if Western Russia falls to the Nazis a Japanese invasion of Siberia becomes almost obligatory.

Although important units of the American fleet have been moved into the Atlantic during the last several weeks, their place has been taken, in a sense, by stronger ground and air forces in Malaya, the East Indies, the Philippines, as well as Hawaii. Our top officials have gone on the theory that the Japanese would not risk a major assault in the south unless the Germans eliminated the British from the Middle East and got access to the Indian Ocean via the Red Sea and Persian Gulf. Even then the withdrawal of substantial British naval forces to Singapore might stay the Japanese hand. Now the prospect of picking a Russian plum also works against a southward move.

IT IS GENERALLY hoped, of course, that the Japanese will see the risk of collaboration with Germany. If the Germans lose, the Japanese will risk the loss of everything. If the Germans win, especially after getting control of Russia, Japan will be only a satellite. So the argument runs, and there are many signs that it has made an impression in Japan.

This line of reasoning is advanced by those who now advocate prompt settlement with Japan. But others who follow it to a point see no reason for proposing a settlement, and many reasons against it. They do not believe the Japanese are ready to give up their ambition to conquer Greater East Asia—much less to get out of Indo-China and China. Nor do they believe that any special concessions are needed to keep the Japanese relatively quiet.

Thus the Administration policy with regard to Japan is still to temporize: to avoid actions or words so hostile as to leave the Japanese no alternative to collaboration with the Nazis, but to increase aid to China and to make the Japs realize that an assault on Singapore or the East Indies—so long as the British and ourselves are not compelled to concentrate solely on the Atlantic—means a major war and probably ultimate destruction of Japan as an armed power.

Fair Enough

The Teamsters

THE TEAMSTERS have been celebrating a strike in Pittsburgh, which is, of course, one of the most important centers of defense industry in the entire country. The dispute, which involves a question of wages, has been ornamented with the usual sluggings and burnings, and a politically indifferent local Government and an incompetent police force have offered no protection to citizens who displease the union thugs nor any resistance to the criminals themselves. Acts of wanton brutality and vandalism which, done by George Spelvin, the average American, would land him in prison and disgrace his family are tolerated as ordinary behavior, and the teamsters in Pittsburgh, as elsewhere, enjoy a special privilege to slug, burn and deny the use of the public streets and highways to citizens who pay taxes for their maintenance and for the salaries of the cops.

As a special concession to the law-abiding element of the American population the licensed banditti of the A. F. of L. have agreed not to prevent delivery to industrial plants of materials required in the production of weapons and other tools and wares intended for the defense of the Nation. In so doing they have, of course, claimed and asserted a right to prevent by violence, including sabotage, assault and arson the movement through the public streets and over the highways of other goods which cannot be conscientiously certified as defense materials.

And the people of the community are so thoroughly subdued by a long record of such criminality that they do not even question the justice of this program, or, if they do question it, they nevertheless submit to the fact that the teamsters are a law unto themselves and that their charter, from Mr. Tobin's international headquarters in Indianapolis, amounts to a license to commit crime. In Pittsburgh, as in Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Minneapolis and many other cities, the people have seen the power of Government slip from the hands of their elected local and State governments into those of licensed thugs who enjoy recognition and approval from the Supreme Court of the United States, Congress and the Executive branch of the National Government.

A FEW DAYS ago the W. W. Patterson Co., manufacturers of tackle blocks and related devices and gadgets, received notice that a shipment had arrived by railroad. The company, which is not involved in the teamsters' dispute with their employers, desired delivery of this material for use in a job undertaken for the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, which, in turn, is turning out national defense orders.

In order to obtain the goods from the railroad yard the Patterson company first had to call on Lieut. Richard P. Brown, of the Pittsburgh ordnance district of the War Department, who wrote an official letter to the business agent of Local 249 of the teamsters certifying that the material "is used in the fulfillment of defense orders," and adding that "your cooperation in securing the release of this material will be appreciated."

In other words, the War Department of the United States here is pleading with the teamsters not to indulge in its usual lawless conduct as a special favor to the National Government.

The letter was taken to the union office and there okayed by one H. Rosenthal, but W. W. Patterson, jr., who presented the request for safe conduct, was then informed that he must apply for another visa at the office of another local union. At this place, when it appeared that not all of the materials in the consignment had yet arrived, the citizen-supplicant was told to "come and see me again in a few days," and that was as far as he could get with Mr. Dan Tobin's invisible government.

IN THE COURSE of this routine mob action by licensed thugs of the union racket it has been disclosed or recalled that the honorable secretary-treasurer of Local 249, Mr. Scott Marshall, is a criminal who was sentenced to two years on probation—not two years nor even two hours in prison—in 1935 for wrecking and burning a big truck on a public highway by way of enforcing his union's rule.

Charged with assault with a gun, burning and aggravated assault, he pleaded guilty but, nevertheless, was allowed to go free, although he had previously been indicted for possessing explosives and charged with injuring a man with a brick. Not only was he set free but he was also licensed to carry a pistol while still on parole.

The present strike apparently is coming to a close now, but the conduct of the union since June 1 has prevented the delivery of goods through the streets and over the roads, except by truckers holding union passports, and the blockade has held up not only nondefense wares legally in transit but many materials indirectly intended for defense.

This is no spectacular outrage as union conduct goes but an ordinary manifestation of the familiar union policy of "the public be damned!"

Concerning Our All-Out-Aid Policy

SULLIVAN

THIS WEEK the United States took a step not fully understood at the time by one American out of a thousand. It is a step we can still retrace, without harm. If not retraced, it will bring consequences of the gravest cost.

When, last Sunday, Hitler attacked Russia, the news brought startled anxiety to statesmen all over the world. To many it brought imperative demand for decision between two courses. The one upon whom the dilemma pressed most sharply was Prime Minister Churchill of Britain.

Mr. Churchill faced the dilemma firmly, acted forthrightly. Within 18 hours he announced Britain's decision. Facing one sharp horn, he said, "No one has been a more consistent opponent of communism than I have for the last 25 years. I will unsay no words that I have spoken about it."

THEN, with moving eloquence, Mr. Churchill drew a distinction, wholly persuasive and largely valid, between communism and the Russian people—between communism as a form of government and simple Russian soldiers guarding their native land. Then Mr. Churchill announced his decision: "But now I have to declare the decision of His Majesty's government. We must speak out now, at once, without a day's delay . . . Any man or state who fights against Nazidom will have our aid . . . That is our policy and that is our declaration. It follows, therefore, that we shall give whatever help we can to Russia and the Russian people."

For that announcement Mr. Churchill had justification—we can sense the confusion upon him from the eloquent urgency of his words. He and his country were under the guns, their position near to desperate. To them came an ally. Even though Stalin came not by choice, but by necessity, Britain must embrace him. For military advantage Mr. Churchill must announce help for him, cooperation with him, must seem to appreciate him. For this course Mr. Churchill had British tradition to support him. Often, in Eutropean power politics, Britain has supported a country or statesman it did not approve for the sake of preserving balance of power on the continent.

IN THE UNITED STATES, upon President Roosevelt there was no such compulsion as upon Mr. Churchill. We had no such relation to the war as Britain has, Mr. Roosevelt no such responsibility as Mr. Churchill. Our Government could have kept silent, without effect one way or another—no one would have noticed our silence.

But Mr. Roosevelt spoke. In a spirit similar to Mr. Churchill's, our Government condemned communism as such, but declared that Russia is now opposing Hitler. Mr. Roosevelt concluded, the United States would give all possible aid to Russia.

Our statement was unnecessary. It could have no usefulness, for Stalin would fight as hard as he could in self-interest, without any approving pat on the back from us. The statement could be only a gesture, for it is not practicable for us to give material aid to Russia—our resources are not able to give all we would like to give, and are formally committed to give, to Britain.

Our statement was affirmatively and concretely damaging. The words which described our Government's assurance to Russia, blazoned in headline and radio's were "all possible aid." And it happens these are the words habitually used, almost officially used, to describe what we do for Britain. Roosevelt's utterance made an impression that we seemed to take toward Russia the same relation that we have to Britain.

AMONG unfortunate effects of that impression, it may, if not corrected, imperil our future help to Britain. It may make Congress and the country hesitant to go on. We started out to help Britain—and now find ourselves helping Russia! It justifies those who argue we may be involved even further in situations we cannot foresee and would not willingly get into.

Our statement can have no practical effect on Moscow. But it can have a most serious effect on Moscow in the United States. How can we say we are going to help Stalin—and at the same time go on with our prosecution of Stalin's agents in the United States? Give aid to the head of communism in the world—but keep in jail the head of communism in the United States, Earl Browder?

"The all aid to Russia" policy was thoughtless. We can withdraw from it and ought to.

'Washington Post's March'

(Reprinted from The Houston Post of June 16, 1941.)

Eight years ago last Friday Eugene Meyer became owner and publisher of The Washington Post. In a statement to the public he said:

"It will be my aim and purpose steadily to improve The Post and to make it an even better paper than it has been in the past. It will be conducted as an independent paper, devoted to the best interests of the people of Washington and vicinity, and hopes to have their interest and support."

During the past eight years, space devoted to news in The Post increased 68 per cent. Circulation rose from 51,534 to 140,586, and there was an increase of 111 per cent in advertising lineage.

Mr. Meyer's formula for journalistic success was simple and old-fashioned—put out a better newspaper. He did not consider it necessary to be either clever or sensational, but he placed a premium on journalistic honesty.

The Washington Post spurns the methods of the yellow rags, but it gains new readers and increasing business patronage by presenting a lively, well-edited news report, intelligent, fearless but fair editorial comment, and by generous support of civic, cultural and charitable movements.

The public response to The Washington Post's wholesome program is encouraging, especially in these times when the press, like other free institutions, is under world-wide attack and is subjected increasingly to both economic and political pressure.

At a time when a tendency to get away from journalistic fundamentals long held in respect is only too apparent, The Washington Post's success is heartening to newspaper people everywhere.

The Houston Post is happy to join in the congratulations which are being showered upon Mr. Meyer and members of The Washington Post staff who share the credit for accomplishments of the past eight years.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

'Manoovers'

Dear Ma:

I was sorry to hear dad is not feeling two good and I will try to send you some of them pills witch the Army gives out for everything so you can try them on him. I have not got no idea what is in the pills witch we all call the All Out Defense Pill, but like I told you once before, the Army gives it to us for everything from a headache to a broken rib. Whatever this Army is short of it ain't short of these partikular pills and it could afford to lease or lend em to somebody.

Well, we are getting down to business more and more every day. I was just reading where General McNair, chief of staff G. H. Q., is cutting out all the Bedtime Story angels from manoovers. Witch is why I ain't seen no jeep with a flag to denote that he is a tank lately and no signs on open lots to denote that we are supposed to imagine they are held by a enemy. And it is a long time since I seen the Army hiking over a bridge witch is marked demolished in plain English.

When a bridge was marked demolished we used to just lay around in the field for a couple hours to indicate a laps of time after witch we would imagine the bridge was all fixed up again but when a bridge is marked destroyed now it means positively and to get across for the rest of the battle we half two wade, swim or ask a duck for a hitchhike.

This is a good idea becuz if we go to war and run up against a bridge that aint there at all we will not just sit around and wonder if it is official. I am learning how to ford streams and when I say ford I do not mean you do it in a flivver. To ford a river means to get across it with no help from a bridge or a ferryboat. The only time I ever tried to fool around a river without no boat or bridge was once when I lost a dollar golf ball in a stream on a public links and kept wading around becuz I couldn't afford to lose it.

We have to ford these rivers with our clothes on and if you think a Army uniform is a swim suit you are crazy. It is a good deal like trying to get somewhere wearing a life preserver full of flatirons. Now in the movie pictures no matter if a man falls into a river or a ocean he always comes out perfectly dry without even his hair wet but I don't see how it is done and I gess it is a fake becuz in my outfit there is a movie actor and a director and whenever we cross any river they get drenched like the rest of us and don't dry out no sooner.

At first I did not like crossing rivers with my clothes on but now I am used to it and it may get to be such a habit that after I get out of the Army and back home again it will be hard for me to use a bridge when I see one.

Another thing witch has been abolished is the busting up of a war manoover at night so the boys can get a good night's sleep. I gess we was getting the idea that even in a war we could quit sharp at 9 p. m. daylight saving and just hang out a Do Not Disturb sign on the tent in case a enemy didn't go to bed early two. In other words the baloney is being cut out of all training and I ain't even seen a ice wagon with a sign denoting it is a super tank lately.

Well, I will close now and send some of them pills for dad as soon as I can get some and I can get some by pretending that I have either a little dandruff trouble or a dislocated hip.

Your loving son, OSCAR.

P. S.—I don't get no letters from Mabel Gilhooley lately. Does she live at the old address?

There is a strike among the workers in a diaper service plant. And it is the hope of all parents that they won't be picketed while changing the baby.

This department, defying the trend, must admit it doesn't think John Cudahy's writing style is half bad. It is almost epochal in that it gives a reasonably fair picture of the person being interviewed instead of just a technicolor portrait of the person doing the interviewing.

But we don't know what John means when he describes Hitler's hair as being "a mouse brown." Anybody seen any brown mice lately?

Gas rationing cards are likely. And Elmer Twitchell says he never thought he'd see the day when it would be necessary for a car to show a card in order to get a drink.

Tokyo's Dilemma

By Barnet Nover

Japan And The Russo-German War

NOVER

YOSUKE MATSUOKA must be wondering today whether the kiss of friendship which Josef Stalin planted on his cheeks in the Moscow railroad station last April was not actually a kiss of death.

The Japanese foreign minister was very proud of the nonaggression treaty he had brought back with him from the Soviet capital. He regarded it as a diplomatic triumph. And there is no doubt that for a time it served him in good stead.

During his absence from Tokyo, Matsuoka's critics had been very active. Voices were being raised, asking whether Japan had not placed her head in a noose by aligning herself so completely with Germany and Italy. Had Matsuoka come back empty-handed from his trip to Europe, his political doom would have been sounded. Instead, he was able to boast that he had succeeded in doing what Japanese statesmen had been trying to achieve for a long time, namely, free Japan's hands in the north so that she might more effectively be able to proceed with her complicated campaign in the south. There was also the possibility that Russia would implement her new-found friendship for the island empire by stopping the flow of supplies to China and thus hastening the end of China's resistance.

WHATEVER ELSE it means for Japan, the German attack on Russia means a loss of face for Matsuoka. It suggests that Hitler did not think well enough of his Japanese ally to keep Tokyo informed as to Germany's military plans. In fact, even while the German high command was preparing the assault on the Soviet Union, Hitler, if his statement of June 22 is to be credited, was urging Japan to come to terms with Russia. Yet obviously there was no need for Japan to sign a non-aggression treaty with the Soviet if, two months later, the latter was to be involved in a tremendous war. Certainly as long as Russia is at war with Germany she constitutes no threat to Japan. On the other hand, the nonaggression pact creates at least a psychological barrier in the way of a Japanese attempt to gain territorial advantages at Russia's expense at this time.

WE CAN ASSUME, however, that if Japan felt it safe to attack Russia, the non-aggression pact would not long stand in her way, even though the ink on that document is hardly dry.

Expansion to the north has long been the objective of a powerful group in the Japanese army. In the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-05 the cry was "On to Baikal!" During the period of the Russian civil war in 1918, Japan sent a large expeditionary force to Siberia, ostensibly to help the Czecho-Slovak army then seeking to cut its way to the Pacific with the ultimate purpose of reaching the western front in France. The actual purpose was to gain possession of the maritime province, Northern Sakhalin and Kamchatka. During recent years hundreds of border clashes have occurred on the frontier dividing Soviet from Japanese-occupied territory in northeastern Asia.

BUT JAPAN cannot try another Siberian venture at this time without (a) liquidating the war in China now about to enter its fifth year, and (b) abandoning, at least for the time being, any hope of hegemony over the Dutch East Indies and Malaya. Germany is an infinitely more powerful nation than Japan. But Hitler himself has confessed that Germany did not feel able to carry out an attack on Great Britain while the Russian army immobilized a large German force in the east. And the war on Russia has resulted in an almost complete cessation of aerial attacks on the British Isles. Japan certainly cannot fight in China, take on the job of clearing the Russian army out of Eastern Siberia, and proceed with the conquest of the Dutch East Indies all at the same time.

Japan thus faces a difficult choice of objectives. If she proceeds with the attempt to seize the wealth of the Indies, she not only faces the possibility of a long and difficult campaign whose successful outcome can by no means be assured, but also the possibility that, while so engaged, Germany may win over Russia and Nazi control be extended to the Pacific. There is no reason to believe that Japan would prefer Germany to Russia as her northern neighbor. On the other hand, to abandon the policy of Southward Ho! and adopt a forward policy with reference to Eastern Siberia would have its real hazards.

IN THE FIRST PLACE there is still a Russian force in the East and it may be strong enough to do considerable damage to a Japanese invading force.

The Battle of Changkufeng gave the Japanese a healthy respect for the Red army. But there is the additional consideration that were Japanese embroiled in Siberia, the hope of acquiring the oil and rubber and tin of the Dutch East Indies would have to be shelved for some time. In the meantime Japan would be more vulnerable to American economic pressure than ever.

The only valid argument ever advanced as to why this Nation should continue to supply Japan with gasoline and other essential supplies is that if these supplies are withheld Japan might, in desperation, launch an attack on the Dutch colonies. If the latter possibility were definitely ruled out by the turn of events then, obviously, the reason for this country's pursuing toward Japan a policy so completely inconsistent with our aid-to-China policy would disappear.

It is fair to assume, therefore, that, for the time being Japan will watch the Russo-German struggle from an uneasy seat on the sidelines hoping to gain at least a temporary advantage by the reduction or cessation of Russian supplies to China which may result from Russia's involvement in a major war. Now more than ever Japan is isolated. Why, in the face of Japan's difficulties this country should appease her, as some suggest, is very hard to see.

Russia, Largest Nation, Has 175 Different Peoples

In attacking the Soviet Union, the Germans have challenged the world's largest nation, points out a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"The Soviet Union (including the territories of Poland, the three Baltic countries and Bessarabia, occupied since the autumn of 1939) has an area between two and a half and three times the size of continental United States. It has a population of more than 193,000,000.

"To World Traveler Humboldt, Russia was a land 'as big as the face of the moon.' It takes 11 hours for the sun to cross it; ten days for the traveler to go by rail from Moscow to Vladivostok.

"Stretching from the Baltic to the Pacific, from the Arctic Ocean to the Black Sea, the Soviet Union includes more than 175 different racial groups, speaking almost as many languages and dialects. It is master, in Europe and Asia, of an enormous treasure chest of natural resources, many of which have hardly been tapped.

Has 21 Per Cent of World's Coal

"Soviet authorities estimate their coal deposits at more than one and a half trillion tons, or 21 per cent of the world's known supplies. Iron ore reserves are figured at more than ten and a half billion tons; oil at six and a third billion tons. The latter vital material of war and industry is recovered not only from the well-known fields in the Caucasus near Baku, but also from Central Asia, along the Volga River, and on the rich Pacific Island of Sakhalin, owned jointly with Japan. Soviet Russia ranks after the United States in the production of petroleum.

"Manganese, used to harden steel and therefore valuable in munitions making, is another important product of the U. S. S. R. In one recent year its output totaled nearly 3,000,000 tons. Gold, platinum, nickel, copper, zinc, lead, bauxite and salt are among other leading Soviet minerals found in large quantities.

"In addition to underground wealth, the Union has the world's largest timber reserves, with tremendous quantities of fur-bearing animals ranging its northern woods. It operates extensive fisheries, including the world-famous sturgeon industry, source of caviar. It has an estimated potential water power of some 65,000,000 horsepower, and an industrial plant which turns out mass production articles from buttons to boilers, pastries to tanks, glasses to airplanes.

Leads in Wheat Acreage

"Still more important in national economy are the food resources, obtained from vast stretches of fertile soil. Soviet Russia leads the world in wheat acreage, with more than 100,000,000 acres planted in 1937. Besides wheat, other diet items in Russia's larder include rich crops of rye, barley, oats, corn, sugar beets; with fruits and vegetables added from southern regions; rice from Central Asia, and various plant products from remoter republics of the Union. More than 120,000,000 metric tons of grain alone were harvested in the Soviet Union in 1937."

U. S. Faces Supreme Choice Now, Says Ickes; Aid to Russia Urged

By the Associated Press

Hartford, Conn., June 26.—Secretary Ickes declared tonight the American people must "make their supreme choice" now "whether we are willing to buy a craven's truce" or "work, sacrifice, fight and die, if need be, for liberty."

"This is a war for liberty," the Interior Secretary said. "If we win it, we may live, but at any rate we will pass on to our children, undamaged, the great heritage that has come to us from our fathers. If—God forbid!—we lose the war, some of us may live, but those who do would much better be dead."

Ickes made his remarks in an address prepared for delivery before a meeting sponsored by the "Fight for Freedom" Committee and the "Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies."

While declaring that "Democracy and Stalin today have nothing in common save the enmity of Hitler," Ickes said practical considerations dictated that "Russia, undoubtedly weaker than Germany, should be aided so that Hitler will be required to waste greater quantities of men and more pieces of equipment, thereby weakening him in his struggle with the democratic forces."

Declaring "Hitler has us on his list of the doomed," Ickes said. "We must use more than words in defense of our liberty. We must offer in full measure the sweat and blood and tears that the heroic English have been yielding at the call of Churchill."

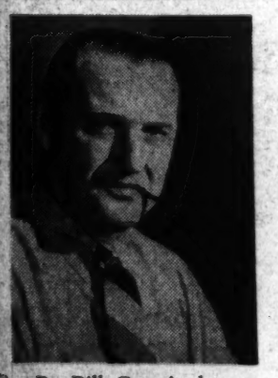
Bill Cunningham's Column: Submarine Disaster Arouses New England Wrath



By Bill Cunningham

An imagination as elastic as Herr Hitler's conscience can't be stretched to cover the sending of 33 young Americans to their deaths in an antiquated sardine can such as that rickety submarine O-9 which dropped into that deep hole off Portsmouth, N. H. We're vis-a-vis with crisis, according to a lot of gents who ought to know, and the Navy may have to move in and do the preliminary body punching, but even if actual shooting were on, the crisis still wouldn't be acute enough to justify that sort of performance.

That primitive relic of the last war had about as much business in deep water as an electric light bulb in a pressure machine. If they were going dive it at all, they should have chosen the bed of some not-too-deep river or some shallow inlet such as the closer reaches of Buzzard's Bay off Cape Cod.

We've got to train men, of course, but that's not training them; that's drowning them.

We, of New England, are pretty sensitive to that type of marine horror story. They seem, unfortunately, to be almost unique with us. We've had the S-4 down off Provincetown, the celebrated Squalus disaster, and sundry other mishaps and alarums down through the years. It's come to pass where New England newspapermen are almost as expert in the knowledge of salvage operations as the approved Navy specialists themselves.

Photographer Outguessed Experts

That's not just a bold, free-hand statement. There chances to be a striking piece of photographic proof. It's that sensational and prize-winning shot a Boston newspaper photographer named Jimmy Jones got of the stern of the Squalus shooting straight up into the air from the depths of her watery grave.

Standing around on the death watch over previous disasters, Jimmy had seen enough to make him believe that they'd up-end the Squalus, but they'd never float her on even keel with the processes they were using on that water-logged monster. So he chartered a boat and stayed at the rail for 13 long hours near a certain spot out there on that rolling ocean. His camera was constantly aimed at the area where he figured precisely it would happen.

At long last, with a mighty roar and gigantic geyser of sea water, the stern of the stricken vessel shot up from the deep and stood as straight as the Washington Monument in the air for perhaps five seconds before heeling over and dropping back to Davy Jones again. That's when Jimmy got his shot that won all the acclaim. What he was after was the picture, not credit for outguessing the Navy, but he got that, too, if only incidentally.

Horror Of Slow Death

When you stand straight up against one of these stories, it's pretty horrible. This one was horrible, mostly because it was so utterly futile from the first. There's something about a man, or a few men trapped in a situation that can only mean slow death that has quicker appeal than the story of many more men killed suddenly and savagely in battle.

Remember Floyd Collins in that Kentucky Cave?

There's always a lot of that in a submarine tragedy. All of us who've worked on them know the brutal rest . . . the faces of the mothers and fathers and wives, the stunned expressions of the girls they were about to marry. They line the shore at the spot nearest the watery grave and stand helplessly by, their faces asking the same mute question of every sailor, officer or reporter who comes ashore from "the scene of the salvage operations."

And out there where the searchlights play upon that black and tumbling water, with the buoys bobbing darkly to mark the location, with the divers, the winches, the derricks, the grim faces of the officers forming a pattern of desperation, as the hours pass and hope slides away without anybody's having the courage to mention the fact that it's going . . .

It's wicked enough even when there's normal excuse. This is dangerous work, and accidents will happen. But because it is dangerous and because accidents do happen, they should at least send our lads into such risk in something more substantial than a zinc strawberry crate that was new 23 years ago. We don't face that amount of emergency—not yet.

Conference to Solve Parking Issue Called

Abolition of the post of District coroner and the establishment of the office of medical examiner with a staff of chemists was advocated yesterday by Walter L. Fowler, District Budget Director and member of the three-man board which today begins a thorough probe of procedure used by the Metropolitan Police Department.

Outgrowth of the recent crime wave, the investigation will parallel a probe by the House District Committee on police and fire, headed by Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana.

The 45-year-old budget officer, who has a long record of accomplishments connected with Police Department probes, said he has always been of the opinion that an office of medical examiner should be established in the Police Department.

Noted for Past Inquiries

Fowler's colleagues on the probe committee are Assistant Engineer Commissioner Beverly C. Snow and Disbursing Officer James Lusby.

In 1928, as chairman of the police trial board, Fowler became familiar with police procedures. The following year Fowler acted as prosecutor in the Burlingame and Shelby cases, in which two police officials were involved.

Throughout the following years Fowler often was appointed by the Commissioners to investigate various department heads and was instrumental in ousting several officials.

He has some definite ideas on improving the efficiency of the department, but said he enters this study with an open mind. He feels, however, that detectives, who are always selected from the rank and file privates, should undergo special training similar to the courses given the FBI agents. He also questions why detectives are selected from privates. He said the FBI secures their men from real estate offices or in insurance firms, men who have had careers in investigative work.

Wants Thorough Job

Fowler is an energetic man and wants to wade into the probe with "everything."

"I want to do a thorough job with no stones left untouched," he said.

Maj. Snow, an active member of the United States Army Engineer Corps, feels the new task will be his chief work for months. Already loaded with regular District work, Maj. Snow said he considered this latest assignment of the "utmost importance."

Well-liked for his splendid record in municipal government affairs, Maj. Snow admits he has never had any experience in investigations, but promises to find out "what's what." A graduate of West Point in 1918, Maj. Snow has served at various Army posts and taught military tactics and science at the University of Alabama for four years.

Maj. Lusby, who has disbursed hundreds of millions of dollars for the District and United States Army in his 24 years as disbursing officer, is from the "old school."

He, too, has never participated in a study of a municipal agency before. But he recalls the days when the police on the beat had the respect of the citizens and when all was serene with the department.

Maj. Lusby likes the idea of modern scientific methods and is a strong advocate of the crime laboratory. He favors a thorough training period for all policemen "in real police work."

A consensus of opinion among the three men on what is needed to increase the efficiency of our police may be summed up as follows:

An increased police force; longer and more intensive training period; another and special training period for detectives; selection of detectives from other rolls in addition to the United States Civil Service rolls; a crime laboratory; a chief medical examiner for the police force; perhaps increased salaries and an education program to the public to stress cooperation with the police.

"This is a fact-finding board and we are not going into this work to attack the Police Department," Maj. Lusby said. "We merely want to establish the facts."

Abandoned Auto Investigated

CAR FOUND IN MARYLAND—Prince Georges County and Washington police last night were examining this auto for blood stains. The sedan, a high-powered car, was found yesterday in a wooded section near Oxon Hill, Md., by a Washington Post reporter. It was noted that the car had no license plates, that it was splattered with mud as if it had been driven through a rain storm. A man's clothing, bearing the label of a Washington tailor, were found soiled and wrinkled in the auto's trunk. The back of the front seat appeared to be splattered with blood

Dirksen Fears Unwieldy Probe Of Police, Asks 1-Man Inquiry

Study of Metropolitan Police efficiency by an expert in police administration was recommended last night by Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, ranking minority member of the House District Committee.

Dirksen urged this form of police investigation for Washington as an alternative to the survey to start at 10 a. m. today before an enlarged Police Subcommittee in the House.

Unless the subcommittee obtains the services of an expert—possibly from the crime school at Northwestern University or the Federal Bureau of Investigation—the subcommittee survey is apt to become a "fishing expedition and likely to prove as fruitless as the investigation we had several years ago," Dirksen said.

About all that can be expected by examination of police officials, Dirksen said, is "excessive utilization of volumes of white paper in the printing of a useless report."

Dirksen, who opposed the investigation as ordered in an executive meeting of the District Committee Monday, declared:

"I could write the report now without listening to a lot of testimony. Major Brown will say everything will be all right only if Congress will give him enough men. The vice squad chief will tell us that first what he needs is a law with teeth in it, then that he isn't getting the results he should when he takes his cases into court and then that he, too, needs more men.

Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, chairman of the investigating subcommittee, declared however that he was certain results obtained will be of "immense benefit" provided the inquiry is not rushed. When the inquiry program was outlined by the subcommittee earlier this week, Schulte indicated that services of an expert might be used before the investigation is closed. He made it clear, however, that he would not countenance employment of "stool pigeons."

Dirksen said he favored an undercover or executive inquiry. He declared:

"How can you hope to uncover anything with screaming headlines telling everybody how you are going to investigate them. You don't take searchlights and a car with a siren to find a burglar."

Inspector James F. Beckett will be the only witness before the subcommittee today, Schulte said.

Lynch Mob Quits Just Because Man May Not Be Guilty

Eastman, Ga., June 26 (U.P.).—When a Negro with a rope around his neck still maintained he had not criminally assaulted a white woman, a mob of more than 500 men decided he might not be guilty and returned him to jail here, instead of hanging him.

Sheriff J. C. Lewis, of Dodge County, today said members of the mob overpowered him and took the Negro, Eddie Lee Spivey, from the jail, where he was being held on suspicion of having attacked a 61-year-old farm woman.

The mob returned the Negro an hour later.

Women Seek Pistol Practice To Guard Against Sex Fiends

Alarmed over the prevailing sex crimes in Washington, "a number of prominent women" have urged Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, civic leader, to organize a women's pistol club in which they could gain shooting instruction for their protection.

Mrs. Wright, former president, Forest Hills Citizens Association, now secretary of the Northwest Citizens Council, said one woman making the request was the wife of a United States Senator whose name she could not disclose.

Declaring the streets to be unsafe for women, Mrs. Wright advocated that they train themselves so that in any event they can protect their homes while so many of their sons are away in their country's service.

She suggested that the police provide women who are employed alone in stores and offices—such as those in which one rape occurred on Tuesday—with appropriate weapons for their defense.

Mrs. Wright, who lives at 4000 Thirtieth Street Northwest, said she would see Federal Bureau of Investigation officials concerning use of the FBI pistol range for a woman's pistol club. She said she hopes to see steps taken toward opening the shooting range in the Woodrow Wilson High School.

She had no criticism to make of the Police Department. She believed it was doing all it could under the conditions and with facilities at its command.

fingerprinted, photographed and booked "for investigation." He was then taken to the homicide squad where he was stripped of his clothes. He was questioned at length by detectives and then taken to the office of Dr. Rosenburg, 1332 I Street Northwest, for chemical tests.

Meanwhile, Capt. Floyd Truscott, of Tenth Precinct, with two detectives went to suspect's home to search for clues. Truscott said he found no gun and no clothing that tallied with those described by the women and witnesses.

However, he took a quantity of clothing, including a pair of tan trousers. At the time of the holdups, the women said the thug was wearing a green shirt. It was reported that a gun, said to resemble the one used by the thug, was found by a boy in a school yard at Tenth and U Streets Northwest. Police are trying to locate the boy and the gun.

Suspect Appears Nervous

The suspect appeared very nervous and denied any knowledge of the crimes. He told police he is employed as a baker's helper at a Seventh Street bakery and works nights, getting off at 3 or 4 a. m.

Police reiterated their belief that the suspect is the gunman who has terrorized Northwest Washington recently.

The manhunt for the bandit was one of the most intensive in the annals of the Washington police department. Faced with the unsolved murder of Miss Strieff, the rape and robbery of Mrs. Abarca and the thwarted assault attempt on Miss Harper, Capt. Ira Keck, acting chief of detectives, had detailed a special squad of 14 detectives and more than 50 policemen on the case.

As the detectives checked in at the bureau yesterday morning they were assigned to cleaning establishments in Precincts Nos. 2, 6, 10 and 13. This area is bounded by Seventeenth Street Northwest and North Capitol Street and K Street North to the District line.

Area Thoroughly Combed

Other detectives and patrolmen were detailed to comb the area in automobiles with particular attention focused on Eleventh, Eighteenth, Fourteenth and Mount Pleasant Streets and Columbia Road. Meanwhile, Detective Sergts. Elmer Lewis and Dan Jones, of the robbery squad, picked up the two women at their homes—Mrs. Abarca at 8 a. m. and Miss Harper at 11 a. m. The only detectives not included in this detail were those assigned to the Strieff investigation and the Presidential detail at Washington Terminal.

Wholesale raids were made on juke joints, pool rooms and beer parlors. Scores of suspects had been taken into custody and questioned.

Keck, weary after many hours of work on the case, tersely declared:

"Up to now, this suspect is the man we have wanted. He has definitely been identified by the two women, and we feel certain he is our man. However, he will undergo a most thorough investigation."

Detectives last night questioned the girl friend of the suspect, checking on his story that he was with her at the times Mrs. Abarca was assaulted and Miss Harper was robbed. They are also trying to determine where he was on the day Miss Strieff disappeared from her apartment in the 2100 block Nineteenth Street Northwest.

The suspect will be viewed again at police headquarters some time today by the two women and also by P. J. Stains, Pepco employe, who saw a man run from the cleaning establishment where Miss Harper worked in the 1800 block Fourteenth Street Northwest. The suspect will be lined up with seven other colored men.

Second Man Identified

Another man, picked up in a police roundup, was identified by two young girls as the man who had attempted to attack them recently. He was held for investigation.

A 16-year-old colored boy was taken into custody last night when he attempted to dispose of a gray suit resembling the one stolen from the Fourteenth Street shop where Mrs. Abarca was employed. The woman told police the thug took a gray herringbone suit as he left the place. Another colored youth is also being questioned. Police believe the boys had been given the suit by the thief to sell.

As a result of widespread raids by police, nine suspects are being held in precincts. Most of the arrests were made in the area in which Miss Strieff lived and where her body was found, and where the recent holdups and assault took place. One suspect is held at No. 1, three at No. 2, one at No. 3, one at No. 6, two at No. 10 and one at No. 13.

Details of D. C. Manhunt

Here is the chronological order of events in the arrest of the suspect in robbery and attack cases:

8 a. m.—Detectives given assignments.

8:30 a. m.—Detective Sergts. Lewis and Jones pick up Mrs. Abarca. Miss Harper detained.

9 a. m.—Details to detectives completed. Take posts in laundry shops and vicinity.

9:15 a. m.—Detectives in automobiles comb all sections in the wide area, criss-crossing and redoubling on trail.

9:30 a. m.—Detective Jones slows down car near Fourteenth Street and Columbia Road for Mrs. Abarca to view possible suspect.

10:00 a. m. to noon—Detectives continue vigil in laundry establishments for bandit to enter.

11 a. m.—Detectives pick up Miss Harper.

1 p. m.—Detective Jones slows down car again for women to look at possible suspect in 2800 block Fourteenth Street Northwest.

2 p. m.—Women in car get tired and hungry. Suggest giving up search for present. Detectives ask for more time. Continue combing area and reach Georgia Avenue.

3:15 p. m.—Car reached intersection of Georgia Avenue and Hobart Place Northwest. Mrs. Abarca shouts: "Oh, my God! That's him!" Miss Harper also gasps exclamation and identifies suspect standing at intersection.

3:16 p. m.—Suspect taken into custody at gun point.

3:30 p. m.—Suspect taken to headquarters and held for investigation.

Prince Georges Police Hunt Man In Attack Effort

Prince Georges County police last night were seeking a young white man who attempted to drag a 12-year-old Seat Pleasant (Md.) girl into a woods near her home yesterday afternoon.

Irene Smith, 12 King Street, told Crpl. J. F. Dent, of the Prince Georges police, that she was walking toward her home when the man seized her by the arm, told her not to cry out, and began dragging her. She broke away from him and ran to her home.

The man was described as about 25, with dark curly hair, short and weighing about 150 pounds. He was wearing a yellow sport shirt and blue pants. When last seen he was on Central Avenue in Capitol Heights headed toward Washington.

Fish Is Inexpensive And Healthful Food

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Food Editor

ARE you making the most of the splendid fresh fish and sea food available to Washingtonians? The Chesapeake Bay region is the source of some of the finest fish in the world.

Almost any Capitolian hostess will have guests coming this summer from inland States whose first food yen is for sea food. Those who would serve something different to their guests will find fish the answer.

Martha Ellyn.

Few foods can furnish the quality and variety of nutritional factors produced in fishery products. Fish and shellfish are excellent sources of highly digestible proteins, are rich in vitamins, and contain an abundance of minerals in quantity and variety. Some fish are also high in fat. Seafoods are particularly notable for their iodine content, containing from 50 to 200 times as much iodine as foods from other sources. This one fact is of great importance to people living in regions where there is great prevalance of goiter due to the deficiency of iodine in the foods from the soils. Some fishery products are particularly rich in vitamins; for instance, the oils of fish livers are the most important source of Vitamin D, the "sunshine" vitamin.

The invalid too, whose hope of recovery lies in building up tissue and reserve, finds fish a most beneficial food which does not tax his digestive system and which his lowered assimilative powers make quickly available for bodily needs. Sea foods are recommended in the diets of both invalids and convalescent because their proteins (prime builders of body muscle and tissue) are almost completely digestible and have a high and excellent food value.

Still another good reason for buying fish is that it is an inexpensive food in Washington. There are many excellent kinds of fish to be had ranging in price from 10 to 25 cents a pound.

To buy good fish does not mean going to the phone and ordering "fish" without specifying whether it be fat or lean, rich or poor, firm or flabby, angelfish or devilfish.

Born and reared an inlander, my fish education had not been liberal. But when I came to Washington I was fortunate in meeting a fish dealer who was generous of his time and knowledge, so I learned many interesting things about our local fish from him. In checking with him yesterday I made the following findings about fish and shellfish now available in the markets:

Butterfish—Little silvery fish with white flesh, small bones, available in fish markets at 15 cents a pound. Their shallow flesh makes them fit only for frying and broiling whole.

Clams—Some of the finest in the world are taken from the waters at Hampton Roads, Va. Clams are now being sold at 20 to 25 cents a dozen. Popular clam dishes are soup, fritters, chowder, baked and fried.

Crabs—Excellent crabs taken from the Chesapeake Bay. The hard-shelled ones are in season, and are being sold at about 75 cents a dozen for the large ones. A crab should be alive when originally cooked. If the homemaker is to cook these, they must be handled with great care unless the smaller sides of the claws are unjointed. Otherwise painful injury may result. Crab cocktail, stuffed crabs, deviled crabs, Southern crab soup, crab gumbo are all delicious dishes that may be prepared from crabs.

Flounder—Two varieties taken from our Atlantic waters go by name of "gray sole" and "lemon sole." The latter is supposedly more flavorsome and delicate. This fish is usually baked, prepared in white wine or fried.

Hardheads—Species of bass. An economical buy, now sells for 10 cents a pound. Is moist, lean and of reddish color. Size ranges from ½ to 3 pounds. May be baked, fried or broiled.

Haddock—White fleshed, lean, flaky yet firm. Average size 3 to 6 pounds, making convenient size for baking. Made into fillets also. May be fried, cooked in cheese sauce, smothered, made into pudding and baked.

Lobster—American lobster belongs exclusively to Atlantic Coast. Lobsters are marketed both live and cooked in local fish markets. Cooked lobsters are being offered at a special price of 18 cents for a half pound lobster. Live lobsters sell for approximately 45 cents per pound at local markets. Lobsters are usually used for baking, broiling, boiled, made into lobster a la Newburg, salad, lobster thermidor, and many other varied dishes.

Red Snappers—A fish that is excellent for boiling. Sells for about 25 cents a pound. May be served with mushroom sauce or tomato sauce. Creole Court Bouillon is a zestful soup. May be baked leaving head and tail on, larded, stuffed with oyster stuffing, and baked with white wine, and a number of herbs and spices.

Rockfish—Atlantic rockfish weigh around 4 pounds and are good when boiled like cod, haddock or mackerel. Maryland boiled rockfish cooked slowly in court boullion for 20 minutes and served with egg sauce is a flavorsome dish.

Amount to Buy

How much fish to buy is often a question asked? If the fish is of solid flesh, one-third of a pound should be allowed for each person. If the fish is bought in the round (with bones, head, tail, etc.) at least one-half pound must be bought for each person to be served.

In selecting fish, it is well to remember that a fresh fish or one that was frozen while fresh, has full or bulging bright eyes, bright red gills, firm and elastic flesh and a fresh odor. Be sure that the flesh along the backbone smells fresh, for it spoils there first. Fresh fish sinks in fresh water. If it floats it should not be used. As soon as a fish comes from the market, clean it and put it into the refrigerator or other cool place until it is needed.

Mrs. Branson Thomas was hostess to some inland friends recently at a luncheon. Mindful of their yen for sea food she planned a sea food luncheon that included not only one sea food dish, but two. Her menu is given on this page. The following is the recipe she used for making the Baked Crab Imperial served on her menu:

Imperial Crab

Make a sauce of 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon celery salt, salt and pepper to taste, and a dash of cayenne or tabasco. Cook over "low" heat. Add 1 egg yolk, beaten, and cook 2 minutes more. Remove from heat and add 2 tablespoons sherry and almost 1 cup soft bread crumbs (reserving some for top of crab), 1 tablespoon minced parsley and 1 teaspoon chopped onion. Mix well with 2 cups crabmeat and place in a greased open baking dish. Sprinkle bread crumbs over top. Temperature, 375. Time, 1 hour.

Free Cook Book

For the second time within six months the Fishery Council has made a reprint of their Fish and Shellfish Cook Book. Most of the material in the fish cook book comes from the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior. This informative 32-page book is offered free to all readers of The Washington Post and may be secured by writing to the Fishery Council News Service, 204 Water Street, New York City.

Shore Dinner for Visiting Guests

Mrs. Branson Thomas, pictured here, entertained inland visitors recently with a marine luncheon. Her luncheon table expressed the serenity of quiet waters. A white luncheon set of runner and place mats fashioned in organdy and sheer linen carried out the nautical theme with tropical fish design. A pair of sea shells, filled with pink carnations, delphinium and yellow iris also added picturesqueness. The table was further complemented by International flat silver in the Royal Danish pattern, iridescent glass, stemmed seafood servers, crystal plates and glasses. A humorous note was the gray china mamma turtle and her six little ones.

Wives Don't Have to Look Overstuffed

By Ida Jean Kain

The married woman who made a fetish of catering to her beauty probably would not be worth her salt. And she would lose out, anyway, because she would be too interested in herself to be interesting to her life partner. But, all the same, keeping up in appearance is a sideline much more worthwhile than merely keeping up with the Joneses.

I have never been able to fathom any valid reason for the sharp division between the women who get their men and let themselves go and those who go on getting prettier. To back up this contention, there's proof in the person of Mrs. Lauritz Melchior, the wife of the famous singer.

The Melchoirs have been married for 16 years. By now she could be quite settled looking—say 20 pounds overweight and decidedly thick through the midriff.

Weighs Only 107 Pounds

But the contrary is true. She weighs only 107 pounds, which happens to be perfection for her diminutive frame, and has a superlatively streamlined figure.

You could point out that as the wife of a celebrity Mrs. Melchoir has every incentive to keep slim and lovely—but there are too many celebrities' wives who don't.

The surprising thing about her routine is its simplicity. She has never in her life had to diet for the very practical reason that she has always been on what some of you would dub a diet. She eats no sweets. She doesn't like desserts. She doesn't even like foods that are high in sugar, starch or fat. She takes no cream or sugar in her coffee. Of course, she eats bread—black Danish bread made with the whole grain.

Likes Meat

She eats lots of meat and declares that unless she has meat for a meal, she is hungry two hours later. In addition, she likes plenty of vegetables and salads.

As for the exercise—mountain climbing, which her husband also enjoys, is her favorite. She also likes tennis, swimming and horseback riding, but for the emergencies—the weeks when she is staying in New York at a hotel—she has a few calisthenics, good ones.

Being a thoroughly consistent person, her beauty tip is to try as many cosmetics as you please until you find the one that is perfect for you, then stick to that. She cleanses her face thoroughly each night with cold cream, leaves on a thin film about the eyes—for a wrinkle chaser—and next morning what remains of this serves as her foundation.

And there's the "beauty program" of a woman who seems to grow lovelier each year. Any one of you could follow a similar routine.

Berry Float Offers Variety In Summer Drinks

Warm days call for an increase in beverage variety—often, too, there's the need to make a beverage serve both as thirst quencher and refreshment. "Peach Nectar Berry Float" is that happy combination, which will comfortably fill many engagements this summer for children's party desserts and grownups' bridge refreshments. For service for six, you'll need just two of the small-sized 12-ounce cans of peach nectar. Chill these liquefied peaches right in the can.

Peach Nectar Berry Float—Combine 3 cups chilled peach nectar and 1½ cups crushed sweetened raspberries or blackberries and stir to blend. Pour into 6 to 8 tall glasses and add 1 pint vanilla ice cream by large spoonfuls; do not stir. This recipe may be varied by the substitution of apricot, peach-nectarine, pear or plum nectar of the whole-fruit variety. Serves 6 to 8.

Cook's Library

By MARTHA ELLYN

"COOK IT OUTDOORS," by James Beard, is a cookbook that will be a joy to those who have the urge to live and cook in the open air in the summer time. The author is one who has lived in the open and understands not only the healthy outdoor eating and cooking habits but also the subtle nuances of tricky flavoring.

The book, done in washable cloth binding, gives new ideas for the barbecue pit and the portable stove and suggests new sauces and stews that will enliven any outdoor party. There are also excellent ideas for the terrace and backyard, if you want to be an outdoor cook in the city.

Suggestions and sketches for equipping the outdoor kitchen and stocking the food shelves are also a feature of this book. The publishers are M. Barrows & Co., Inc. The price is $1.75.

"THE GARDEN CLINIC," by Laurence Blair, is different from other gardening books in that it is a practical how-to-do-it manual. A double page spread of line drawings with explicit directions show the various steps in the cultivation of each plant and the particular problems that beset the gardener. The text amplifies the drawings. Mr. Blair gives step-by-step methods of cultivation of approximately 100 garden favorites—including annuals, perennials, bulbs, evergreens, shrubs and flowering trees. Beginning with the time the plants, bulbs or seeds are received from the nursery, he tells by pictures and text, how to plant, when to water, prune and the best methods of controlling insects and disease. This is an excellent book to keep on the housewife's permanent shelf. Published by the Macmillan Co. The price is $2.

"THE ART OF JAPANESE GARDENS," by Loraine E. Kuck, is a beautifully illustrated book that any homemaker would do well to add to her permanent library. Written in a clear, concise style, the author begins her study of Japanese gardens in China, for the art began there. She interprets the development in terms of personalities—emperors, nobles, priests, conquerors and obscure laborers who made the gardens. Also, she relates the development to historical background, to oriental religion, philosophy, political events, to arts in general and to painting, architecture and tea ceremonials in particular. The book contains excellent suggestions for making rock gardens that duplicate the art and technique of a landscaped painting. Publishers are the John Day Co. Price, $5.

To Help Build Stronger Nation Use Wheat Foods

The Nutrition Division of the Office of Coordinator of Health, Welfare and Related Defense Activities, in a recent leaflet, "20 Questions on 'Enriched' Flour and Bread," makes the following statements concerning the utilization of wheat to help build a stronger nation:

"We have a superabundance of wheat in our country. Wheat foods are valuable foods. They supply food energy and protein at low cost.

"To be strong, people need an abundance of food energy and protein, and also of vitamins and minerals.

"Whole-wheat grains have in them a generous supply of some of the vitamins and minerals bodies need. When wheat grains are milled to produce white flour, a large part of the vitamins and minerals in whole-wheat grains is lost.

"Now millers and bakers are offering new 'enriched' flours and breads. This leaflet tells you what these 'enriched' products are and how you can use them.

"Standards for 'enriched' flour and bread which many millers and bakers are following were recommended by the Committee on Foods and Nutrition of the National Research Council, a group of nutritionists. Government standards for 'enriched' flour were proposed on April 1, 1941, but no Government standards have been set for 'enriched' bread.

"The recommended enrichment of flour and bread, which should cost consumers little or nothing, is designed especially to help in planning adequate low-cost meals, and in the interest of the health of the Nation."

Copies of this leaflet may be obtained by writing to the Nutrition Division of the Office of Coordinator of Health, Welfare, and related Defense Activities, Washington, D. C.

Fried Chicken Is a Glorious American Dish for the Fourth

By The Post Food Editor

FRIED chicken, with hot biscuits and gravy, is as American as Old Glory and the Fourth of July. With Old Glory waving on the lawn, and fried chicken and biscuits for dinner, you have the symbols of America—symbols of freedom and plenty.

Like the people in this great land, fried chicken and hot biscuits vary a bit from section to section. In the South, where biscuits and fried chicken have made culinary history, the biscuits are likely to be thin and crisp, delicately flaky inside. Each biscuit is small—usually less than two inches in diameter—and not much more than a half inch thick. In the North, biscuits are likely to be both higher and wider, the kind of biscuit at which Southerners scoff.

Vitamin Z Appeal

But large or small, tall or thin, hot biscuits are a perfect carrier for chicken gravy. This is a combination that certainly makes food disappear. It contains that irresistible appetite appeal that Paul V. McNutt, social security administrator, recently designated as vitamin Z. And speaking of vitamins, even the hot biscuits will do their patriotic part in making America well-nourished and strong if they are made with enriched flour.

Desserts that you can be giving consideration for the Fourth of July, whether the menu is a salad or fried chicken or baked ham, are the suggestions of Clara Gebhardt Snyder, director of the Wheat Flour Institute. These desserts were created in her test laboratory in Chicago. They are, Cherry Glaze Dessert for cherry fans and In-a-Bowl Blueberry Pudding, and Blackberry Roll.

In-a-Bowl Blueberry Pudding—Cream ¼ cup butter and ¾ cup sugar. Add 4 cups bread cubes (5 or 6 slices), ¼ cup water and 1 pint blueberries and thoroughly mix. The mixture should look rather dry. Fill into well-greased custard cups and bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, for 35 minutes. Serve warm or cold with cream. Yield: 6 servings.

Cherry Glaze Dessert—In a baking pan about 2 inches deep, 8 by 8 or 9 inches in diameter, melt 4 tablespoons butter. Mix ¾ cup sugar with 2 cups pitted red cherries and arrange evenly over bottom of pan. Spread the following batter over the cherries.

To make the batter, sift 1⅓ cups soft wheat flour, ⅓ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt together. Beat 1 egg and 2-3 cup milk and 3 tablespoons melted shortening. Add to flour mixture, stirring just enough to moisten flour well. Pour over cherries. Bake in moderately hot oven, 425 degrees, for 25 to 30 minutes. Yield: 1 cake, 8 by 8 by 2 inches. Serve warm or cook with or without cream.

Blackberry Roll—Sift 2 cups soft wheat flour and 1 teaspoon salt together. Cut in ½ cup shortening. Add 5 to 6 tablespoons cold water to make a stiff dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and roll out ¼ inch thick. Spread 2 cups blackberries over dough, sprinkle with 1 cup sugar and dot with butter, roll jelly roll fashion and prick with fork. Bake in shallow baking pan 45 minutes in moderate oven, 375 degrees. Serve hot or cold, with cream. Yield: 8 servings.

Japanese Beetles 'Attacking' District

Entomologist Tries New Trapping Plan To Lessen Plague

All the trouble with the Japanese isn't international—ask any gardener. There are literally millions of Nipponese headaches flying around right here in our own back yard.

About this time of the year, according to Dr. B. A. Porter, senior entomologist, Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, Department of Agriculture, the peaky little fifth columnists crawl out of the ground and start sabotaging rose bushes and leafy vegetation in general.

Japanese beetles landed here illegally in 1916 from the land of the Rising Sun and began their subversive activities in orchards around central New Jersey. The aliens during subsequent years chewed their way from leaf to leaf along the Atlantic Seaboard and multiplied rapidly.

During the winter the grubs of the Japanese beetle lie in the soil at depths of 2 to 8 inches—just waiting. Along about April they move nearer the surface and begin nibbling on the roots of plants.

During June they stop feeding, pass through a transformation stage and become adult beetles ready for their dirty work about this time of the year.

Beetle traps—those curious looking jars atop long poles—have been discarded for killing beetles within the District, Dr. Porter said. Now they are used rather to discover the spread of the insects in regions not yet infected.

The Department of Agriculture is experimenting here with what is known as the "milky disease," Dr. Porter declared. Last fall over 1,100 acres of public ground in the District were treated with a mixture which turns the fluid within the larva to milk, killing it.

However, traps are still being used extensively in Maryland, Dr. Porter said. Under the direction of Dr. E. N. Cory, professor of entomology at the University of Maryland, many of these traps which are manufactured in the Maryland Penitentiary are being set out.

Although the Department has developed no spray which will kill Japanese beetles, Dr. Porter suggests protective or repellent sprays made of powdered lead arsenate, 10 ounces; wheat flour, 6 ounces; water, 10 gallons (for ornamental trees and shrubs). The critters will usually turn up their nose at foliage dosed with this condiment, Dr. Porter declares.

Rep. Thomas Stricken Ill in His Office

Representative Thomas (Republican), New Jersey, was stricken ill in his office yesterday and removed to Mount Alto Veterans Hospital where physicians said he was suffering from stomach ulcers.

Office attaches notified Mrs. Thomas at Allendale, N. J., who said she would come to the Capital this morning. Thomas is a member of the House Committee Investigating Unamerican Activities.

Martin Urges Virile Opposition For Democracy

Representative Martin, of Massachusetts, the Republican National Chairman, urged his party yesterday to provide a "vigorous, virile, fighting" opposition to the Administration to insure "preservation of the Nation's democracy."

In an address to the executive committee of the Young Republican National Federation, Martin said "our job is to see that democracy shall not go by default. We have got to maintain our two party system, one checking against the other."

Martin said the Republicans must impress upon the people that "the great powers transferred by Congress to the Executive some day must be returned to the people."

He said the "trend" was still running toward the Republicans and predicted it would continue "because the people know it is the only party to rescue this Nation from chaos and confusion."

He urged the young Republicans to go back and cooperate with their elders in building up the party organization.

Informal Parties Set Afternoon Record Here

Combination House-Warming and Farewell Fete Given for Glenn Abbey, Who Will Leave for England Next Week

By Hope Ridings Miller

AS JUNE'S END appears on the horizon, an all-out social round seems to be taking over the calendar. Certainly, the Capital's party-going contingent negotiated a crowded schedule yesterday when a record number of informal fetes accented the 5-to-7 part of the afternoon.

A combination house-warming and a farewell party for Glenn Abbey, who will be off to England next week, drew a sizable number of guests to Miss Elizabeth Howry's new home on P Street. At the same time, Mrs. Noyes Lewis was gathering in a group of friends for cocktails at her home, on Thirty-third Street, and Mrs. Donald Downs was entertaining at her Virginia home in honor of Miss Peggy Lansdowne. A bit earlier, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert and Mrs. Lionel Atwill had entertained a small group in the former's apartment at the Mayflower, the event being a sort of follow-up for the radio broadcast given by the two at 4:30.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

"Soon as I get my slum-clearance project under control, I'm going to give a party," is the promise Miss Howry has been tossing out to her friends all season. A few months ago, she purchased a couple of houses on P Street and set out to "do" one over from basement to attic. She declares her work was not finished yet, but guests who called yesterday pronounced her project as being "under control" indeed, and everyone was loud in praise of the miracle that has been wrought both in the interior of the house, and in the garden, where most of yesterday's crowd collected.

Wearing a floor-length black chiffon frock, with a wide ruffled collar of white, the hostess received downstairs in the dining room. Mr. Abbey spent most of his time greeting friends in the garden and answering questions as to his plans for the immediate future. Yes, he is to leave soon—on Monday, to be exact. After a few days in New York, he will start on Friday for England and his new post at our embassy there.

Meems Celebrate Their Anniversary

"Glenn Abbey thinks the party's for him, but it's really for us—for Louise and me," said Harry Grant Meem, with a twinkle in his eye. "It's our twenty-third wedding anniversary," he added. Later, he and his lovely wife went on to the dinner given at the Army-Navy Club by Mrs. J. R. McAndrews.

Assisting Miss Howry at her party was Miss Henrietta Sherwood, who wore a print chiffon frock, in blue and white, and had tucked into her auburn hair a couple of bright red gladioli blossoms.

Among guests arriving promptly at 6 o'clock—the opening hour of the party—were Miss Lydia Loring, Merritt Swift and George Williams. Mr. Abbey came in a bit later, and before you knew it the garden was a moving mass of guests.

Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, wearing a blue and white print frock, with a small white straw hat, was there; also, Capt. and Mrs. James Parker Jackson, Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, Mrs. McCeney Werlich and Mrs. Lee Murphy, whose crisp, yellow linen was set off with a wide-brimmed matching sombrero.

Mrs. Miner Plans Western Trip

Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, always a popular center of attention, had a crowd around her from the minute she arrived. Incidentally, she will be off July 5 for her home in California. "But I'm planning to be back in Washington in the autumn," she said. In the group around Mrs. Miner was Miss Carolyn Nash, who will leave for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., next Monday to be gone for several days. She expects to be in Washington most of the summer, however.

Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion was on hand for the Howry-Abbey fete; also Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Albert Cox. Coming on to Miss Howry's fete from the one given by Mrs. Noyes Lewis was Clarence Hewes, who had practically everyone flocking around him to tell him how much they enjoyed his party on Wednesday afternoon.

Incidentally, it was at his pleasant fete for Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Hammonds that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, who has established something of a record for passing up most afternoon parties, arrived shortly after the opening hour, and stayed until almost the end.

Hampson Gary, former U. S. Minister to Switzerland, was among those on hand to bid Glenn Abbey goodby yesterday, as were Mrs. Wallace Dempsey, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege and Mrs. William Livingston Crounse, the latter of whom will leave in a few days for her Nova Scotia home to spend the remainder of the season.

Still others there were H. H. Woodward, attache of the South African Legation; Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Austin Kautz and Miss Emma Perley Lincoln.

Miss Howry Leaving For New England

Miss Howry will go up to New England early in July to visit her sister, Miss Mary Howry, for a few days. Then she will be back in Washington to supervise completion of the decoration on her house. After that is all done, she expects to pitch into plans for renovating the house next door, which also belongs to her. Miss Mary Howry, meanwhile, is toying with the idea of building a new house on the lot just back of her sister's garden.

Admiral Howard And Wife Again Dwell in Capital

Back in Washington after living in Philadelphia for almost three years, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Herbert Seymour Howard are established once more in their home at 2897 Thirty-sixth Place. With them for the summer are their daughter, Miss Mary Chase Howard—known to her friends as "Maizie," and their younger son, Macauley.

Mrs. Howard, the former Mary McCauley, made her debut in Washington, and her daughter was presented to society shortly before the family moved from here. Admiral Howard served as naval attache in London before he and his family returned to Washington scveral years ago. He was assigned to duty in Philadelphia in 1939.

New Visitor in Town From Old New Orleans

Harris & Ewing

Miss Saffold Winkler, daughter of Mrs. Hugh Vincent, of New Orleans (above, left), and her hostess here, Miss Marilynn Himes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Himes, as they arrive at Miss Patricia Uline Hill's party yesterday. Miss Himes will entertain for her house guest this evening at a party at her parents' home, Prospect Hall, in Frederick, Md., as one of a series of fetes for the visitor. Tomorrow there will be another party, with William Fitzgerald as host. Miss Nancy Weller will entertain on Sunday evening

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Minister of Czecho-Slovakia and Mme. Hurban have gone to Chicago to attend the Sokol Festival which begins today. The Sokols are a Czech organization something like our Boy Scouts. M. and Mme. Hurban will return in about a week.

Raul de Roux, Minister of Foreign Relations of Panama, and Senora de Roux have sailed for Panama on the S. S. Talamanca. They recently spent several weeks in Washington.

Sir Owen and Lady Chalkley, of the British Embassy, have taken a cottage at Rehoboth Beach and will go there the latter part of next month to spend the remainder of the summer.

Miss Leon K. Powell entertained at a luncheon yesterday in honor of Miss Helen Vance, of Chicago, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Louis Vance, of Washington. Miss Ruth Hunter, of New York, was another out-of-town guest at the function.

Lieut. Col. Robert A. Willard, of Fort Monmouth, N. J., is in Washington and is staying at the Martinique.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. E. S. Earnhardt have as their guests Mrs. J. W. Self, of Lenoir, N. C., and William Self, of Worcester, Mass.

Mrs. L. W. Eugster is spending a week at the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs en route to Vancouver Barracks, Wash., to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. D. O. Elliott and their family.

Frank West has returned to his ranch in Steckton, Calif., after a visit here with his mother, Mrs. Frank West.

Mr. and Mrs. William Illch have as their guest their niece, Miss Babette Hirsch, of New York, in whose honor Mrs. Illch gave a luncheon yesterday.

Mrs. Agnes McCall Parker has returned from the West Coast and has reopened her studio and apartment at 1150 Connecticut Avenue for the summer. On Thursday Mrs. Parker addressed employes of the Works Progress Administration who are being trained in connection with the National Defense Program.

Mrs. Maurice D. Rosenberg, jr., and her young daughter are visiting Mrs. Rosenberg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Revness, at their home in Westport, Conn.

S. J. O'Connor's Brother to Wed In New York

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley James O'Connor and their son, Stanley, jr., will leave tomorrow for New York to attend the wedding of Mr. O'Connor's brother, Dr. Clarence D. O'Connor of New York, to Miss Helen Pumphrey of New York and Birmingham, Ala. The ceremony will take place on Monday afternoon in Glen Ridge, N. J., and a reception will follow at the Women's Club.

Dr. O'Connor is superintendent of the Lexington Music School in New York, where Miss Pumphrey is a member of the faculty. He is also on the faculty of Columbia Univerity and for several years was director of the Music Department at the University of North Dakota. The latter institution, which his family has attended for three generations, recently awarded him an honorary degree. Dr. O'Connor is also a concert singer.

Coales Will Leave For Jersey Today

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Coale, of Seven Oaks Manor, Md., and their son, Vaughn B. Coale, are leaving today for Spring Lake and Ocean City, N. J.

They will also be guests of Prof. and Mrs. J. H. Horn, of Rutherford, N. J., at the marriage of their daughter, Mary Horn, to Robert Norwood Coale, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Coale and son of the Rev. and Mrs. S. S. Coale, of Baltimore, Md., tomorrow.

The prospective bridegroom, who attends the Georgetown University Medical School in Washington, is a graduate of Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.

Returns Home

Mrs. Paul Myron Linebarger has just returned from a several weeks visit in the South, where she visited relatives. She stopped in Ash Grove, Mo.; Houston, Tex., and Lake Charles, La. She was accompanied home by Miss Katherine Weeks, who will visit Mrs. Linebarger and also her brother, Ensign Richard Weeks and Mrs. Weeks at Annapolis.

Elisabeth Greene Engaged to Wed Warren Thorpe, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gouverneur Greene, of Cedarhurst, L. I., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Searles Greene, to Warren Thorpe, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Thorpe, of 15 East Sixty-fourth Street, N. Y., and Lawrence, L. I.

The prospective bride is a sister of Miss Eloise Greene. Her mother is the former Miss Elizabeth Porter Searles, of Rome, N. Y. Miss Greene was graduated from the Ethel Walker School, Simsbury, Conn.; attended Vassar College, and is a member of the Badminton Club of New York.

Mr. Thorpe is a brother of Mrs. Charles Winn (Theodora Thorpe), of London, England, now in Washington. His mother is the former Miss Helen P. Converse, of Philadelphia. He is a graduate of the Groton School and of Yale, 1934, and is a member of Zeta Psi and of the Rockaway Hunting Club. He is now with the United States Army, at Camp Devens, Mass., with the 101st Cavalry.

Keiths Will Visit Mrs. Parkhurst

Maj. and Mrs. Donald M. Keith will leave early next week to visit Mrs. Keith's mother, Mrs. J. E. Parkhurst at the latter's summer camp on Oneida Lake in New York State.

Maj. Keith, here on active duty at the Judge Advocate General's department, came on to Washington for this assignment early in April, when he reported to active duty from the Reserve Corps. He has been for many years a practicing attorney in Los Angeles.

Roaches Will Honor Ryans at Party

Capt. and Mrs. Philip Francis Roach will give a cocktail party tomorrow in their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Michael C. Ryan, who are leaving for Florida.

Invitations have been limited to officers and their wives, and the United States Coast Guard Permanent Board.

Mrs. Land Off For Another Ship Launching

Life for Mrs. Emory S. Land, wife of the chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, seems to be attendance at just one launching after another. Accompanying Admiral Land and a large party from Washington, New York and Darien, Conn., she is now en route to Pascagoula, Miss., where the S. S. African Comet will roll out into the water for the first time.

The vessel, the first all-welded passenger liner every built, will shortly enter express service between New York and Capetown, making the run in 18 days, to cut nearly a week from current schedules.

Miss Mary M. Farrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Farrell, of Darien, Conn., has been named sponsor for the ship. Others who are going down to attend the launching are Sir Owen Chalkley, British commercial counselor; Robert Webster, secretary of the South African Legation, and J. A. Siegruhn, commercial attache; Emil Horn, consul of the Union of South Africa, and Mrs. Horn, of New York, and several others.

The party left Washington at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, and will return Sunday night.

Larry Crabbe Picks Deb Water Stars At Miss Hill's Fete

Proving equal to the occasion of being the only man at a gala luncheon-swimming party of more than 50 girls at which Miss Patricia Hill was hostess yesterday, Larry "Buster" Crabbe, of aquatic and motion picture fame, "out-diplomacized" the diplomats.

Commenting on the charm, beauty and swimming prowess of the bevy of local beauties, the swimming champion, after watching them in action in the pool, remarked, "Bringing our own aquabelles to Washington was like carrying coals to Newcastle." As swimming stars of the group, he picked last year debutantes, Miss Billie Byrd West and Miss Marion Norris.

McQuillans to Live At Sligo Park

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ignacius McQuillan, who were married June 18, will make their home at the Piney Branch Apartments, Sligo Park, Md. The bride is the former Miss Dena Marie Hayden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Hayden of Bell Alton, Md., and Mr. McQuillan is the son of Mrs. Francis J. McQuillan and the late Dr. Quillan.

St. Aloysius Church was the scene of the ceremony, at which the Rev. Thomas J. Smith officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white net, made over taffeta, with a tight-fitting basque bodice fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and a full skirt flaring into a train. Her full length veil of illusion was fastened with a spray of tiny white flowers and she carried a bouquet of Madonna lillies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Edwin Hayden was matron of honor for her sister-in-law, wearing blue net over taffeta with a shoulder length veil to match. Her flowers were yellow rose buds. Miss Theresa McQuillan, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, dressed in pink net over taffeta and carrying pink and purple larkspur. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Roger Hayden, sister-in-law of the bride; Miss Virginia Blackstone and Miss Patricia Griffith. They were dressed like the maid of honor and carried bouquets like hers. Francis McQuillan was best man for his brother and the ushers included Dr. Edward J. Edlen, Lawrence McDonald, George O'Hare, Edwin Hayden, Robert Hayden and Woodrow Hayden, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Ward Gives Dinner in Honor Of Noted Barytone

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward has as her guest the well-known barytone, Anjer Del Monte. Last night she entertained at a dinner for him at the Shoreham Terrace.

Others in the party were Gen. and Mrs. Albert Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja and Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim. Yesterday Col. and Mrs. Guggenheim gave a cocktail party on their yacht in honor of Mr. Del Monte.

Mrs. Ward's niece, Mrs. John Boyd Stanley, will join her aunt tomorrow for a visit following a fishing trip to Canada. Mr. Stanley, who is doing military service at Aberdeen Proving Ground, will be with them for the week-end.

Mrs. Harrison Here for Summer

Arriving on the Clipper in New York earlier this week was Mrs. Leland Harrison, wife of the United States Minister to Switzerland. She reported that the Swiss were "beginning to ration things" but were "handling the situation wonderfully."

Mrs. Harrison is here to spend the Summer with her two daughters, who met her at the Clipper terminal. She and her husband were popular residents of Washington when he was on duty at the State Department here. Both visited the Capital last year.

Miss Lucile Church Becomes Bride of Donald H. Edwards

Ceremony Takes Place in St. Paul's Rock Creek Church

In a double ring ceremony, Miss Lucile Church became the bride of Donald H. Edwards last evening at 8 o'clock in St. Paul's Rock Creek Church, with the Rev. W. Carroll Brooke officiating. Cut flowers and palms adorned the altar. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Williamson, of Chillicothe, Ohio. Mr. Edwards is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde H. Edwards, of this city.

Given in marriage by her uncle, R. A. Hyer, the bride wore a gown of white mousseline de soie with a round neck, short puffed sleeves and a yoke of lace. Her tulle veil was held with a band of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Boyd Walters served as matron of honor. She wore a pink mousseline de soie gown with blue bows trimming it. A short veil fell from her pink hat and she carried a bouquet of pink gladioli and baby's breath. Bridesmaids were Miss Doris Baronek and Miss Eunice Walker, of Richmond, Va. They wore blue mousseline de soie gowns trimmed with matching lace and pink bows. They wore blue halo hats and carried pink roses and delphinium.

Robert Hunter McElvoney, of Richmond, served as best man. Ushers were Clyde S. Edwards, Frances H. Edwards and George D. Edwards, all brothers of the bridegroom, and Boyd Waters.

Mrs. Williams wore an aqua chiffon gown with a matching turban. Mrs. Edwards had chosen black lace. The bride's aunt, who entertained at a reception for the couple, wore a rose chiffon ensemble. The couple left for a trip by boat to Boston. The bride's traveling costume was a tan-printed ensemble and she wore corresponding accessories. Upon their return they will live at 812 Jefferson Street Northwest.

The bride attended Southeastern University. Mr. Edwards attended Duke University, Durham, N. C.

MRS. DONALD H. EDWARDS

Marion Whitaker, G. F. Strollo Wed

The marriage of Miss Marion Douglas Whitaker and George Francis Strollo took place yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, in the Western Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Edward Hughes Pruden officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walker S. Whitaker, of this city. Mr. Strollo is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strollo, of New York City.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white chiffon dress with long sleeves and full skirt. Her veil was held by a cluster of rosebuds and she carried roses and lillies of the valley. Her only ornament was an heirloom locket. Mrs. Martin Todd served as matron of honor. She wore a blue mousseline de soie frock and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. The remaining attendants were Miss Wilma Cudd, of Philadelphia and Mrs. Keith Echols. They wore pink marquisette frocks and wreaths of flowers in their hair. They also carried mixed bouquets.

Gerald Fleet, of New York City, was best man and ushers were Edward Henley and Martin Todd. A reception followed in the Pan American room of the Mayflower Hotel.

When the couple return from their Northern wedding trip they will live in the Buckingham Apartments.

Owen O'Malley And Daughter Are Visiting Here

In town for an indefinite stay are Owen St. Clair O'Malley, former British Minister to Hungary, and daughter, Miss Grania O'Malley, who are staying at the Brighton Hotel.

Mrs. O'Malley, who is widely known as Ann Bridge, author of "Peking Picnic" and "Four-Part Setting," is visiting relatives in New Orleans, but she is expected to come here in a few days to join her husband and daughter. The three are en route back to England from Hungary.

Van Zandts Fete The McCrindles

Col. and Mrs. J. Ronald McCrindle, of London—she is Susan Ertz, the novelist—were honor guests at a dinner given last night by Mr. and Mrs. J. Parker Van Zandt. The party took place on the roof of the Army and Navy Club.

Col. McCrindle is managing director of British Overseas Airways Corporation.

Luttrells to Entertain For Miss Tempe Curry

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Lothrop Luttrell will entertain at a cocktail party Sunday from 5 to 7 o'clock at The Lindens, their home on the Rockville Pike.

The party will honor Miss Tempe Curry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Granville Curry, who will marry Charles R. Grant, son of Mrs. C. R. Grant, of Chevy Chase, Md., and the late Mr. Grant. The wedding will take place July 12 at 8 o'clock at the All Saints Episcopal Church in Chevy Chase.

Walter Wyatts Give Dinner For the Glasses

Feting Senator and Mrs. Carter Glass, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyatt entertained informally at a dinner in their Kalmia Road home last night. On Tuesday, Mrs. Glass will return the compliment with a luncheon at the Mayflower honoring Mrs. Wyatt.

Among the guests at last evening's party were Senator and Mrs. James Hughes who will leave soon to visit their daughter, Mrs. John R. Martin, in Miami. They had planned a summer vacation in Panama, but when they were unable to obtain ship reservations they decided on a Florida trip instead.

Other guests were M. S. Szymczak, member of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve, and Miss Minnie Mae Fleming, of Dallas, Tex., who has recently returned to Washington and her apartment at the Shoreham. She plans to be here during the summer months and for the coming winter season. Rounding out the guest list were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith, who are in and out of Washington during the summer months, dividing their time between Newport, New York and later on in the season, California.

The Kasslers On Bridal Trip

Mr. and Mrs. George Francis Kassler, jr., are on their wedding trip in Virginia and plan to motor through the Carolinas and Tennessee before returning to Takoma Park, where they will live. The marriage of the former Miss Sue Marie Spence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Spence, of Takoma Park, Md., took place recently in the Church of the Epiphany. The Rev. Ze Barney Phillips officiated.

The bride wore an ivory satin gown fashioned on simple lines with a high Peter Pan collar and long sleeves and it ended in a long train. Her veil fell from a Juliet cap and she carried a bouquet of roses, lilies of the valley and orchids. Miss Frances Elizabeth Spence was the bride's only attendant. She wore a mousseline de soie frock and her short veil fell from a cluster of yellow daisies. She also carried an arm bouquet of daisies. Edward Kassler, of New York City, was best man for his brothers and ushers were H. Browning Spence, brother of the bride, and Leslie Eslinger.

A reception followed at the Brooke Tea House. Mrs. Spence, who received with the couple, wore a powder blue marquisette and lace gown and a corsage of yellow roses. Also receiving were the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Kassler, of New York. She wore a purple crepe gown and talisman roses.

E. F. McDevitt Has Play Published

Of interest to his many friends in Washington is the news that E. Francis McDevitt has just had a three-act play published in book form. The title is "Medicine Preferred" and it is the story of an idealistic young doctor who fights corruption.

Mr. McDevitt has had many plays published, but this is the first in book form. He makes his home at 1320 Dale Drive, Silver Spring, Md.

Seasoned Tennis Players Like Plain White Garb

(This is one of a series of articles on sports fashions for Washington women)

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

This is one of a series on sports styles for Washington women.

TENNIS, the game of both the amateur and professional, is in full swing this season. And recent inquiries prove that the amateur player has just as practical views on the proper type of outfit to wear as the seasoned professional.

Mrs. Harvey Bloom, a fair to middling amateur, believes that in tennis, as in any other sport, it is necessary to have a feeling for the game. She pointed out that if a woman plays tennis for the love of the sport she will want an outfit in which she can move about freely.

To Please Men Wear a Skirt

"You'll have to learn how to be all over the court in a split second and sometimes shorts hinder freedom of action by binding about the legs," said Mrs. Bloom. She likes full skirted dresses best because they hang straight from the shoulders and permit plenty of movement and swing.

Mrs. Bloom also believes that shorts are not very complimentary to the average figure. "Since we are usually trying to please the men," she added, "a skirt two or three inches above the knees is more flattering to most figures." If a two-piece shirt and skirt dress is worn, she advises that the shirt be well anchored, as it does have a way of creeping out and looks ungainly.

As accessory bits, it is advisable to wear a visor, rather than sun glasses. Mrs. Bloom think sun glasses are a hindrance as they are always in the way. An unbreakable rule in effect on most Washington courts is the requirement of regulation tennis shoes. So you might just as well forget about those perfectly good saddle oxfords you have. And as a final suggestion, a sweater is always a needed item to have around to wear after the game.

Sport buyers say that simple, practical lines are the style points to look for when buying a tennis outfit. The white tailored above-the-knee dress, in either sharkskin or thin waffle pique, has proved to be the most popular tennis uniform over a period of years. The simpler the dress, the more satisfactory it is—which accounts for the fact that this year's accepted uniform has changed very little over last year's.

Action Back Gives Free Movement

In the one-piece costume, short or long sleeves with either a circular or pleated skirt are preferred Too much bulkiness in the dress top should be avoided, but the action type back permits just the right amount of freedom. Action backs appear in the form of gathered fullness or pleats.

Although some outfits are made with underarm pleats or fullness, too much thickness is not advisable. Most dresses have large armholes or gussets to give adequate fullness for the dress to ride freely over the arm without catching.

If the novice at tennis would camouflage her game, it is wisest for her not to wear colors. Professionals say that color on the court is the mark of the beginner. When a girl gets in the swing of the game, however, she will don a casual one-piece dress in white, with matching panties.

Beauty Hints for Travel Are Givn By Movie Star

Hollywood, Calif.—Pert Jane Wyman's system for eliminating the ravages of train travel should be welcome news to girls who contemplate a vacation trip by train. Jane, who went East recently, stepped off the train in New York City looking as fresh and lovely as when she boarded it in Hollywood.

Of first importance, she says, is the selection of travel clothes. Jane is devoted to silk jersey because it sheds both dirt and wrinkles and is delightfully cool. For her trip she chose two dressmaker suits of identical fashion, one in brown, one in navy. With several changes of crisp, clean blouses, she managed to look and feel as fresh as the proverbial daisy.

To control skin dryness resulting from changes of temperature and climate, Jane foregoes her usual soap and water cleansings, relying on cold cream, astringent and lotion to keep her complexion soft and free from irritation. Never use a night cream unless you want to look like Sambo in the morning. No matter what improvements the new streamliners may boast, the air is still laden with dust.

Her hair is kept soft and bright with a dry shampoo and a light brilliantine sprayed over her wave at night. She pinches the curls in place and ties a becoming fishnet turban around her head.

Burning eyes and parchment lips are the beasts of beauty while traveling. Jane uses a colorless pomade under her lip rouge, moistens them with lotion occasionally, and bathes her eyes several times a day with a mild boric acid solution.

EXPERT players prefer an all-white smartly tailored outfit with blouse back fullness, as is shown at right. The visor cap also is favored on court

Today's Social Notes
(From the Truthtown Torch)

Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, Truthtown's eccentric dowager, this week again gave society something to talk about. Presenting her granddaughter, Miss Beverly (Bugs) Beetle, to society at a garden party, Mrs. Beetle announced publicly that Beverly's dowry would be $149,567.14.

"I knew there was general speculation on the matter among the guests," said Mrs. Beetle, "and I thought I would relieve their curiosity. I also wanted to let the members of the stag line know just where they stood."

Foreign Affairs

Because of the current interest in war activities, the Ladies Study Group will hold a foreign affairs tea this afternoon in the Candelabra Room of the Hotel Swank. Mrs. Orpheus Trill will sing a group of Russian folk songs; Mrs. Rufus Gadd will show movies of her trip to Finland and Norway in 1929, and Mrs. Marcus Hoardem will exhibit her collection of Chinese curios.

The Sun Glass Set

Correction

The Torch regrets that it recently announced that Mrs. Belshazzar Canebottom was suffering from the gout. Mrs. Canebottom says she had the measles. Mrs. Herringbone Chipper also was erroneously reported to have had a siege of rheumatism. It was really mumps and chicken pox, Mrs. Chipper assures us.

The Bogy Set

"Did you hear about Grace Hare?"
"No?"
"She's still hysterical over a man following her home yesterday."
"How terrifying!"
"Yes he got on the bus with her downtown, sat behind her, got off at the same corner and followed her right to her front steps."
"Good heavens!"
"Yes, she ran screaming into the house and called the police."
"Did they get him?"
"No, he turned out to be her next door neighbor. But he might have been—well you know . . ."
"I know. Well, Elsie Nitter was telling me about a peculiar looking man in a maroon coupe stopping her and asking how to get to Massachusetts Avenue. Now you know that was a stall."
"Of course. Well, a lot of strange things have been happening to me."
"Me too!"
"Yes, I got in a taxi the other day and the driver—he had a very peculiar look in his eye—well anyway, he went two doors past my house."
"Did you scream?"
"I certainly did!"
"Well, I always carry a corsage pin when I ride in taxis."
"Another thing several peculiar looking men have been staring at me on streetcars the last few days."
"Me too. And a strange man called me on the telephone the other morning. He pretended he has gotten the wrong connection but he had a very peculiar voice."
"I had a very peculiar thing happen to me in Sailem's. The floorwalker kept following me all over the place—that is a man who pretended to be a floorwalker. I think personally he was a moron or something."
"Really, you're not safe anywhere. I even had an experience at church."
"No!"
"Yes, the usher sat me by a strange man—he had a very peculiar look in his eye—and he kept trying to make me share his hymnbook."
"What did you do?"
"I simply moved my seat. And then he kept staring at me."
"Of all things! He must have been a fiend of some kind."

Relief for Light Burns

If you burn yourself in the kitchen or laundry, you can get quick relief by rubbing the spot very gently with a moistened cake of soap. Let the lather dry, and do not remove for an hour or so.

Girl, 16, Who Lives in Country Near Well-Known Beach, Asks Help in Planning Camp Fire Party; Should She Take Guests to Shore After Supper?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl of 16 and live in the country, near a well-known beach. Our home has all modern conveniences and I am planning a wiener roast for a weekend night early in July. I would like your answers to the following questions: After supper, should we go to the beach? (This has been suggested.) If so, should I take along a radio or victrola so that the guests could dance at the shore? What would be the most appropriate outfit for the girls to wear—for the camp fire supper as well as the beach?

Should I introduce my parents to my friends, if they stop by the house? And should I ask my parents to come to the supper? After supper, should the girls be invited to the house to "fix up" before going to the beach? If so, what should the boys do in the meantime?

INEXPERIENCED.

DEAR INEXPERIENCED: In my opinion, it would be a better arrangement to go to the beach before supper, supposing most of your guests would enjoy a swim, and come back to the camp fire to spend the remainder of the evening—cooking supper, listening to the radio, singing, dancing (if there is a place for it), tending the fire, etc., until time to disband. Half the fun of a camp fire supper is having it after dark—when the blaze shows to best advantage against the mysterious backdrop of night.

A camp fire supper held sufficiently early in the evening to let the party go on to the beach at a reasonable hour (say, 9 o'clock), would be, of necessity, a daytime affair—since dusk comes late at this season of the year. Also, it would mean skimping the big event of the evening, namely, the picnic "feed," which is your part of the party and which you should "play up." By having the swim first, and the wiener roast later, you guarantee good appetites for everyone present, and when they are well fed, they will be well content to take their ease by the fireside.

So, invite the guests for a swimming party and weiner roast—with swimming from 5 to 7, or 6 to 8, or 7 to 9, as you like, and supper later. Tell all to bring swim suits and to meet at your house at an appointed hour. Have two rooms set aside as "cloak rooms," one for the boys and another for the girls. Here they may change into or out of swimming togs, and the girls may "fix up" before supper. And it will afford them a place to "park" their change of garb.

Suitable picnic wear for the girls on a coolish evening (and it is nearly always cool near a shore), would be sweaters and skirts; or slacks and sweater blouses; or wash dresses with woolen "swagger" coats to put on as the temperature falls. While the girls "fix their faces," the boys, most likely, will be combing their forelocks—so don't concern yourself unduly about how to keep them occupied "in the meantime."

Guests should be introduced to your parents—if they happen to be near at hand—as they arrive; but you don't have to make a formal point of it. Since you should herd the crowd to the beach for swimming, your parents probably will be needed to take a supervisory interest in last-minute supper arrangements—with your father perhaps nursing the fire to a fine glow, and your mother setting out the food. Thus, casually, they will be in evidence to welcome the youngsters to supper as they drift back, and afterward they may either linger for a hand-out, or promptly fade away when the wiener roast "gets going"—just as they choose.

Radio or victrola music after supper should add to the festive atmosphere; and if the camp fire is near the house, you might dance indoors or on the porch. Otherwise, you might encourage group singing as the chief after-supper entertainment; because I can't quite visualize "swing" dancing on the sands of the shore, or on the roughened grounds of the typical picnic spot. Should One Ask Friend If Gift Was Received?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Six weeks ago I received from a very close friend in my home town an announcement of the birth of her child. I could not write her for about two weeks, at which time I sent her a very warm letter, accompanied by a gift for the baby, which was mailed from a local department store.

In the four weeks since I have had no acknowledgement from her, and I would like to know if she received the gift. The store will not have it traced, without positive assurance that she did not get it. Since I am very busy, and do little corresponding, would it be proper to write to her, asking if she received the gift? If so, how should I word the note, so as not to offend her, in case she has just overlooked it?

BESS.

Pursue Inquiry By Indirection

DEAR BESS: It is absolutely unlikely that both letter and gift would have gone astray; and in the letter, you surely made some reference to the present you were sending the baby. Therefore, your friend would have been on the lookout for it, and had it failed to arrive in due time (as packages sometimes do), undoubtedly she would have let you know. To write again, primarily to ask if she got the present, probably would give her to think that you held her remiss in courtesy—no matter how tactfully the inquiry was worded.

However, you probably can get, indirectly, the information you want, by writing her a cheerful demand for a full, immediate report on the infant, asking her to say whom he resembles, how he is behaving, whether he has smiled yet, and so on. The normal mother of a newborn child would find it impossible to neglect answering such gratifying questions as these, which touch on the subject nearest her heart—the subject on which she is wont to expiate tirelessly for hours, to any who are obliging enough to show a listening interest. And in writing to tell you about the baby, she is bound to remember to say that she got your gift for him. Because, as I have said, I am convinced she has. M. H.

Learn to Play Piano at Home

TEACHING yourself to play the piano pays big dividends when vacation time comes round! Your music wins admiring beaux—helps you triumph over all competition.

With a simple keyboard chart you soon learn notes and keys. If you've tried to read music you may have thought often how much simpler it would be if each key had its correct musical note written right on it. Well, that's practically what your chart does for you!

The part of the piano keyboard you'll use most and with each key is its music-staff note. When you've placed your chart behind the real keys you can tell instantly what key to strike for each note.

You'll notice, too, that your entire keyboard is just a repetition of the same groups of keys called "octaves." Once you've mastered one, you know them all.

Then in another lesson or two you're learning how to play popular music by a simple short cut.

This easy way to play popular music is fully described in our 24-page instruction book, "A Short Cut to Piano Playing." Includes keyboard chart and table of chords. Explains musical terms, time values, gives six well-known pieces for practice. Book is 6¾ by 12 inches.

Send 15c in coins for our instruction book, "A Short Cut to Piano Playing," to the New York office of THE WASHINGTON POST, Home Institute, 100 West 19th Street, New York, N.Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of instruction book.

First Public Laundry

The first public laundry was started in Oakland, California—a by-product of the '49 gold rush. The washing machines used then were half-barrels in which clothes were agitated with wagon wheel spokes. By 1914 the laundry industry, thus modestly begun, had grown until the national association of laundry owners was able to organize a program for educational and scientific research in the best methods, to establish a research fellowship at the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, University of Pittsburgh, and to embark on ambitious efforts to standardize treatment of fibers, colors and such like. Hence the present reliable service our laundries give us.

Chevy Chase Club Calls Recess Off

Members Decide To Devote Entire Summer Season To Defense Effort

By Lucia Giddens

The Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday voted to carry on a program of defense activities during the Summer, instead of observing its traditional seasonal recess.

The action was taken at an emergency meting, called by the president, Mrs. Henry DeC. Adams at the clubhouse.

Details of the program will be worked out by a coordinating committee, but yesterday members filled out questionnaires indicating what work they are prepared to do and in what fields they wish special training.

Mrs. Edgar Fowler, second vice president, who is chairman of the new defense committee, made the motion for the summer program. Other members of the committee to assist in planning it are Mrs. James V. Bennett, Mrs. J. Alan Mathis, Mrs. Edward H. Helmuth and Mrs. Chesly Manly.

Mrs. Adams, opening the meeting, pointed out that many requests by club members for defense activities during the summer prompted an executive committee meeting recently, leading up to yesterday's session, attended by approximately 150 members.

Mrs. Frank Linzel, former president of the Washington Council of Church Women, reported on the recent meeting of women's organization heads called by Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in New York to map a program of voluntary defense activities.

Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, chairman of the committee on volunteer service, District of Columbia Defense Council, spoke on the recent registration here.

Mrs. Minier Hostetler, of the League of Women Voters of Maryland, described the volunteers council in Montgomery County.

Mrs. George A. Finch, chairman of the Chevy Chase branch of the Red Cross, discussed the program now in operation and urged more workers to join it.

Club members at the end of the meeting filled out a questionnaire showing whether they are already prepared to take part in such activities as motor service, clerical work, entertainment programs for service men at nearby camps. They also indicated whether they wish training in typing, sewing, knitting. On the basis of this preparation and needs, the summer program will be planned.

The club already has four Red Cross groups at work, on surgical dressings, sewing, knitting and first aid.

Brackenridge Club Sponsors Benefit

The M. E. Brackenridge Club will sponsor a concert for the benefit of its Pan-American scholarship fund, tonight at 8:15, at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Penn Harrison Howard, 813 Chetworth Place, Alexandria.

The club is raising funds to bring a girl from some other American country to Washington to make a study of this nation's life and institutions.

Mrs. Virginia Lewis Ring, of 8 Rosemary, Chevy Chase, Md., will sing and read selections from her poems. She has just finished her fourth year in charge of the Junior Competitive Music Festivals for this district.

"Song of the Isles," which was dedicated by the composer to the sister of Mrs. Howard, Miss Elma Schadt, of Honolulu, will be presented in a violin and piano arrangement by Mrs. Howard and Miss Fuchsia Johnson, of Grant's Pass, Oreg., a newcomer in Washington.

The Rev. Penn Howard, department chaplain of the Disabled American Veterans, will speak on "Beethoven and the Moonlight Sonata."

Beta Sigma Omicron Alumnae Meet Tonight

The Washington Alumnae Chapter of Beta Sigma Omicron will hold its last meeting of the season at 8 o'clock tonight, to plan its participation in ceremonies at the installation of the sorority's new chapter at Queens College, Flushing, Long Island, this weekend.

The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Edwin Barton, 6223 Thirty-third Street Northwest, Chevy Chase, D. C., with Mrs. Philip H. Groggins, assistant hostess.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

A blue-eyed golden-haired Argentinean nurse, in Washington on a Pan American Union scholarship, this week mapped out the message which she will carry back to her native country.

Hercelia Rodriguez Brizuela, of Buenos Aires, who at 28 is chief of nurses in Central Emergency Hospital there, said she will carry on a campaign to try to institute a public health nursing program in her country, such as that in the United States.

She plans to carry back a file of photographs and facts about public health nursing in the District, in the hope of getting a series of articles printed in newspapers in Buenos Aires.

For the last few months, she has been studying such courses as "Teaching Principles in Public Health Nursing" at Catholic University. Recently she has begun making visits with Districts public health nurses to see their work at close range.

She is chief of 14 nurses in the Emergency Hospital which administers first aid to accident victims. One of the most strenuous experiences of her career was her service with the 15 nurses and 30 doctors that the Argentine government sent to Chile in 1939 to aid earthquake victims.

Miss Brizuela hopes, on her return to her country, to interest more girls in taking up nursing careers, by pointing out to them the possibilities for preventive work in public health nursing.

Miss Brizuela, who has English, French and Spanish ancestry, is a fourth generation Argentinean on both sides of the family, she explains, when questioned about her blondness.

She is living in Washington at the Y. W. C. A. With six more months of her scholarship to be completed in this country, she expects to spend part of the time in New York at Teachers College, Columbia University.

While here, she is hobnobbing with a friend whom she met on the voyage up from Rio—Miss Ella Harllee, who has a speech studio in Washington and who also teaches at American University Graduate School. Miss Harllee had been studying at the University of Brazil.

Mrs. Wahl Will Attend Parley

Mrs. Carleton Wilson Wahl, formerly Miss Muriel James, of Chevy Chase, Md., will attend the Alpha Omicron Pi convention in New Orleans July 7-10, as the sorority's Southern district superintendent of chapters in Maryland, Virginia, Tennessee and Georgia.

MRS. CARLETON W. WAHL

Mrs. Wahl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. James, 6800 Meadow Lane, Chevy Chase. She was graduated in 1939 from the University of Maryland where she was president of Pi Delta Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi, president of the Panhellenic Association, and president of the International Relations Club. Mrs. Wahl now makes her home in Baltimore.

One of the principal features of the convention will be discussion of the sorority's national philanthropy—support of the social service department of the Frontier Nursing Service of Kentucky.

Soroptimist Head To Be Welcomed

Mrs. Jean Bennett, of Washington, president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, will be honored at a "welcome home" dinner here by clubs in the North and South Atlantic regions July 19, after her return from a national tour of visits to clubs. She is expected to reach here July 1.

At the local club's last luncheon of the season this week, Miss Helen Barnhart, chairman of the civic committee, announced that the fund to provide a cabin for the Police Boys' Club camp had been raised.

Housekeepers' Staff Installed

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, who was installed yesterday as president of the Housekeepers Alliance, will turn the basement of her home, 2345 Ashmead Place Northwest, into a sewing room for the Red Cross production unit of the Alliance, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Frederic Newburgh, retiring president, was requested yesterday to continue as head of the Red Cross unit. Mrs. Ashton F. Embry will serve as vice chairman.

The unit will have its sewing and knitting in progress at the new workship by July 16, it was announced.

Mrs. Wiley yesterday named two of her new committee chairmen: Mrs. Frank Shortall, civics, and Mrs. Olive Madden, public welfare.

Mrs. Arthur C. Watkins, new president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, and a member of the Alliance, installed officers of the latter at the meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Newburgh, 7105 Chatham Road, Chevy Chase, Md.

Retiring officers made their reports; among them one showing that the Alliance had spent $2,400 in welfare work in the past three years of this administration. A major portion of this fund went into food and clothing for poor families who were not on relief.

A check for $10 was presented to the Alliance yesterday by Mrs. Tilman B. Parks for its record in having the largest per capita subscription list to the Clubwoman magazine, among clubs in the federation.

Mrs. Newton Wing and Mrs. L. C. Hawley were elected new members yesterday.

Reports from the General Federation of Women's Clubs convention in Atlantic City were made by Mrs. J. E. Atkinson, Mrs. Wiley, Mrs. L. C. Ashcraft, and Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson.

Alliance officers installed yesterday included: Mrs. Lyman F. Kebler, first vice president; Mrs. Newburgh, second vice president; Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson, third vice president; Mrs. A. N. Baggs, fourth vice president; Mrs. J. H. Graves, fifth vice president; Mrs. William Trouty, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Harris Hoar, corresponding secretary; Miss Ellen W. Collins, treasurer; Mrs. Tilman B. Parks and Mrs. R. King Stone, auditors; Mrs. Lisle S. Lipscomb and Mrs. Theodore Hoidcamper, directors to the District Federation, and Mrs. J. E. Atkinson and Mrs. L. C. Ashcraft, alternates.

Writers' Annual Picnic To Be Held Tomorrow

Girl Scout Delegates Chosen For Hemisphere Encampment

Delegates from the District of Columbia to the second Girl Scout-sponsored Western Hemisphere Encampment, to be held at Camp Bonnie Brae, East Otis, Mass., August 11-25, were chosen yesterday at a tea at the National Girl Scout Little House.

The delegates, Janet Bovard, of Troop 60, and Barbara Stellwagen, of Troop 50, were selected from a group of 12 outstanding Senior Scouts by a committee composed of Mrs. Gerritt S. Miller, jr., chairman of the Juliette Low Fund for the Western Hemisphere Encampment; Mrs. Barnet Nover, Mrs. Edmund H. Graham, Mrs. Robert Farrington and Mrs. Eugene Boyer.

To further inter-American friendship, the local delegates will, together with delegates from other sections of the United States, exchange information and opinions with the delegates from Argentina, Barbados, Bermuda, Brazil, British Guiana, Canada, Cuba, Guatemala, Jamaica, Mexico, Newfoundland and Puerto Rico, who have accepted invitations to this two-week, All-American encampment.

A scholarship to the Bonnie Brae encampment was presented by Mrs. Adolphus Staton in behalf of the students of the Potomac School. Mrs. Staton explained that the students voted this scholarship from their social service fund, to which contributions had been made by members of Brownie Troop 148, of which she is the leader, and Scout Troops 14 and 16, under the leadership of Miss Seth Smith, a member of the school faculty, who arrived in Washington last fall from London, where she had been engaged in Girl Guide work.

Mrs. Staton emphasized that the Scouts in the Potomac School are international-minded, having studied under Prof. Olga Janowitz, who holds a Ph. D. degree from the University of Vienna and whose anti-Nazi views led to her coming to this country in the early Hitler regime.

Until last summer, Girl Scouts and Girl Guides from all over the world met at the Girl Scout chalet in Adelboden, Switzerland. When international conditions made this impossible, the first Western Hemisphere encampment was held in August at Camp Andree Clark, Pleasantville, N. Y., where 22 delegates from 13 countries in the Western Hemisphere and 82 from all sections of the United States met with Mrs. Arethus Leigh-White, of London, head of the World Bureau of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts.

It was decided then to hold more all-American encampments and recommendations were made which led to better circulation of information and correspondence among Scouts of the Western Hemisphere, an increased study of hemisphere and world problems as part of Girl Scout activities.

Pennies contributed by Girl Scouts to a fund established in memory of the founder of the Scout movement in this country, Juliette Low, makes the encampment possible.

Mrs. May Flather, chairman of the National Little House, received the guests at the tea yesterday. She was assisted by Mrs. Gertrude Bowman.

Among those present were Miss Eleanor Durrett, local Girl Scout director, and Mrs. O'Neal Johnson, chairman of training on the D. C. Council of Girl Scouts.

Alternate delegates to the encampment elected yesterday were Grace Hatcher, Troop 102, and Jean Lewis, Troop 78.

Alpha Iota Group Installs Officers

Mrs. Jean Freund was installed as president of the Washington Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Iota Sorority at a meeting last night at the Hamilton Hotel. Miss Earlene White, Senate postmistress, was made an honorary member.

Miss Hester Laster, retiring president, installed Mrs. Freund and the other new officers: Mrs. Doris Stark, vice president; Miss Frances Davis, treasurer; Miss Jean Eichlin, recording and corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frances Turner, social secretary, and Mrs. Louise Bell, historian.

Twenty members of Alpha Omega, active chapter of the sorority, were received into the Alumnae Chapter.

Picnic to Benefit Promotion Plan Of Goodwill Unit

Friends and members of Goodwill Industries will attend a picnic Monday at Prevention Oak, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Roth. After the supper at 5 p. m. there will be games for all ages, a country auction and campfire singing.

The proceeds will help finance the making of several hundred feet of motion pictures in color for promotion of the organization's program of providing work opportunities for handicapped persons.

Mrs. Roth, general chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Charles H. Ruth, Mrs. Elmer Frazier, treasurer; Mrs. William T. Clerk, Mrs. Francis M. Goodwin, tickets; Mrs. Roy C. Miller, amusements and games; Mrs. John D. Ladd, cake, candy and cookies; Mrs. Robert O. Saunders, punch; Mrs. Warren W. Sager, white elephant table and grab bags; Mrs. John C. Drake, supper; Mrs. Harold Snape, transportation; Mrs. Harold N. Laurie, property; Winfree Johnson, campfire singing; Rodger Whiteford, auction; Mrs. Chesley Manly, publicity.

British Press Aide to Speak

Miss Craig McGeachy, press officer at the British Embassy for the Ministry of Economic Welfare, will speak on "The British Women's Volunteer Services" at the meeting of the women's safety committee of the American Automobile Association at 12:30 p. m. Monday at the Sulgrave Club.

Mrs. Preston Delano will discuss the American Women's Voluntary Services. Guests will include Representative Katharine Byron (Democrat), of Maryland; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Superintendent of Metropolitan Police; William A. Van Duzer, District Director of Vehicles and Traffic; and Representative Clifford Davis (Democrat), of Tennessee, and Mrs. Davis. This will be the last committee meeting of the season, it was announced by Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman.

3 Doll-Adoption Teas To Be Held Here Today

Three "doll adoption teas" will be held today by the Washington Council of Church Women to collect dolls for later distribution through "doll schools" to children in congested areas of the city.

For the Dupont area, dolls will be brought to Foundry Methodist Church between 10:30 and 11:30 a. m. today. Mrs. Oscar L. Pyle is chairman. For Brightwood-Petworth district, Emory Methodist Church is the center from 2 to 4 p. m., with Mrs. Donald Weikert chairman. The third center will be at Georgetown Presbyterian Church from 4 to 7 p. m. with Mrs. W. E. Ellett chairman.

Knitters to Meet

American Knitters will meet from 10 a. m. to noon Wednesday at the Hay-Adams House, it is announced by Myrtle-May Smith. The Monday and Thursday units will meet July 7 and 10 at the District Red Cross Chapter House.

Second Draft Lottery Seen During July

America's second peacetime Selective Service lottery will fall in July, probably not later than the middle of the month, selective officials predicted yesterday.

They made the prediction as draft organizations in Washington and throughout the country geared their machinery for the registration next Tuesday of approximately 800,000 men who have become 21 since October 16, 1940, original registration day.

The selection officers pointed out that the first lottery on October 29 followed the original man power inventory by only 13 days. No greater, and perhaps a lesser interval would be necessary, they said, for local selection units to shift their machinery from the registration task to that of handling order numbers.

It was also pointed out this interval would easily clear the period of Fourth of July activity.

Machinery Ready for 10,000

Discussing the new registration of 21-year-olds here Gen. Albert L. Cox, local selection director, said the Washington draft machinery was prepared to handle as many as 10,000 registrants, although it is estimated on the basis of census there are only 4,900 white and 2,700 colored men, 21 years, now in Washington.

Gen Cox pointed out that there has been a large influx of young men with the great increase in Government jobs during the defense program. He recalled also that the expected turnout on the basis of the census last registration day was far below the 115,000 who actually signed for possible Army duty.

375 Registrars Named

However, Gen. Cox anticipated no difficulty in handling the registrants at the 25 schools designated as registration places, and to be manned by 375 registrars. The registration places will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m., he reminded, and the average number of men signing up through the day at each will be only 300, he said.

The draft head also said that the registration card, while slightly different from that used previously, bears only ten simple questions about the registrant's identity, address, the person who will always know his address, and his employer.

Registration should take no longer than five or ten minutes, he said, although in some cases it probably will be extended to 20 minutes or more. Registrars have been instructed to allow ample time to each registrant to avoid mistakes.

Gen. Cox, William H. Hargrave, registrar in chief, and Commander William A. Corley, deputy assistant director, will give final instructions at a mass meeting of registrars in Central High School auditorium at 8 p. m. today.

Meanwhile, Washington draft headquarters released the names of 140 white recruits to be inducted today at Richmond and 40 colored candidates who will be sworn in at Baltimore. In the names listed below, local boards and the highest order number inducted to date are designated:

Parents Lose Court Action Over Countess Cassini's Job

GENE TIERNEY

By the Associated Press

Bridgeport, Conn., June 26.—Superior Court Judge Robert L. Munger today denied a petition by the parents of Gene Tierney, glamorous society film star, for a temporary injunction seeking to restrain Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation from signing a contract with their daughter as an individual.

The court, in dismissing the petition, which also asked $50,000 damages, suggested that the action was one for breach of contract rather than for an injunction.

J. Kenneth Bradley, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Tierney, the parents, indicated that the fight would be carried to Federal courts.

Miss Tierney eloped June 1 to Las Vegas, Nev., with Count Oleg Cassini, Hollywood dress designer.

The petition set forth that Tierney and his wife, Belle, comprise a corporation known as the Belle-Tier Corp., which has exclusive control of Miss Tierney's artistic activities and receives 25 per cent of her gross earnings.

Tierney, acting for the corporation, said that it entered into a contract with Twentieth Century-Fox April 12, 1940, under the terms of which the movie concern agreed to employ Miss Tierney as an actress.

On June 19, 1941, the petition sets forth, a little over two weeks after Gene's surprise marriage, the corporation was notified by Twentieth Century-Fox that unless it received a written reaffirmation signed by Gene by June 19, it would consider itself relieved of all further obligations under the original agreement and would endeavor at once to negotiate a new employment agreement with the countess individually, although she is still a minor of 19 years.

Such a contract, the Belle-Tier Corporation alleged, would cause it irreparable loss and damage.

Can't Call Him A Dimwit—Even On $21 a Month

New York, June 26 (U.P.).—It was a hot day and the sergeant was getting impatient with a chubby conscript who couldn't seem to get his feet straightened out in close-order drill.

"I've seen some stupid people," the sergeant observed in ringing tones, "but you are by far the worst. It's a lucky thing you got in the Army, because you would never be able to make a living anywhere else."

The private was William McChesney Martin, jr., who drew a $48,000 annual salary as president of the New York Stock Exchange until his recent induction into the Army. He is telling the story while on furlough.

"NAME BAND" WARBLER TO BURT'S TRANS-LUX. Eileen O'Neill, the pretty bit o' Erin who sang with Harry James' orchestra at the New York World's Fair, will open at Burt's Trans-Lux next Monday eve. She has had a notable career as singing star with a number of topflight bands. Besides being with James, rated as the country's No. 1 trumpeter, she has caroled with Lyle ("Spud") Murphy, who did Benny Goodman's arranging before launching his own unit. Also, she's sung at New York's Commodore with Saxy Dowell, composer of "Three Little Fishes" and "Playmates" . . . Teamed up with Eileen will be one of Washington's favorite society pianists, Eddie Chase, who's been with Bert Bernath's orchestra at the Pall Mall Room all season. . . . This pair of clever young folks are worthy successors to that petite super-dooper, Beverly Stull, who'll receive hundreds of fond farewells between now and tomorrow night when she leaves for a northern vacation.

"Now, who's off their trolley? Violinist Johnny Shaw is saying to other members of Dick Koons' Mayflower Lounge band. Despite jeers and raspberries, Johnny has been prophesying a German-Russian war for months. Now his colleagues are pretending that he has a pipeline to the Kremlin.

BOTH A THEATER AND NIGHT SPOT JOB will be awarded to the winner of the Neptune Room's new series of "Impersonator Nights." A week's engagement at the Capitol Theater has been added to the original prize of a week's engagement in the Neptune Room. "Impersonator Nights" will be celebrated every Tuesday evening for six weeks between 10:30 and 11:30 and will be broadcast via WINX. Neptune's Don Baker will be pleased to interview prospective entrants in the contest. It's a grand opportunity for smart amateurs . . . As a matter of inspiration to amateurs Don will impersonate various nationally known stars every eve in Neptune. We'd like to see some gifted youngster imitate Don imitating Marlene Dietrich imitating an innocent young ingenue.

GOWNS, UNLIMITED. Cordoba, the lovely half of Maurice and Cordoba, now dancing on the Shoreham Terrace, has so many gowns that she can never get them all in any hotel room closet. She can perform several shows a day for two months and wear a different frock each time.

ORCHESTRA FRONT BULLETINS. Carr van Sickler is back on the Madrillon bandstand after

jovial host and proprietor of the Plymouth

a short but sharp battle with a run-down condition, says he's going to take a vitamin pill after every number . . . Durward Bowersox, brilliant violinist of the Rainbow Room Orchestra, has taken a downtown studio and will teach young hopefuls his special tricks in rhythm. If they absorb Durward's techniques, they'll all be sure of orchestra jobs . . . Bill Gibson, Glen Echo's master of the guitar, broadcasts both with Arthur Godfrey and Paul Kain.

Oyes! Oyes! This week-end offers you your last chance this summer to enjoy those hilarious floor shows at Kavakos' Grill. A flock of dazzling, not to say dizzy, acts have been booked by Bill Kavakos as a wind-up special and will cavort twice a night on this evening, tomorrow and Sunday. Kavakos' revues will be resumed in early September.

THOSE OLD HONEYS. "Stardust" is always beautiful. But Mayfair's Chordsmen have given it an incredibly lovely lilt in their new arrangement. It'll make you feel that you're floating around the Milky Way . . . "Falling in Love Again," hit song from the "Blue Angel" of a decade ago, sounds as dangerously luring as ever when sung by Don Taylor, of Restaurant "23" . . . Everyone perks up with pleased surprise when Ida Clarke plays "Because of You" in the Lounge Riviera. It's the favorite tune of Realtor Earl Mackintosh . . . When Jimmy Summerville sings "That Shanty in Old Shantytown" in the Hi Hat, the crowd goes sentimental and many a stray tear falls into a Tom Collins.

ROBIN HOOD IS A BEST BET. For fine food and fancy fun (and let the alliteration fall as it may) the Robin Hood is a pleasant headquarters. The steaks sizzle and so does the music. Cute Leslie Hare, as big as a minute, sings a great big jive song. Johnny Hartsfield, of the radio, is a trickster on the piano. And that affable pair, guitarist Jack Norman and accordionist Eddy Whitesel, enjoy playing every request.

TABLOID STORIES. Matt Windsor, of the Anchor Room, became engaged to Mrs. Windsor when he was a night club orchestra leader and she hang in the spot . . . Arthur D'Marchisio, maitre d'hotel of the Raleigh, who greets you in the Pall Mall Room, was a great favorite with gourmet Robert Goelet, who preferred Arthur to select his menus when he dined at the London Ritz and New York's Ritz-Carlton . . . Huey Llang is busy managing the Casino Royal nowadays, but he's a seasoned vaudeville trouper, journeyed all over the country as a star vocalist . . . Mary La Marr, now featured with Bill Strickland's Lotus Band, used to sing at the Madrillon, made quite a name for herself on the mid-West radio, before returning to Washington . . . A British colonel visits the Starlight Roof very often. He's always solo and always visits a lot with Songstress Lady Vine . . . Nick Hope and Bob Stickney, of the Silver Fox, were both a part of Troika diversion last winter. If you want to hear that Troika gypsy music just tell them.

The Nightingale is doing the biggest business of its four big years. You can't beat the combination of national defense activities and Rudy Raffell's band. At this rate the Gale is due for an addition.

HOSPITALITY PLUS rules in the Harrington Tavern, where you can drop in to cool off with "Sir Harrington" over interesting snacks and tall, tinkling glasses. Old style Southern service . . . At Olmsted's you'll be greeted by Leo who'll take a personal interest in your comfort, and knows all the answers when it comes to selecting an epicurean meal . . . At Hogate's you can enjoy a view of the river and a rare dish of pompano at the same time.

50% Slash Asked in Auto Production
War Department's Request Seeks to Free Plants for Defense
By W. H. Lawrence.

A reduction in automobile production of as much as 50 per cent has been asked by the War Department to release men, materials and management for the more urgent task of turning out airplanes, tanks and other implements of war for the United States, Great Britain and her Allies.
The request was made by Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson in a letter to William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, several days ago.

Drastic cuts in new car production would increase demand for late model used cars
Post's Best Buys!

Will the Army's request for a 50% cut in new car production meet with the approval of the OPM? If so, there will really be a boom market in late model used cars. But even if the 50% slash is considered too great, there has already been a 20% cut ordered. That in itself will increase the demand for the better used cars, will make selection become increasingly difficult later on.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Regional Offices May Be Moved First

Regional offices here are now believed to be the most likely agencies to be moved from the District in the decentralization drive to make way for the expanding defense agencies. It's estimated that there are approximately 13,000 Federal employes here who are in field offices. That figure, of course, doesn't include 16,000 at the Navy Yard who couldn't be transferred. One of the agencies that is going to have some embarrassing questions to answer on regional offices is United States Housing Authority. USHA has five of its seven regional offices right here in Washington and only two are located in the field, at San Francisco and Fort Worth.

USHA has 610 field employes here that serve its field offices for New England, New York and Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, District, and West Virginia, the Southeastern States and the Midwest. It isn't at all unlikely that the Administration will force the transfer of these offices to their respective regions.

Civil Service Commission has its Fourth District office here that has 223 employes. The Agriculture decentralization committee studied the possibility of transfering the regional office of the Forest Service to Philadelphia. Treasury has 669 regional employes here, War, 4,750; Justice, 404; Postoffice, 3,405; Interior, 676; Agriculture, 198; Commerce, 336; Labor, 114; Federal Security, 488; Veterans, 365; Selective Service, 90, and Federal Loan, 50.

Interstate Commerce Commission Chairman Joseph B. Eastman is reported slated for appointment as defense transportation coordinator. The President has been expected to set up the office for weeks to replace the office of the transportation commissioner of the old National Defense Commission which is headed by Ralph Budd. . . . It reported that Dana Doten, whose furlough case split the UFWA local at USHA, has been offered a job at the Office of Government Reports. . . . A Negro has won a significant promotion at Agriculture. He is Thomas N. Roberts who has been appointed special assistant to Personnel Director Roy Hendrickson. Roberts has worked in half a dozen Agriculture agencies and recently he took leave to attend the University of Wisconsin where he worked on his doctor's degree.

Army's Station Is WAR

Attention isolationists: The Army's own radio station here has the letters "WAR." . . . The Detroit police department once had a station with the scary letters "KOP." . . . Representative Ditter told the House that John E. Hamm, deputy administrator of price control, had been given a $3,500 salary boost to $8,000. He said it was "interesting" that Hamm was a cousin of Administrator Leon Henderson.

Ditter, in fact, compared the salaries of a dozen price control employes to show that they had been given substantial raises to join the new defense agency. David Ginsburg, he said, receives $8,000 as general counsel. At Securities and Exchange, Ginsburg was paid $5,000. Robert Holmes, an economist, was promoted from $4,200 to $5,400 and Carl H. Neibyl was bumped from $2,200 to $4,600 over his last previous employment according to Ditter. Constant Southworth was paid $4,600 at the State Department but he's now paid $7,600 at price control. Caroline Ware, chief economist, is paid $6,500, Ditter said, and her last previous employment paid her $4,400. She is the wife of Gardner Means who Ditter said was a "rabid New Dealer" who is employed in the Budget Bureau.

More than 7,500 defense appointments have been made within the last year from the emergency replacement list from the 10,492 names that have been on it. The order that set up the replacement list prevents these employes from being brought under Civil Service by the Ramspeck Act but opinion is widespread that the merit system will eventually be extended to cover them. The Civil Service Commission reports that there are now 800,000 positions in the Government that are directly related to national defense.

$54,793,336 D. C. Budget Nears Debate

Action Expected Today to Bring Record Grant To Senate Floor

By Robert DeVore
Post Staff Writer

An attempt to get action on the District's 1942 appropriation bill which in committee yesterday reached the unprecedented total of $54,793,336, may be made in the Senate late today.

District legislative leaders were reported last night to be ready to ask the Senate to approve the measure provided that body is able to get the $10,500,000,000 military appropriations bill out of the way first.

Hurry-up tactics are necessary, it is felt, if District officials are to avoid borrowing funds from the Treasury to run the city. Even if the Senate passes the bill today, only two legislative days will remain—Monday is the last day of the fiscal year—for conferees to iron out the $2,246,255 spread between the House-passed version of the bill and totals approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

New Items Added

The committee yesterday received from Senator Overton's subcommittee recommended appropriations totaling $54,308,336, but, hearing that city tax revenues during the 1942 pscal year are expected to yield $900,000 more than estimates given the House, the body promptly tacked on $485,000 in new items.

Even with increases voted by the full committee, Senator Overton said, District officials will have an estimated $700,000 to meet unexpected expenses. No change was made by the committee in the $6,000,000 Federal payment, and leaders on both sides of the Capitol agreed that there should be no serious controversies over the bill and no tax increases unless an attempt should be made to increase the United States contribution.

As reported from the committee, the bill exceeded 1942 estimates by $995,735 and was $4,335,701 above the current appropriation. All appropriation changes, except for a few minor items, were increases over House-approved amounts and were substantially the same as those previously announced.

Among last-minute changes voted by the full committee was addition of $50,000 as a revolving fund to enable the District to participate in the Department of Agriculture food stamp plan. If the House approves, the Board of Public Welfare will be provided with another means of assisting some of the 3,600 persons who are to be dropped from WPA rolls Tuesday.

With $5, for example, relief clients will be able to purchase $7.50 worth of food. The stamps would be purchased from the Department of Agriculture and sold to reliefers by the board.

Other Increases Listed

Other increases approved by the full committee were: $15,000 for plans for a new home for the aged; $150,000 for a new incinerator in addition to an equal amount voted by the House; $120,000 for the new Northwest Health Center for which the House voted $20,000 for site and plans; $100,000 for quarters for internes and physicians at Gallinger Hospital; $100,000 in addition to an equal amount recommended by the subcommittee for a new elementary school to replace the Cranch, Tyler and Van Ness schools.

The committee recommended striking from the bill a House provision to require non-residents to pay tuition for children attending District schools and substituting language similar to the present law. Persons working in Washington but living in nearby Maryland and Virginia are now permitted to send their children to school here without tuition payment.

Training School Change Urged

If another provision of the bill is retained, the National Training School for Girls on Conduit Road will be used exclusively for colored inmates. Acting District Welfare Director Conrad Van Hyning explained that because of the small white population at the school—six white girls are there now—it was felt that the correctional program could be improved and economies effected if the school is run as an all-colored institution.

The public school budget was increased to $784,250. These were the more important Senate additions:

For salaries of three teachers and a supervisor to expand the program for instructing physically handicapped children, $6,000.

For construction of a new senior high school at Twenty-fourth Street and Benning Road Northeast, in addition to $500,000 carried in House bill, $200,000.

To start an eight-room addition at the Benning School, in addition to $100,000 in House bill, $30,625.

To start eight-room addition to the Van Ness School, in addition to $100,000 in House bill, $30,625.

To start new elementary school to replace Cranch, Tyler and Van Ness schools, $200,000.

For new eight-room building near Hillside Road and Alabama Avenue Southeast—$167,500

Site for school near New Jersey Avenue and P Street Northwest—$90,000.

In upping the police budget $93,440, the committee recommended salaries for 44 policemen above the House increase of 54 and $8,000 above the House allotment for two-way radio equipment.

The Health Department was voted $342,880 increase, including $75,300 for additional personnel at Gallinger Hospital while a $215,315 public welfare increase embraced additions of $100,000 for public assistance and $12,500 to funds for construction of a new Receiving Home for Children.

364 Are Awarded Diplomas By Temple Secretarial School

Three hundred and sixty-four diplomas and certificates for specialized course were awarded at the Temple Secretarial School graduation exercisesh eld last night in the blue and silver ballroom of the Kennedy-Warren.

The graduates were addressed by Elwood H. Seal, formerly District Corporation Counsel, and by Donald K. Staley, secretary of the school, who presented the diplomas. Dr. Charles T. Warner, rector of St. Alban's Church, pronounced the invocation, and the greetings of the school were extended by Mrs. Caroline B. Stephen, president.

Special awards were presented to Francis M. Webb, of Mineral Wells, Tex., as the outstanding student of the year; to Nellie Todd, for the highest efficiency in shorthand dictation speed; to Dorothy Phebus, of Gaithersburg, Md., and Ruth Elizabeth Beane, of Rockville, Md., for highest efficiency in typewriting; and to Claire Bubley for highest efficiency in machine shorthand.

Mrs. Stephens also awarded scholarships at the Temple School to Louise Barnhouse, Frederick High School, Frederick, Md.; Alice Griesmer, Hood College, Frederick, Md.; Ily Morris, Hyattsville High School, Hyattsville, Md.; Marguerite More, Mount Vernon High School, Alexandria, Va.; Sarah Stuart, Washington-Lee High School, Arlington, Va.; C. Foster Watkins, Gaithersburg High School, Gaithersburg, Mr.; Mildred Coleman, Richard Montgomery High School, Rockville, Md.; Doris Hartman, Academy of the Holy Names, Silver Spring, Md.; Mary Jane Whittlesey, Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, Md.; Betty Jane Dickinson, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, Bethesda, Md.; Louise Crews, George Washington High School, Alexandria, Va.

Quiz Proves Correspondents Know Some Answers, Anyway

? ? ?—Ray Tucker, Doris Fleeson, Martin Kennedy and Mrs. Eleanor Palmer, who were questioned by "Professor Quiz" last night at the National Press Club

"Prof. Quiz" asked some pretty embarrassing questions last night and made three-top-ranking news correspondents, a Congressman, and a telephone girl fidget before packed house at the Press Club Auditorium and a C. B. S. radio audience.

John O'Brien, Philadelphia Inquirer writer and president of the White House Correspondents Association, won the $25 first prize, and Doris Fleeson, New York Daily News reporter, took second place and $15.

But the people's choice—as measured by applause—was Mrs. Eleanor Palmer, Press Club building telephone operator, who filled in when a fourth journalist failed to show up. Faced with a technical question meant for one of the newspaper fraternity, she came up with the right answer. The question: "What do the five W's stand for on a newspaper?" She replied: "Who, what, when, where, why."

Winner O'Brien had a good answer for the dizziest question of the program, but it was not good enough to be right.

Queried Prof. Quiz (Dr. Craig Earl): "For what particular reason did a certain United States Senator walk down the Capitol steps at 4:48 p. m. June 16, wearing a lady's hat?"

"Must have been a Senator campaigning for women's suffrage," quipped O'Brien.

But no, it was a lady, Hattie W. Caraway, Democratic Senator from Arkansas, and she was going home after a day's session. (Silly or not, that's the answer.)

Also competing in the test were Representative Martin Kennedy (Democrat), of New York, who knew that a gallon was 800 per cent of a pint, and Ray Tucker, McClure Syndicate columnist, to whom "a small room with four walls, no chairs, no windows, and no ventilation" is a phone booth (and correctly so).

Bitter Debate Is Forecast On District's Liquor Bill

Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, last night denied assertions that his bill to create 600-foot dry zones and to ban liquor-price advertising in the District is a monopoly measure. His statement came at the end of a day of preliminary sparring that foreshadowed one of the bitterest floor fights over District legislation in years.

The bill in question, approved by a 6 to 4 vote in an executive session of the House District Committee Monday, would establish dry zones around schools, churches, eleemosynary institution, playgrounds, public library, Soldiers' Home, Army post, Navy Yard or Marine Barracks. The committee agreed by amendment to permit liquor sales in hotels and clubs which might be located in dry zones.

The measure also would prohibit all forms of liquor advertising. Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, contends that this provision of the bill is so severe that it would bar hotels and restaurants from including prices on their wine lists.

Dirksen declared war on the bill yesterday, promising to fight the measure when it comes before the House, probably July 14, "with every parliamentary trick in the bag."

"This is the loudest bill I've ever seen," Dirksen said. "Of course it's a monopoly bill. It attempts to take care of a certain group that believes all this price cutting will end if, instead of doing something about prices, you let dealers sell at whatever price they want so long as they don't tell anyone about it."

Creation of dry zones throughout the city, Dirksen said, will make virtually impossible issuance of new beer licenses in grocery stores. Denial of the right to advertise prices will make it extremely difficult for a new dealer to establish himself in business because virtually the only way he can make himself known at the start is to advertise lower prices.

When the bill comes up in the House, Dirksen said, he will insist on a "field day with wide open, unlimited debate."

Schulte countered that the bill is intended to help the "little fellow" who can't buy liquor in lots large enough to enable him to sell below his competitors. He denied emphatically that his measure was inspired by any one group.

"This most certainly is not a monopoly bill," he declared. "The measure is a composite of ideas fro mabout 200 small dealers."

Lack of restraint by liquor interests in Indiana, Schulte said, is responsible for such a rise in temperance sentiment there that there is a good chance of the State going dry on a local option basis.

Unless the liquor business in Washington "cleans its own doorstep," he said, it is possible that prohibition might return to Washington.

Conference On Traffic Issue Called

Planning Board Acts to Solve D. C. Transportation, Parking Problems

Called and sponsored by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, a working conference will be held in the near future to improve mass transportation facilities as a partial solution to the parking problem.

Bedeviled by complaints and pleas to do something about the auto question, the commission voted yesterday to call the conference.

Simultaneously, the planners urged the District Commissioners to press for Congressional action on relief features of the recent Whitehurst report, chiefly installation of more meters and establishment of city-controlled parking lots on the fringes of the congested area.

Attacking other issues at their monthly meeting yesterday, the planners ratified a condemnation award to acquire the last major link needed for Fort Drive, suggested that the District Defense Council take the lead in developing a local air-raid precaution program and recommended further land acquisition in the Southwest and Northwest sections.

Conference Planned

John Nolen, jr., director of planning, said he will begin at once to invite interested agencies to send representatives to the public transportation conference. These will include, he said, the District and suburban transit systems, Bureau of Vehicles and Traffic, Highway Department, National Capital Parks, Public Buildings Administration, Budget Bureau and Civil Service Commission.

The date has not been scheduled, but it will be "soon," Nolen declared.

Emphatically the commission disapproved the proposal, advanced recently by Secretary of the Navy Knox, to convert many downtown parks into auto parks.

"Chairman Drederic A. Delano contributed his "aye" despite the fact that he has recommended that the West Potomac Park polo field be utilized, during the present emergency, as a space for 1,500 cars.

Delano Offers Plan

Chairman Frederic A Delano mendations, which he submitted to the commission yesterday, includes prohibition of free parking on all downtown streets; 45-degree angle street parking, whether it is free or pay; jitney service, reminiscent of 1917-18 wartime.

Thomas S. Settle, secretary, said it is the commission's feeling that the parking situation can best be solved by making mass transportation so attractive as to discourage motorists from driving their cars to work.

On the subject of air raid precautions, the commission reported progress made in conferences at which it has been represented, but recommended that the initiative should be taken by the District Defense Council.

Nolen and Settle joined in advising the planning body to press for Congressional appropriations to buy land in the Southwest and Northwest which was authorized for Federal acquisition 15 years ago.

Half of Land Bought

About one-half of the authorized land has been bought by the Government, and office buildings erected thereon, and there should be no delay in acquiring the remainder, they declared.

To do so, they added, would be more feasible than spending the same amount of money—and probably more—for construction of underground garages. Settle said that, roughly, $5,000,000 would buy the property authorized for acquisition in the Southwest and $2,000,000 in the Northwest.

The latest and last major link in Fort Drive, which is to be acquired through condemnation, will permit expansion of Fort Totten Park and join it with Fort Barnard Hill to the east.

Also approved for purchase by the commission was the site of a proposed playground near South Dakota Avenue and Channing Street Northeast of 2½ acres.

County Tax Rate Cut

Denton, Md., June 26 (AP).—Caroline County commissioners levied a county tax of $1.25 per $100 assessment for the fiscal year beginning July 1, a reduction of 2 cents per hundred. The State tax remains at 23.35 cents.

Arkansas Avenue Citizens Roused By Street Noises

Discussion centered around the elimination of unnecessary night street noises at the meeting of the Arkansas Avenue Citizens Association held last night in Telford's Cafe, Fourteenth and Decatur Streets Northwest.

A proposed cross-town bus route from Wisconsin Avenue to Bladensburg Road via Military Road was indorsed by the association and it was announced that in place of a July meeting the association will hold a moonlight trip down the Potomac on the Wilson steamship August 6.

Thomas R. Callahan, chairman of the Americanism commission of the District American Legion was the principal speaker. He talked on Americanism and urged that all prepare for proper defense of this country.

Frank Y. Pollard presided.

Smith Loser; Bloodworth Wins Game

Chase Starts, but Is Withdrawn in 12th; Lewis' Error Prolongs Battle

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The black-hosed Nats wore better than the White Sox yesterday. At the end of a marathon pitching battle that protruded into the sixteenth inning, Washington turned up with the winning run of a 3-2 ball game and 7,500 ladies' day fans scurried home.

Jimmy Bloodworth broke up the ball game. He pounded a single over Second Baseman Ken Kolloway's head in the sixteenth inning of the marathon and Buddy Lewis romped home from second to bring matters to a happy conclusion for the Nats.

Bloodworth exposed White Sox strategy as not so good. A moment before, Manager Jimmy Dykes had ordered Pitcher Ed Smith to walk George Case to bring Bloodworth to bat with two out. Bloodworth, hitless in seven previous times at bat, whacked the second pitch he saw for the game-winning hit.

Tough Loss for Smith

For blond, chuky little Ed Smith it was a shabby sort of defeat. He had outlasted Ken Chase, who retired with a blistered finger at the end of 12 innings, and for 10 consecutive innings after the fifth, the White Sox left-hander had held the Nats scoreless.

You may have your choice of Washington heroes, incidentally—Chase, Bloodworth, or Alex Carrasquel. The last named was the winning pitcher and a potent factor in the Nats' triumph. He kept the Nats in the ball game until they could win it.

Carrasquel relieved the luckless Chase at the start of the thirteenth and from that point to the finish he was a ball of fire. The big Venezuelan gave up only two hits to the White Sox in holding them at bay in the last four extra innings and twice he snuffed out Chicago rallies by snaring attempted sacrifice bunts and converging them into double plays.

Same Old Chase

But Chase, traditional hard luck pitcher of the Nats, saw no turn in his luck yesterday. By all odds he should have had a 2-1 victory in regulation innings. He was deprived of credit for the game when Buddy Lewis checked in with a dismal two-base muff of a hit by Taft Wright in the eighth inning and enabled the White Sox to tie the game at 2-2.

Lewis was not exactly a culprit in yesterday's game, however. He made four of the Nats' 12 hits and with two of his blows he drove across Washington's only two runs of the first 15 innings. Chase and Carrasquel held the White Sox to 11 hits.

Lewis inspired the Nats' winning run also when he coaxed a walk from the slightly wearying Smith at the start of the sixteenth. He was sacrificed to second by Travis and languished there when Cramer flied out. Then it was that the White Sox decided to walk Case and pitch to Bloodworth. You know what happened.

Sox Take Lead

The White Sox moved into a 1-0 lead at the outset of the ball game when Kollaway, by dint of fine sprinting converted a hit to right field into a two-bagger. He scored on a pair of infield outs.

Chase himself launched the run that tied the game at 1-1 in the third when he singled to center. He moved to third on Appling's two-base muff of Archie's grounder with one out. Cramer popped out, but Lewis ushered the pitcher home with a single to right.

Archie promoted the run that gave the Nats a 2-1 lead in the fifth when he doubled to deep center with one out. Cramer was no help, but along came Lewis with his third straight hit—a single over second and the Nats were in front.

Lewis Errs

Matters were moving along nicely for Chase. He pitched a stretch of six consecutive scoreless innings before Kreevich opened the eighth with a single to left. Kuhel popped out, but Wright bashed a

Dodgers Beat Braves, 11-2; Tie for Lead

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, June 26.—The Brooklyn Dodgers battered the Boston Braves, 11 to 2, tonight, scoring seven runs in the third inning, and advanced into a tie with the idle St. Louis Cardinals for first place in the National League.

It was the sixth win in six games for the Dodgers over the Braves this season. Until Boston tallied twice in the eighth stanza it had been held scoreless for 43 innings by Brooklyn.

Although losing a shutout on Gene Moore's single with the bases loaded in the eighth, Whitlow Wyatt held the Braves to five hits and achieved his eleventh victory of the season against four defeats.

The Dodgers unleashed a 14-hit assault on three pitchers. Al Javery, Boston's starting hurler, was charged with the loss.

This was the day's only game in the National League. It drew a crowd of 28,874.

Otto Greiner Beats Champ At Columbus

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, June 26.—Two youths who are no longer in college, the tourney medalist, and the Pacific Coast champion, romped into the semifinals of the forty-fourth National Intercollegiate Championship today as the defending titleholder dropped by the wayside along with plenty of other talent.

The semifinalists are:

Ray Brownell, Stanford sophomore and Pacific Coast intercollegiate king, who stands 6 feet 3 inches, and hits 'em a mile. He plays—

Danny Carmichael, Columbus youth who was graduated from Princeton a few days ago. Danny has never swung a club for Princeton, but captained the basketball team and pitched on the baseball team.

Greiner Wins

Otto Greiner, University of Baltimore 1941 graduate, former Maryland amateur and intercollegiate, and Middle Atlantic amateur champion, who plays—

Earl Stewart, Louisiana State junior, tourney medalist and favorite who is four over par for 99 holes.

Bob Brownell, Southern Intercollegiate champion from Duke, fell by 5 and 4 in the quarter-final round of the National Intercollegiate Golf championship today, losing to Stewart.

Bob Brownell eliminated Harry M. Iddlecoff, of Mississippi, in the third round. They batted on even terms through the first 16, but the short seventeenth, 180 yards to a sloping green, wrecked Middlecoff. Both were on with their tee shots, but Middlecoff's long downhill putt ran far past the hole and he needed three more to get in a for a five. Brownell three-putted for a bogey four to go one up, and they halved the last one in pars.

Ray Brownell reached the semifinals by beating Marshall Carlson, of Toledo, 2 and 1, after the Ohio Conference champion had eliminated Warren Berl, of Stanford, run-

DiMaggio's Hit Extends Streak to 38

Henrich's Homer Boosts Yank Streak; McQuinn's 4-Bagger Is Only Brown Hit

By the Associated Press

New York, June 26.—Lefty Marius Ugo Russo pitched a one-hit game today and the New York Yankees continued their prized hitting streaks as they bashed the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 1.

Russo mowed down the Brownies without a hit for six innings before losing his bid for baseball's pitching honor roll on George McQuinn's arching home run into the right field stands with one out in the seventh inning.

The 26-year-old southpaw faced only 28 men, one over the minimum, and let no one except McQuinn get past first base.

He issued two walks, one in the second and another in the third inning, and each time double plays erased the runners. Except for the homer, the Browns could get only seven balls out of the Yankee infield.

It was Russo's sixth victory against five defeats.

Joe Does It

Elden Auker limited the Yankee sharpshooters to six hits, but never had a chance to win. In the second inning he walked Charley Keller, and Bill Dickey and Joe Gordon followed with successive singles for a run. In the fifth Gordon tripled and scored on a single by Phil Rizzuto.

Tom Henrich led off with his thirteenth homer in the sixth inning to extend the Yankees' record streak to 35 four-baggers in 21 consecutive games. In the eighth Joe DiMaggio slashed a double into left field for a run and made this the thirty-eighth straight game he has hit safely.

Nats-Red Sox Clash Tonight; Sundra Hurls

The surprising Boston Red Sox, only three games out of the lead, move into Griffith Stadium tonight for a battle with the Nats under the lights, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Joe Cronin's club, fresh from a pair of victories over the Cleveland Indians in a three-game series, has renewed its pennant hopes with a brilliant stand against the Western teams during the past ten days.

Tonight, Cronin will send Jack Wilson, big right-hander to the mound. It will be Boston's first appearance in a night game at Griffith Stadium.

The Red Sox will be bringing with them Ted Williams, batting sensation of the league who is leading American League hitters with an average of more than .400.

Manager Bucky Harris will send Steve Sundra to the mound. Highly improved pitching in recent games has made the Nats a more formidable club. They've won eight of their last 12 games.

All seats at Griffith Stadium are reserved tonight, with no increase in prices.

Watch Out! DiMaggio's Trying for Record Now

Yankee Clipper Says He 'Might as Well Try To Keep It Up' Since He's So Close to Mark

By the Associated Press

New York, June 26.—The last man to get excited about Joe DiMaggio's sensational hitting streak of 38 consecutive games was Joe himself, but he wants to reach the record of 41 now as much as anybody.

"As long as I've gone this far, I might as well try to keep it rolling," he said today. "At the start I didn't think much about it, and I guess other people got warmed up over it before I did. It still doesn't worry me, but naturally I'd like to get the record since I am this close."

The mark for which the New York Yankees' great hitting star is aiming is a string of hits in 41 consecutive contests set by George Sisler, of the St. Louis Browns, in 1922, the same year that Rogers Hornsby, of the Cardinals, set the National League record of 33 games.

Fans Enthralled

The fans who come to Yankee Stadium these days are more enthralled at DiMaggio's hitting streak than they are by the winning or losing of the team and the other players on the club have caught this same enthusiasm.

Today DiMaggio had another narrow escape as he failed to hit in his first three times at bat against submarine baller Eldon Auker, of the Browns. His first time up he lofted a 400-foot fly which Roy Cullenbine camped under. His second trip he rifled a liner into the left field stands foul only by a few feet

Whirlaway to Miss Stars and Stripes $10,000 Handicap

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 26.—Warren Wright's Whirlaway, winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont stakes, will not start in the $10,000 added Stars and Stripes Handicap July 4 at Arlington Park, Trainer Ben Jones said today.

The Calumet Farm speedster, Jones said, will be sent to the post in one or two overnight races before going in the $40,000 added classic July 26.

Daily Trouble, owned by David Strauss and a classic eligible, came from far back today to win the Miss Woodford Purse, Arlington feature. W. U. Ridenour's Joan T. was second and John Marsch's Bitter Ender was third. The winner ran the mile in 1:37 3-5 and paid $35.40 straight.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

It may be too hot to argue, but the mootest of all questions is being provided by the American League pennant race, to wit, viz, and as follows: Which is the most valuable man to a ball club, a pitcher like Bob Feller or a guy like Joe DiMaggio?

POVICH

That may be like comparing Hedy Lamarr with Madeleine Carroll. Summed up, you can't go wrong with either one. We'd hate to miss out on a gift set of encyclopedias because we didn't guess the right answer to the DiMaggio-Feller teaser. As Jockey Jake would say it's tough to separate 'em, or he might remark, perhaps, that it's a tight fit. The guys around the tracks have a way of stating cases.

Anyway, we're going to take a shot at it. We think Feller would be the more important man on a ball club, especially in his 1941 form. When Manager Roger Peckinpaugh hands Rapid Robert a baseball and tells him he's the pitcher for the afternoon, baseball is witnessing the nearest thing it knows to a foregone conclusion. Feller figures to win any game he pitches.

He's won 16 games this season and lost only three. That means he has a winning percentage of .842. At the pace he is maintaining, he will win 36 ball games this season. There is no evidence that Feller is pitching over his head. His successive triumphs are evoking no surprise. When Feller loses, it has come to be staggering news. In his 20 starts thus far, only two clubs, the Tigers and Browns, have beaten him.

The club that owns Feller has no fear of a long losing streak. He can set a slumping team aright with the sheer magnificence of his pitching. If Feller encounters a slight slump in his present pitching pace and wins only 30, not 36, games this season, he will still have overmatched the victory output of any other player in the league despite the fact that he is in the Cleveland lineup every fourth day.

That, of course, will be the basis of all arguments in favor of DiMaggio—that the Yankee slugger is in the lineup every day with his powerful bat and centerfield skill. It will be claimed that DiMaggio, as a daily performer, skillful as he is, is more valuable than a pitcher working every fourth day. But is he?

If Feller were not around to pitch for the Indians they would still win some ball games on the day he normally would pitch. But how many of them would they win? Certainly not the 30 he figures to capture. The average pitcher in the big leagues doesn't win ten games a year. That would be a loss of 20 victories in the event of no Feller.

Thus, figuring that Feller means a difference in 20 victories to a ball club, how many games will a DiMaggio win for his team over the course of a season? Twenty? Perhaps. Perhaps DiMaggio's presence in the Yankee lineup will indeed influence that many games. But there is no guarantee that it will. DiMaggio, for all of his slugging and outfielding talents, does not seem to represent the difference between victory and defeat in that many games.

Suppose that the Yankees didn't own DiMaggio, even as we had been supposing that the Indians didn't have Feller. Certainly Joe McCarthy would come up with some sort of a centerfielder. And he would not be a dead loss. And if DiMaggio were absent from the Yankee lineup, there is reason to believe that his successor would, during the course of a season figure in a certain number of Yankee victories.

What we are attempting to point out is that Feller would be a harder man to replace than DiMaggio. There are other outfielders in the league who would make a fair substitute for DiMaggio, and a few of them are outhitting him at this point. But none would be so absurd as to attempt to name a pitcher who could step into Feller's shoes and come close to doing the same kind of a job that he would do for any club. They simply don't exist, beyond Rapid Robert.

We're trying to be fair about this thing, though. There are games in which DiMaggio does not exactly emerge as the hero. He doesn't drive in the tying run, or the winning run. A DiMaggio hit doesn't mean the difference between victory or defeat. But he's in there every day grabbing fly balls that few others can catch, and if he doesn't break up the ball game, there's a fair chance that he's softened the pitcher up for somebody else. DiMaggio is a nice guy to have on your side.

In fact, we're not so sure we'd rather have Feller.

Indians Rally, Win 16th for Bob Feller

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 26 (AP).—After Bob Feller spotted the Red Sox a 3-1 lead in the third inning, the Cleveland Indians battled from behind to give their great right-hander his sixteenth victory of the season, 11-8, today before a 24,000 crowd at Fenway Park.

Feller, who gave the Red Sox 11 of their 12 hits, including homers by Lou Finney and Bobby Doerr, was replaced by Clint Brown in the eighth, however, when, with two out, Finney tried to rally his teammates by lashing out a two-bagger.

The Indians clinched the game with a six-run rally in the seventh when they battered Starter Mickey Harris and Mike Ryba for as many hits, including two-baggers by Ray Mack and Hal Trosky, to pull into a 10-to-5 lead. The Sockers, however, collected three more tallies in their side of that frame when Doerr homered with two on base.

The Red Sox scored twice in the first on a pass and singles by Finney and Ted Williams, and three times in the third. Finney homered with Dom DiMaggio on base, and Williams and Joe Cronin connected safely. Ted scoring when Jim Tabor forced his manager.

Mack's double and two long flies gave the Indians their first tally in the third and Roy Weatherly's homer, a pass, two singles and an error provided three more in the fourth. They collected their eleventh in the ninth, when Weatherly tripled and scored on Emerson Dickman's wild pitch.

Jimmy Foxx was missing from the and then smashed a grounder at

Walkersville Appreciates No. 1 Citizen

Son of Challenger II Won $322,853 for W. L. Brann in 1940

By Anne Hagner

The most casual visitor to Walkersville, Md., would be aware instantly of its most famous citizen. Although he graced the premises for only the first year of his life, every store, every gas station, pays him open (and frequent) tribute in the form of pictures and signs, reading, "Walkersville — the home of Challedon, horse of the year, 1940."

Walkersville's No. 1 figure has been away at the races for the past four years, as you may have noticed, and has prospered to the extent of $322,835 for his owner, W. L. Brann, whose Glade Valley Farm extends to the very edge of the little town.

Every great race run and track record broken by the homebred by son of Challenger II has been almost a personal victory for Walkersville and Glade Valley, but those on the farm have a bit of added pleasure in watching the progress of Challedon's full sister, who, they will tell you, is practically a replica of the champ himself.

Guests Are Numerous

Frank Grosche, genial Kentuckian manager of Glade Valley, is an old hand at escorting guests up and down the spacious stable aisles of the various barns, reciting bloodlines with the fluency of constant association.

As he journeyed from stall to stall, each resident rates a brief word or pat, but the onlooker realizes that something special is afoot when a lead shank is snapped on the halter of a quiet-mannered bay yearling filly with a small white star on her forehead. The legend outside her stall says simply "Challenger II—Laura Gal," but it is sufficient to make her the most valued youngster on the farm.

Because she is Challedon's full sister, she outranks every four-footed resident of Glade Valley with only one exception—the stallion himself. Challenger II, in a tremendous building that is more house than stable, ranks fourth on the list of 20 leading sires in the United States for last year, preceded only by Sir Galahad III, Chance Shot and Bull Dog. During 1940 Challenger's get won $177,807, of which Challedon contributed $70,000.

The stallion, now 14, was bred to 45 mares during the last season, one of them the now famous Laura Gal. His youngsters have two characteristics in common—tremendous bone in most cases, and scarcity of white markings. Most little Challengers, like Challedon, have a single white dot on the forehead.

Laura Gal Discard

Laura Gal, dam of Little Sleeper, Challedon and the yearling filly, came under Brann's ownership by a strange quirk—she was discarded from the Woodward Stable and sold at auction. Without a foal this year, she lives peacefully on Glade Valley's 150 acres of pasture at night and in a cool, high-ceilinged box stall during the day.

In the same barn is an unusually fine collection of broodmares, including Inchcape Belle, only daughter of the stallion Inchcape, who was destroyed in a fire at the Sinclair Stable. She now has at her side a full brother to Thanksgiving, by Bud Lerner.

Molasses Jane Noted

Familiar to most race followers is the name of another Brann mare, Molasses Jane, who at 15 is the mother of three stake winners. One of them, Molasses Bill, has won 30 races and another, Molasses Bob, is close behind with 24 to his credit.

Khara, quiet-mannered chestnut mare, has an enviable reputation at Glade Valley. She won the Selima Stakes herself and is the dam of two of Brann's best-known horses, Savage Beauty and Athelwold.

When Mr. and Mrs. Brann are at the farm, the horses become used to the sound of Mrs. Brann's voice and every head is extended over its stall door to greet her, even if she has been away six or eight months. The reason? She invariably carries sugar for the gang. Mr. Brann, whose hobby is amateur photography, has stacks of pictures of the string, tops of which is a lovely likeness of Challedon's sister, taken in the pasture last year.

Of the 15 yearlings, 6 will go to Saratoga and the rest will remain at Glade Valley. One of the stay-at-homes is a full brother to Challephen, a bay colt by Challenger out of Phenomenon that shows much promise.

Grosche, who follows Challedon's career religiously, feels that he can meet Seabiscuit's money-winning record if he remains sound. The 'Biscuit's mark is $437,730, so that Challedon will be close on his heels if he is able to score in the Hollywood Cup, for which he is headed next month in California.

It took a horse to put Walkersville, Md., on the map, and they might possibly change its name in his honor if he beats that record!

Ted Olewine Enters Finals In Collegiate Net Tourney

Southern California Sophomore Defeats Bill Canning in 4 Sets at Haverford

By the Associated Press

Haverford, Pa., June 26.—Ted Olewine, husky sophomore from the University of Southern California, battled his way into the finals of the National Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament today in a hot hour and 50 minute struggle with Bill Canning, of the University of California.

The scores were 3—6, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3.

Olewine, who two years ago won the United States intercollegiate crown on the same Merion Cricket Club court, will meet the winner of tomorrow's match between top seeded Joe Hunt of Navy, and unheralded Joe Davis, the Vanderbilt University mite.

Canning, another dark horse in the fifty-seventh annual tournament, simply wilted under the blazing sun after winning a brilliant first set.

He played a hard, smashing game to break through Olewine's service and take the opener but seemed to wear himself out in the effort. The Southern California star, seeded No. 2, never was headed after Canning began to tire.

Canning staged a desperate rally in the final game, putting away seven spectacular placements to delay match point four times. It went to deuce five times in the wind-up—in all, there were 37 deuce points—before Olewine ended the match.

Hunt Favored

Hunt, who lost in the finals last year to Don McNeill, remains a heavy favorite to win the title this time, but he'll have to beat the tournament's giant killer to do it. His Nashville opponent has eliminated two seeded players already and has high hopes of adding the Navy star to his list.

Larry Dee and Jim Wade, of Stanford, defending champions in the doubles, advanced to the semifinal round with a 6—1, 4—6, 6—1 victory over William Gifford and Ken Randall, of Cornell.

Olewine and Canning also moved up in the doubles. The Trojan team of Olewine and Charley Mattman eliminated Warren Christner and A. Fincher, of Texas, 6—1, 6—8, 6—2, while Canning and Bob Hippenstiel, of California, defeated Frank Mehner and Cliff Berg, of Utah, 6—2, 6—4.

Angler Startled As Groundhogs Appear by Boat

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., June 26.—Former Juvenile Court Judge George D. Hicks was fishing from a boat for bass yesterday on the Potomac River when he was surprised by the appearance of the heads of two small animals beside his boat. He reached out and stroked their heads and they swam away. A few moments later he observed two groundhogs climb to the opposite bank of the stream and disappear. The groundhogs were frightened by a wheat binder in operation on the bank which they left, he believes.

Bill Cissell Released By Hollywood Club

Hollywood, Calif., June 26 (AP).—Bill Cissell, veteran Hollywood infielder, was given his unconditional release today. He had been with the club four years.

Portland sold Cissell to the Chicago White Sox in 1928 for $125,000 cash and players.

Babe and Ty Will Get a Break Today in 2d Leg on Golf 'Feud'

Ruth, Cobb Come to Grips on Tough Fresh Meadow Course, but Going Will Be Softened

By the Associated Press

New York, June 26.—They are going to give Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb a break when the two earnest but inept old baseball immortals renew their charity golfing feud tomorrow out at Fresh Meadow Country Club.

Considering the care that is being taken, in fact, it would not be surprising to see both of them break into the seventies.

Al Ciucl, the club pro, had a force out with measuring tapes late today planting the flags in the exact center of the greens, so that two putts should suffice from almost any point, and he also had them dusting off the ladies' tees.

Tough Layout

Ordinarily, Fresh Meadow is a very tough proposition, stretching nearly 7,000 yards from the championship tees and abounding in 450-yard, par-fours—the meanest kind there are. But tomorrow Babe and Ty will struggle only about 6,500 yards on their spike-scarred dogs and should finish fresh and full of fight.

"After all," commented Ciucl, "this is a charity match."

In yesterday's opening engagement at Boston, Cobb was victorious, 3 and 2, the Bambino having putter trouble and both soaring into the eighties. If Ruth squares it up by winning tomorrow they will play the rubber match in Detroit.

The Babe might do it, too, for Fresh Meadow is one of his several "home" courses and the wide fairways are excellently adapted to his disappearing tee shots. He has shot the layout in 75 a number of times.

Ever an individualist, Babe was out practicing hard today on the St. Albans course, which bears no similarity to Fresh Meadow except that each has clubhouse and 18 holes. The Babe assigned no reason for this bit of strategy. He's deep, the Babe.

An added attraction tomorrow will be Arthur Donovan, the famous fight referee, trudging along and umpiring the match in a vague sort of way. Arthur's ability to count to 10 should come in handy now and then, as the Fresh Meadow traps are deep.

Sam Snead to Play In National P. G. A.

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Tom Walsh, president of the Professional Golfers Association, said today that Sam Snead, veteran pro who has been handicapped recently by a back ailment, definitely will play in the P. G. A. tournament July 7-13 at Denver. Walsh said he had learned from Fred Corcoran, P. G. A. tournament bureau manager, that Snead, under treatment in Pittsburgh, had discarded the braces which he wore in the National Open early this month.

Pro-Amateur Style Of Play Changed For Tourney Here

Middle Atlantic P. G. A. members have changed the style of play for the next pro-amateur tournament, to be held Monday at Washington Golf and Country Club.

Each professional will play with an amateur with an official club or State handicap of from 1 to 10, 11 to 18, and 19 and over. Play will be combined score less the handicap of the amateur. Pros desiring partners contact Host Pro Dave Thomson.

Baltimore and Washington members of the sectional pro body are working on the Baltimore Open, which will honor Elkridge Pro Jimmy Roche and be played July 14. The next meeting of the association will be held July 18, at Suburban.

Mount Pleasant Club Host to 86 Players In Qualifying Today

Six places to the National Public Links Championship await the low scorers in today's section tests over the Mount Pleasant course in Baltimore, with 39 Washingtonians and 47 from the host city in a battle for the berths.

The national tournament will be held July 14-19 in Spokane, Wash.

Baltimore's well organized public links body has already raised several hundred dollars from a series of benefit tournaments and dances, and the host city qualifiers are assured of the cross-country ride, expnses paid.

If any Washingtonians quality today they may have to take it out of their own pockets, as no arrangements have yet been made to help any District qualifiers in the way of expenses. And paying your own expenses from Washington to Spokane is almost out of the question for the average muny player.

The trials will be over the 36-hole route, supervised by Preston Pairo and Tommy Doerer, jr., U. S. G. A. representatives.

The District will be well represented as the 39 entrants include Ted Burrows, Andy Oliveri, Bob Morris and Roy Smith.

Colored Golfers Play Tomorrow for D. C. Women's Title

The unbeaten colored women's Wake Robin golf team will play for the District championship tomorrow and Sunday at Langston. The tournament will be sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Department.

Mrs. Ethel Terrell is defending champion and Mrs. Sarah Smith one of the cofavorites. Other leading players include Mrs. Vydie Carter, Mrs. Marie Long, Mrs. Florence Coleman, Mrs. Lucy Parrish, Mrs. Lorraine Robinson, Mrs. Clara Jones, Bonita Harvey, Mrs. Paris Brown, Mrs. Amelia Lucas, Mrs. Frances Watkins, Mrs. Helen Harris, Mrs. Hazel Foreman, Mrs. Jerenia Reid, Mrs. Adelaide Adams, Mrs. Maude Shippen and Mrs. Gertrude Williams.

Earle Skinker Wins Two Matches in Eastern Schoolboy Golf

Washington Golfer 2 Over Par for Day; Medalist Don Kling Loses in 1st Round

Special Dispatch to The Post

Greenwich, Conn., June 26.—The Eastern Interscholastic field was reduced from 32 to eight in two match play rounds here today and the featured player was Earle Skinker, a Devitt Prep Student from Washington, D. C., who compiled a total of 14 up over two opponents. The 18-year old District golfer, who qualified for the match play rounds of the National Amateur last year, polished off Tom Hoover, of Deerfield, N. Y., 7 and 5, in the morning and he came out in the afternoon to administer a like beating to Charles Johnson, representing the Kimball School of Massachusetts.

Even Par in Morning

Skinker hit 12 of the 13 greens in regulation figures in the morning and was even par with 11 pars, a birdie and a bogey. In the afternoon he was two over with a double-bogey six on the sixth hole, two other one-over par numbers and a pair of birdies.

The blond youngster, who led the first day's medal play with a 72 and finished third in the qualifying, is now looked upon as the tournament favorite. He meets the highly regarded Charles Davis, a double-victor for Morrisville, in the third round this morning.

Medalist Don Kling was eliminated in a hurry, losing to Harold Ludke's eighteenth-hole birdie in the morning round.

Bob Edwards and Alvin Mayer, the Greenwich home-town hopes, each won two matches.

Baker Star, Bucs Rout Oil City, 20-2

Oil City, Pa., June 26 (AP).—Second string Catcher Bill Baker, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, banged out two homers and two singles tonight, driving in eight runs, as the National League team swamped its Oil City farmhands of the Penn State League, 20 to 2.

Manager Frankie Frisch tried out his announced new line-up in the exhibition, shifting the veteran shortstop, Arky Vaughan, to third base and using Rookie Alf Anderson at shortstop.

Henrich and Bride-to-Be

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Tommy Henrich, whose home run yesterday preserved the Yankees' streak, and his bride-to-be, Miss Eileen O'Reilly, New York nurse, talk over a shopping trip in New York a few hours before the Yankees beat the Browns, 4-1. They will be married July 7. Both are 25

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 26.—The Ruth-Cobb golf rivalry, for the benefit of the USO, revives the eternal debater as to which was the better all around baseball performer, and which would be chosen first by a super-manager who had his pick of all the great players the game ever produced.

CONSIDINE

We've found old ball players and veteran managers almost evenly divided on the topic. Some say they'd pick Cobb and their reasons generally are that he was the greatest batter, the greatest baserunner and the fiercest competitive force in baseball history. Some say Ruth, for he was the greatest slugger, one of the game's finest lefthanded pitchers and an incomparable producer of runs. Cobb retired after breaking 93 baseball records. Ruth had 30-odd to his credit when the curtain banged down on him, but he was a greater drawing card than Ty and we know a lot of baseball men who would give him the nod over Cobb because of that one department—and to hell with what they did on the field.

Cobb played the record number of 3,033 games in 24 years, came up to bat 11,429 times, scored 2,244 runs and made 4,191 hits for 5,863 bases. He stole 96 bases in one season, 892 in his lifetime, had a 24-year batting average of .367, led the American League in hitting 12 times (nine in a row) hit over .400 three times, hit over .300 for 23 consecutive years, made five hits in one game 14 times, rapped out 2,063 singles, was still so tough after 20 years in the league that on May 5, 1925 he hit two singles, a double and three home runs in six times at bat, etc., etc., etc., etc.

Ruth pitched 29 consecutive World Series innings without allowing a run, belted 723 home runs (to Cobb's 118), led the league in 1927 with the record-breaking number of 60 homers (Ty led the league's home run parade in 1909 with nine), hit 506 doubles (to Ty's 724), 136 triples (to Ty's 297) and never led the league in batting. Ruth's many mammoth pokes amounted to 5,793 bases, but Ty topped that with his 5,863 bases. However, Cobb made half again as many hits as Babe did.

Cobb's name is as frequent as semi-colons in the baseball record books, but it disappears almost completely in the slugging department, where Ruth's name rings almost monotonously. And, except for stealing home, Cobb wasn't much shakes in his two World Series appearances.

Ruth on the other hand rose to his greatest heights in the ten series in which he played. First he set his pitching record, with the Red Sox, batted over .300 in six of the series, hit .625 in one of them, knocked in 33 runs, hit 15 home runs, twice hit three homers in one series game—and even struck out more often than anyone else in series history, 30 times.

Curiously enough, each scored 100 or more runs a season just 11 times. Ruth batted in the enormous number of 2,209 runs during his 22 years, which puts him more than 600 runs out in front of his nearest rival, which happens to be Rogers Hornsby. Cobb is the all time champ among the run-producers. But his 2,244 tallies tops Babe's by just 70. His audacious baserunning (he'd score from second on sacrifice bunts) made up for what he (or the old time ball) lacked in resiliency at the plate.

While we were mulling over some of these always-hard-to-believe figures, we decided to call Clark Griffith and ask him which one he'd take. To our mind, Griffith is the shrewdest dealer in baseball ivory in the history of the game. Back in 1912, when he first took over the semi-bankrupt Washington team, he wrote out a check for $100,000 and handed it to the late Frank Navin, in the hope of buying Cobb. If Navin had accepted it and cashed the check, the checking account of the Washington ball club would have been $96,683 overdrawn.

"It would be a hard thing . . . to choose between those two," Griff mused. "They were each without an equal, but in different ways. Cobb was a better batter and a better runner and a great fielder. Ruth would give you that big hit that won you a game, and he could pitch and he had a better throwing arm as an outfielder than Cobb had. Just let me say this: It would be like trying to choose between two twenty dollar gold pieces."

Distance Qualities of Golf Balls to Be Pegged

New York, June 26 (U.P.).—The distance qualities of the golf ball will be pegged at approximately their present maximum beginning January 1, 1942, the United States Golf Association announced today.

This will be accomplished by limiting the velocity of the ball to 250 feet per second—approximately the same as that of first grade golf balls now manufactured. The present rules about the size and weight of the ball remain the same.

Carrasquel, Nats Defeat White Sox, 3-2

single to right. Kreevich was prepared to stop at second until he saw Lewis muff the ball. He scored while Lewis was tracking it down and Wright reached third on the play. But with only one out, Chase limited the damage to a single run.

Thereafter it was a tense duel between Chase and Smith, until Manager Bucky Harris withdrew Chase for a pinch hitter in the twelfth. Carrasquel took up the pitching job and continued to give the clever Smith a battle of it.

The Sox had the potential winning run on second with one out in both the tenth and eleventh innings, but Chase was bearing down magnificently. In the tenth he grabbed Kuhel's liner into the box and converted it into a double play. Through the ninth, tenth and eleventh, the Nats couldn't get a man on base against Smith.

Nats Waste Double

Lewis doubled with one out in the thirteenth to no avail, but Carrasquel was doing a superb job of it against the Sox. After Chapman opened the fourteenth with a single, the Venezuelan grabbed a pop bunt off Kennedy's bat, and Chapman was a double play victim. In the fifteenth, he walked Smith with one out, but on Kolloway's attempted bunt Carrasquel made another identical double play to snuff out the rally.

Carrasquel walked to open the fifteenth and it appeared that the Nats would score. After one attempt to sacrifice, Archie shifted his tactics and whaled a fierce drive toward third base at Kennedy who was playing far in. Kennedy made a sensational one-hand stop of the ball, and Carrasquel was forced at second. Cramer hit into a double play to end the rally.

That was in the fifteenth. It was the sixteenth, you remember, that was the Nats' lucky number yesterday.

Carmichael whipped two Stanford stalwarts today, supsetting Charley Finger, medalist runner-up, by 5 and 4, and then knocking out Dee Replogle, 2 and 1, in the quarter-finals.

Greiner got into the semifinals the hard way, being compelled to push aside F. Dixon Brooke, Virginia's defending champion, by 3 and 1, after eliminating Rchard Wolfely, of Illinois, runner-up for the Big Ten title, by 1 up in 21 holes.

Brooke and Greiner battled through the first nine all even and one over par, before Greiner's par won the eleventh. They halved the next two, and then Greiner reached the 475-yard fourteenth with a drive and a No. 4 wood, holing a 15-footer for an eagle, to go 2 up. He closed it out with a par on the sixteenth.

He closed it out with a par on the sixteenth when Brooke was unable to get his four after hitting a trap.

Stewart, who hasn't seen the eighteenth green yet in match play, copped a third-round win over E. K. Gravely, of Yale, by 3 and 1, and then in the match expected to be his toughest, defeated Bob Brownell, of Duke, the Southern intercollegiate king, by 5 and 4.

The Louisiana red head, still bothered a bit by a broken collar bone which the cast was removed about a week ago, toured the 14 holes against Brownell in even par.

Friday's semifinals will be 36 holes, with the finals scheduled for Saturday.

Johnson Turns On Power, A's Beat Tigers, 8-4

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 26.—Indian Bob Johnson gave the Detroit Tigers a lesson in hitting today as he drove in six runs to help the Athletics take an 8-to-4 decision over the American League champions.

hits among the Tigers.

The A's centerfielder slammed out two home runs, with two mates aboard each time, and two singles in five tirps to the plate. The homers were his fifteenth and sixteenth and tied him with Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees for the league lead. In all the A's collected 16 safeties off Tommy Bridges, Floyd Giebell and Schoolboy Rowe.

Phil Marchildon went the route for the Athletics and scattered nine

Arcaro Rides To Triumph

By the Associated Press

Delaware Park, Stanton, Del., June 26.—The riding wizardry of Eddie Arcaro prevailed here again when he brought Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable stalwart Swing and Sway off a back-breaking pace to score a convincing triumph in the fourth running of the $6,500 Diamond State Stakes.

With Gov. Walter W. Bacon of Delaware and Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor of nearby Maryland, witnessing the race from a flag-bedecked box, the little booter from the Blue Grass gave a thorough exhibition of the riding skill that has made him the country's ace race rider to bring the Greentree colorbearer to the wire a length and three parts in the van of Wheatley Stable's fast-closing but thoroughly vanquished, Choppy Sea.

Shortstop John Berardino, who knocked the ball down but didn't make a throw. It was an error. The next time he grounded out easily.

When the top of the Yanks batting order came up in the eighth it was obvious that DiMaggio wouldn't get another chance unless somebody got on base. With one out Red Rolfe waited out a walk. Then Henrich laid down a bunt to make sure there would be no double play and insure DiMaggio a last chance.

Then the stoic Italian strode to the plate and drove the first pitch on a line into left field for a double, scoring Rolfe.

DiMaggio won't admit he has been upset by this or any of the other close shaves he has had during this streak which started May 15.

"I just go up there and take my cut. If I miss once I take my cut again the next time. When I get stopped it will just be one of those things."

"No, I'm not superstitious. I've worn different neckties, shoes, sweatshirts, everything every day. They don't have anything to do with my hitting."

Baltimore to Be Host To Poles' Track Meet

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 26.—Although the event is a year away, Polish-Americans in Baltimore already have taken long strides in preparations to stage the quadrennial Polish-American games that will draw more than 1,000 atheletes here June 26 and 27, 1942.

Joseph Beczkowski, sports director of the Polish Falcons of America, Nest No. 888, said today that his group felt particularly proud that the games, which consist of track, field, gymnastic and swimming events for men and women, had been awarded Baltimore.

The intitial games were staged in Pittsburgh in 1936.

Besides drawing sports-minded Polish-Americans past school age, the events will include college, high and prep school students from all over the Nation.

The track and field events will be held at Baltimore Stadium. Beczkowski, who is handling preliminary arrangements, announced. The swimming events will be staged at the City College pool. He said the committee would begin intensive preparations for the games in September because of their magnitude.

He said the aim of Polish falcons here is to stage a show that will surpass efforts of Pittsburgh in 1938.

The entry list will include some of the Nation's outstanding athletes. Stella Walsh, famous woman athlete who has broken numerous world and American records, already has informed Beczkowski she will participate along with a bevy of entries from the Cleveland Girls Club, where she is located.

Wishy Jones Here Today For Workout

Wishy Jones, the Atlanta lightweight and long-shot opponent of Bob Montgomery Monday night in Griffith Stadium, will arrive today to conclude his training in public workouts at Turner's Arena.

Montgomery, the colored Philadelphia lightweight, concluded his work yesterday at Turner's Arena but will brush through a light session today at 1 p. m.

Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, Jack Benny's famous radio valet who opens at the Earle today, yesterday accepted Montgomery's invitation to be his guest Monday night and said he would make an effort to attend today's workout.

In his session yesterday, Montgomery again slapped Tommy Cross, his sparring partner, dizzy and had to be cautioned to take it easy by his manager, Frankie Thomas.

Montgomery will go to Philadelphia after today's workout. The fiery little fighter who recently defeated Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins is honor guest at a Philadelphia sports writers dinner tonight.

Jones, a hungry fighter handled by Eddie Walker, has been training at Stillman's Gym in New York with Chalky Wright, his stablemate. From Walker comes word that Jones worked eight rounds with Wright and Mike Belloise yesterday and that he is in top shape. Jones will bring with him his wife and child.

Phil Furr, who fights Al Franklin in a ten-round cofeature match Monday night, will also work today at the Fourteenth and W Streets arena. Oscar Wright and Eddie Allen will meet Monday night in a six; Lou Bass meets Ken Stribling in a four, and Phil Enzenga meets Tommy Hoover in the four-round opener.

Hotchkiss Wins Mallory Cup

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., June 26.—Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., today won the Mallory Trophy in the twelfth annual regatta of the Interscholastic Yacht Racing Association held on the Chesapeake B. off the Naval Academy.

The Hotchkiss sailing team, captained by John Wrightson, and consisting of F. Lee Moore, Jr., and Josiah Spaulding, with Watson Stewart as alternate, came through with a rush in the two final races held today, placing first in each. They took sixth place yesterday in the first finals.

Kent School, of Kent, Conn., was the runner-up in the sailing, finishing behind Hotchkiss. Kent was fourth in yesterday's final, and took a second and third today.

Mrs. Neblett Loses, 6 and 5, in Women's State Golf Upset

Intercity Semifinals Set Today

Mrs. Davy Defeats Mrs. Leo Walper; Miss Myers Scores Upset Triumph

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The Baltimore delegation accounted for another upset victim in the Maryland State Women's Championship yesterday at Chevy Chase, Jeanette Myers scoring in easy fashion over Mrs. T. F. Neblett, as the twenty-first annual event took on an intercity complexion for the semifinals.

In the upper bracket today the medalist and State Medal Play champion from Columbia, Mrs. Myron Davy, goes against Miss Myers while the other final round berth will be between Mrs. Betty Meckley, who needs no introduction and Mrs. Maurice Glick, a surprise semifinalist from Baltimore.

Mrs. Neblett, who moved here several weeks ago with a one handicap and the Louisiana State Championship, was horribly off her game yesterday, slicing woods, irons and muffing chip shots in addition to a costly putting streak which included four consecutive three-putt greens. She couldn't do anything right.

Miss Myers was out in 43 and 6 up as Mrs. Neblett, who won only one hole, required 49 strokes. Miss Myers ended the match on the back nine, 6 and 5.

Mrs. Davy was very much on her game as she turned back Mrs. Leo Walper, 3 and 2, and needed a pair of fours for a 76 as the match ended on the sixteenth green. If you don't think Mrs. Davy was playing fine golf, well try playing the first five holes of the back nine at Chevy Chase some time in 3-4-4-3-4.

Mrs. Walper dropped a 15-footer on the ninth hole to square the match at the turn as they halved five holes on the outgoing trip. Mrs. Davy started the back nine by winning the first two holes, however, and after halving the next three the Columbia player found fives good enough to win the match, 3 and 2.

Mrs. Meckley won the hard way over Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg, of Baltimore C. C. The latter won the first two holes, but Mrs. Meckley, after a third State women's crown, finally squared the match on the eleventh. At this point Mrs. Schluderberg, who had beaten Defending Champion Mrs. Stokes in the first round, started spraying shots and found three traps and two ditches on the next five holes to lose the match, 3 and 1. Mrs. Meckley had par for an approximate 79 with one hole to play.

Mrs. Glick, the Woodholme Club champion, who played in the second flight of this tournament last year, was a first flighter yesterday as she played steady golf in compiling a 3 up lead on Elizabeth Bonthron, of Hillendale, at the turn and went on to win, 5 and 4.

Looks Bad for His New Year's Resolution

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Morton Cooper, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, doesn't look so gay as he sits in a hospital bed thinking over his New Year's resolution to win 20 games in 1941. He has won seven but recovering from an arm operation is going to keep him idle another month. He's shown here keeping a Cards' boxscore by radio

Injuries May Cause Cooper Brothers to Break Pledges

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 26.—Injuries may cause the Cooper brothers, Morton and Walker, of the St. Louis Cardinals, to break their new year resolution.

On last January 1 Morton, the pitcher, resolved to win 20 games in 1941. Catcher Walker, up for his first year in the majors, resolved that he would be behind the plate when Mort came through with those 20 victories—for most of them anyway.

Today Walker mopes around with a broken shoulder blade, received in a game collision May 18. He may get back in harness in July. Morton is recuperating from an operation on his right elbow from which a chipped bone was removed. He might be back in the line-up in a month—or it might be a year.

Tall Work Ahead

At any rate, they've got some tall work ahead of them to make good on that 20-game resolution. Morton's record is seven won and three lost.

Early in the season he proved himself one of the most brilliant of a scintillating corps of moundsmen. Walker played like a veteran before he was hurt. Morton had his troubles, too. He was knocked out of the box four times in succession.

Worried about his miserable performances, he finally had his arm examined and the chipped bone showed up.

Cooper Decides

Rather than risk permanent injury by continuing his turn on the mound, the pitching Cooper decided on the operation.

"It was his decision," Manager Billy Southworth said. "I feel he did right in submitting to an operation.

"If things go well I hope to have him back in a month."

"And if I'm back in a month I'll get those 20 games yet," vows Morton.

"And I," chimes in Walker, "am going to be in there when he gets those games.

"When the Cards play in the World Series we want to feel that both of us did our share in bringing the club home."

Heurich Halts Reliance, 4-3

Heurich Brewers scored a run in the ninth to defeat Reliance Life Insurance, 4-3, yesterday in a Post-Industrial League game on the Ellipse.

The Brewers made only four singles off Erdhart but made them count, while Reliance touched Colliflower for five hits, including a double and triple.

The league-leading Brewers will meet Cameo Furniture at 5 p. m. today in a game that may affect first place. The Furniture team is only a half game behind. Cameo will pitch Frank Deavers or Walter James. Art Lacy is expected to hurl for the Brewers.

Bill Poland Knocks Out Harry Bobo

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, June 26.—Bill Poland, fast rising New York slugger, came, from behind tonight to knock out Harry Bobo, of Pittsburgh, in 54 seconds of the eighth round with a right smash that carried every one of his 198 pounds.

Poland, whom Jack Kearns calls a "second Dempsey," got all the worst of it early in the final round of the scheduled ten-round affair, but suddenly came out of a clinch to sock Bobo flush on the chin, to end the battle. Poland weighed 212.

Between 9,000 and 10,000 fans saw the outdoor card in Baltimore Stadium.

Savold Scores K O

In another scheduled ten-rounder, Lee Savold, 190, of Des Moines, Iowa, stopped King Kong, 192, Baltimore, in 40 seconds of the sixth stanza. The Baltimore Negro was down for a nine count in the second, and barely stayed for the bell in the fifth.

Pat Comiskey, 219, Paterson, N. J., toyed with Jack Cunningham, 192, Detroit Negro, for two rounds before settling down to business. He nailed Cunningham with a left to the body and a smashing right to the face to win by a knockout in 50 seconds of the third round of another bout that failed to see the ten-round limit.

Potomac Club Host to Rowing Regatta Sunday

The Potomac Boat Club starts its seventy-second year of activity Sunday by playing host to oarsmen from Alexandria, Richmond and Baltimore in a four-club regatta on the Potomac above Key Bridge.

Nearly 40 oarsmen, representing the Old Dominion, Virginia and Arundel Boat Clubs, will take part in the event, begun by the Southern Rowing Association groups two years ago. Sunday's regatta is the first of a round-robin series which will see regattas held by each of the other clubs in home waters during the summer.

Competition will be in the four-oared gigs, quadruple sculls and the eight-oared shell feature race. The regatta will be open to the public.

Coleman Triumphs Despite Surprise 'Steinborn Snatch'

Milo Fails in Attempt to Bamboozle Half-Pint Groan Artist; Freeman-LaChappelle Win

Stubby Abie Coleman triumphed for the sixth consecutive time last night when he bested Milo Steinborn in the headline match of the wrestling show at Turner's Arena. The famed "Coleman Clutch" failed to turn the trick, but Abe, not one whit confused, dug up some old strategy and uncorked a series of tackles, following through with a body press after some 28 minutes of brawling.

Milo, a rugged individual, if there ever was one, stole a page from Abie's book and used the "Clutch" early in the bout, and for a moment had the victor in trouble. Then he went into a trance and came up with something labeled the "Steinborn Snatch," which almost convinced Abie that he should have stayed home with a good book. However, Coleman rallied nobly and after 25 minutes of horseplay managed to slip in the usually-reliable "Clutch." Milo slipped out of this as easily as you'd take off a loose girdle, but then Abe ran amuck with his flying tackles and clamped on the body press—it was a sight to behold.

The "thrill" of the evening, however, came in the two-man team match which pitted Ace Freeman and Maurice La Chappelle against two Dead End Kids called Angelo Leone and Jim Austeri. This fracas proved conclusively that wrestling is where vaudeville went.

The winners, Freeman and La Chappelle, butted their opponents' skulls together in one instance. Upon another occasion they drove the Dead Enders out of the ring and up the aisles. Then Austeri and Leone got to quarreling among themselves as to who should take it next, and a beautiful friendship was ended.

Lou Plummer, minus a front molar since he last showed here, and Hans Kampfer waltzed to a draw, and Tommy Rae put a crotch hold on Angelo Savoldi after 18 minutes of the opener.

Kavakos Ten Wins Capital Feature, 6-4

"Boots" Johnson's two-run homer culminated a five-run Kavakos rally last night at Washington Softball Stadium and enabled the Capital City League leaders to hold first place by turning back a scrappy Carr Bros. & Boswell ten, 6-4.

Five Kavakos errors, all in the first two innings, enabled Carr Bros. to take a 4-0 lead and set the stage for what would have been the upset of the year. But Kavakos bats boomed in the fourth when Jack Smith's single and triples by Lee and Tom Boggs in addition to Johnson's homer gave the Grillmen five big runs.

In the National Night League, Census Bureau, behind the five-hit hurling of Milt Hoffman, upset the favored U. S. Aggies, 5-1. Hoffman put down an Aggie rally in the seventh by striking out the side. Hecht Co. downed May Hardware, 9-4, in the Sherwood League opener.

Tonight at 8:15 May Hardware will tangle with Garvin's Grill at 8 o'clock in Capital City League play and at 0:15 Elite Laundry will take on Evening Star in National Night League competition.

Midget Track Improvement Promised

The response of local and nearby fans to last Tuesday night's eight-race midget automobile inaugural at the new West Lanham, Md., oval, will result in wholesale improvements on the grounds of the new raceway in short order.

President Edward L. Mahoney last night announced that work on enlargement of the free parking area on the huge lot adjoining the stadium will be started this morning and that many new attendants also will be on hand to properly park automobiles and direct traffic Tuesday night when the races are continued at 8:30 o'clock.

"The traffic situation proved our only drawback in an otherwise auspicious opening last Tuesday," Mahoney declared yesterday. "The fans were wonderful all the way through, and if they'll give us another try Tuesday night I'll promise plenty of pleasant surprises.

Mahoney also announced that contractors will continue work on the $6,000 macadamized track this week.

Ernie Gesell, the leading midget automobile racing driver of the East who was unable to appear here last Tuesday after splitting a motor in a Reading, Pa., race two days previously, yesterday wired Mahoney that he positively will compete Tuesday. Bill Schindler, unavoidably detained in New York on business, also will be present.

Faulconer Entry Wins Charles Town Feature, Pays $9.60

Zac Pam Is Defeated By Head; Clay Hill Third; Daily Double Pays Backers $20.80

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 26.—Holders of tickets on the P. H. Faulconer entry in today's feature race, sat back and smiled as the two stablemates staged a thrilling stretch battle. Trainer C. H. Fitzgerald sent two sharp 3-year-olds postward in the Frederick Purse, and they finished heads apart on the front end. Rippling On, a daughter of Omar Khayyam, was the winner and Zac Pam, a daughter of Zacaweista, was second. Five lengths behind the entry came Capt. Ewart Johnston's Clay Hill to be third in a starting field of eight going 4½ furlongs.

Jockeys George Napier, who rode Rippling On, and Willie Kelly, who piloted Zac Pam, did not work as an entry. Trainer Fitzgerald evidently gave them "get home if you can" instructions for they worked hard on their mounts right down to the wire. Rippling On, winner of three races last year shook off Misty Eve to get to the front. Zac Pam, a maiden, came to the inside to reach serious contention. Then they both drew away from the pack in the stretch run.

The entry paid $9.60 with the majority of the heavy money going on Scootie, one which ran a dull race. The winning time of 0:50 was one second over the track record for the abbreviated sprint route set by Irene's Bob.

The daily double paid $20.80. Jockey Danny Scocca, Washington boy, turned in a fine saddle exhibition in getting Bull Terrier, a $8.20 shot, to the wire in the second race. The son of Bull Dog finished in front of Mariyah and Sun Voter. The third race went to Erin's Girl, handled by Jockey Carson Kirk, the Silver Spring Sande. Kirk had some trouble but wiggled the filly loose and show down, among others. Nora R. and Smart Lad. She paid $6.60.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOWMET, $3.80, $3.20, $3.40; SUN MAKER, $8.20, $4.40; DOTTIE, $3.00.

MOWMET, handling his weight well, took command at once and was kept to a drive despite having long lead through stretch run. SUN MAKER raced on outside from beginning and closed with good energy. DOTTIE moved up and then weakened. SPECIALIST was no serious factor.

SECOND RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:06½. Off at 3:07½. Winner, Mrs. M. A. Gheen's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BULL TERRIER, $6.20, $3.80, $2.60; MARIYAH, $19.40, $13.80; SUN VOTER, $6.00.

BULL TERRIER, steadied while closest to MARIYAH'S pace, went around latter to take command and drew out under driving tactics. MARIYAH was hustled to front going to first turn, set good pace, could not resist winner and was best of others. SUN VOTER closed some ground from sluggish beginning.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:36½. Off at 3:37. Winner, Mrs. R. S. Clark's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRAZEN HUSSY, $26.20, $9.00, $4.60; REMOLEE, $5.60, $4.00; DELHI DAN, $7.00.

BRAZEN HUSSY cut over at first turn to take command, drew out and was kept going under good handling to end. REMOLEE was in thick of contention throughout and closed with good energy. DELHI DAN closed willingly to show good effort. GARDEN POOL was crowded at first turn.

SIXTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:56½. Off at 4:58. Winner, P. H. Faulconer's ch. f. (3), by Omar Khayyam—Rippling Crimp. Trained by C. H. Fitzgerald. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RIPPLING ON (entry), $9.60, $6.40, $4.00; ZAC PAM (entry), $6.40, $4.00; CLAY HILL, $4.20.

RIPPLING ON disposed of MISTY EYE to take command and withstood repeated bids of ZAC PAM through stretch. ZAC PAM came to inside to improve position, but hung in final sixteenth while under pressure. CLAY HILL was hard ridden and closed gamely. LAST BET was well placed on outside and weakened in final stages.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:26½. Off at 5:27½. Winner, H. O. Wilt's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOROCCO D., $6.80, $4.20, $3.80; IVY X., $7.80, $5.80; SUMMER STOCK, $5.20.

MOROCCO D., steadied while saving ground early, came to outside of IVY X., rallied when shaken up and won going away. IVY X. took command on backstretch, was strongly handled, but could not resist the winner. SUMMER STOCK was in close quarters on inside early and flattened out when placed to drive. BLOX rallied mildly.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:57½. Off at 5:58. Winner, J. T. Engle's ch. g. Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

If you want to go in the horse business there's a chance coming July 2. On that day, C. M. Feltner will conduct an auction sale in the paddock of 15 horses, including Wale Signal, Din, River Broom and Mud Lover. The consignment is the property of H. R. Dulany, jr., the Shenandoah Stable and Feltner. I'm going out of the horse business. I disposed of Maetake yesterday to Lou Cappe, in whose name the mare will run today. Although I picked her when she won, there are too many people betting Clymene and the others when they do not get close. Anyway, that colt, Walter Haight, is keeping me broke, despite the fact that Alan Clarke is paying for his oats. Here's a correction: The plater, Of Course, did not bleed in that recent race, as I was informed. In fact, Trainer Fritz Bollmer says she never bled in her life. Yesterday's program was unique in racing. There wasn't an apprentice allowance made on any of the 63 horses in action. Jockey Martin Bletzacker has been doing well since he lost his "bug" this week. He is keeping his weight around 112 pounds and does his best work at that figure without reducing. Jockey Willie Kelly is three winners ahead of Palumbo. Incidentally, I thought Sammy put up a bad ride on Tavern. The track photographers were taking a picture of 3-year-old Norman Hernandez, son to the jockey, the other morning, and had the youngster astride a big dog. Just as the camera was about to be snapped, Norman fell off. "Chip of the old block," remarked a wise cracker. The 2-year-old champion around here is Mowmet, the son of Mowlee, and has won five straight in as many starts here. Yesterday he carried 125 pounds and won well off from his rivals. This is not a Man o' War, but a real game juvenile. As I have written before, is mother, Metamora, was used exclusively as a polo pony.

BILL.

First race—LADY DIVINE has shown the best move of any of these juveniles and is the natural choice in this field. PUP TENT has been showing speed and belongs in the thick of contention. RIPPLE ON could be the third one.

Second race—TIME PASSES was messed about in that recent effort and still had enough punch to win. With clear sailing, this one should take it all. NOTORIETY is racing into condition and is dangerous. SATIN ROYCE, LADY BUCK and FUSIONETTE are good ones on the reserve list.

Third race — BUTCHER BOY seems well placed in this company and appears capable of carrying top weight to victory. LENA GIRL is far down the list but is too fit to be disregarded. CHARMING BOY and DONA MONTEZ are sharp now.

Fourth race—CHAKRA demonstrated rare ability last out and deserves the call among these. MEADOW GOLD won here impressively and should be a keen factor. SNUGGLE might have needed that last.

Fifth race—I'M THE GUY has plenty of foot and gets in the right spot in this sprint. Needs only a share of the racing luck. MR. JIM is good now and deserves attention. REAL BOY is better than shown recently.

Sixth race—SHAILLEEN gets my call in this rather open affair. Has shown stretch punch and is likely to turn it on today. DASHING DOE is better than generally rated and belongs close. Featherweight should help IDA TIME.

Seventh race — CHALOTAUR breaks off the rail, has good form and promises to get good handling. ALAMODE has been knocking at the door and promises to be a keen factor. MAETAKE downed cheaper ones.

Eighth race—KELLY'S LAD won at the first asking here. He is a doubtful starter, but will be tough to beat if sent postward. COUNTY CORK did everything asked last out. AGNES KNIGHT and ACE OF TRUMPS go in new hands.

Sub race—If this event is used, I'll take PART ONE, DANZIG VICTORY LIGHT.

A. T. & T. Files $233,584,000 Bond Issue

By the Associated Press

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. filed with the Securities Commission yesterday a registration statement covering $233,584,900 of convertible debenture bonds—the largest single issue ever submitted for registration.

The statement also covered 2,335,849 shares of capital stock to be reserved for conversion of the bonds, and warrants evidencing the right to subscribe to the bonds.

The company had made known some time ago its intention to raise considerable new money for plant improvement. Its statement yesterday, however, did not disclose the interest rate or the maturity dates of the bonds. This information will be filed later.

The bonds will be offered at par to holders of A. T. & T. capital stock of record July 25 on the basis of $100 principal amount for each eight shares of stock held. Subscription rights will expire August 29.

The company said that unsubscribed bonds would not be offered publicly and there will be no underwriters.

Some of the proceeds, the company said, may be used to redeem some outstanding 5½ per cent bonds.

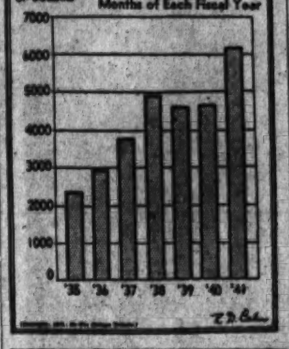
N. Y. Utility Files Issues

New York, June 26 (AP).—New York State Electric & Gas Co. today filed with the Public Service Commission a revised financing program for $35,393,000 first mortgage bonds and 120,000 shares of 5¼ per cent preferred stock.

On Monday the company tried unsuccessfully to sell by competitive bidding a similar issue of bonds and 120,000 shares of 5 per cent preferred stock. Four syndicates submitted bids for the bonds but none appeared for the preferred and because the company had specified both types of securities were to be sold, all bids were rejected.

Under regulations of the State public service commission, a utility preferred stock cannot be sold for less than $100 a share. It was assumed in financial quarters that by lifting the interest rate to 5¼ per cent from 5 per cent on the preferred, bids for the senior stock would appear if and when the public service commission approves the revised program.

Internal Revenue Receipts



A. & P. Earns $18,336,617 During Year

By the Associated Press

New York, June 26.—Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. reported today for the fiscal year ended February 28 net profit of $18,336,610, or $7.92 a common share, compared with $18,663,571, or $8.07 a share, in the previous 12 months.

Gross sales totaled $1,115,774,058, compared with $990,358,339 in the previous year. Federal taxes were $7,100,000 against $4,035,000.

John A. Hartford, president, said: "More than 53 cents of every dollar spent in A. & P. stores for fruits and vegetables were returned to our suppliers last year as compared with 46.8 cents four years ago, a percentage well above the national average for produce marketed through all channels."

Earnings Reports

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad reported net railway operating income in May totaled $5,702,705, against $2,958,943 in the same 1940 month. Freight revenues in the month jumped $4,883,287 to a total of $17,891,618 while passenger revenues increased $307,437 as compared with same month last year. For the first five months, B. & O. net railway operating income aggregated $17,315,478 as compared with $9,535,548 in the same 1940 period.

Other raids reporting for May showed these results compared with the same month a year ago:

New Haven Railroad—May net income (this is after all charges including interest) $587,226 against a deficit of $607,875.

New York Central—May net operating income $5,133,024 against $2,872,606.

Santa Fe System—May net operating income $2,865,723 against $631,837.

Boston & Maine—May net operating income $1,091,226 against $509,453.

Lehigh Valley—May net income (estimated) $423,000 against $49,458.

Brewster Aeronautical Corporation reported net profit of $752,277 for four months ended April 30, after reserves for Federal income and excess profits taxes, or $1.46 a share on stock outstanding. This compared with $270,195, or 59 cents a share, for the like 1940 period.

Collins & Aikman Corp. and subsidiary reported net earnings for the quarter ended May 31 amounted to $800,037 after provision for normal Federal and State income taxes and Federal excess profits tax, equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.33 per common share, compared with net earnings of $741,085, or $1.22 per common share, in the like 1940 period.

Northern Pacific Railway reported net railway operating income for May of $1,531,763, an increase of $363,631 over May, 1940.

Premium Quoted For Bond Offering Of Philadelphia Co.

New York, June 26 (AP).—The $48,000,000 of 4¼ per cent bonds of the Philadelphia Co., a utility holding company, offered today by a banking syndicate, was reported in Wall Street circles to be quoted at a substantial premium over its offering price of 102½ per cent of face value in the first test of the Securities & Exchange Commission's recently promulgated rule requiring competitive bidding for securities of this type.

The company also offered $12,000,000 of serial notes, which were reported to have been sold out by the underwriters shortly after the opening of the market.

Wall Street advices from San Francisco indicated a syndicate had been formed to bid on and reoffer to investors 590,527 shares of San Diego Gas & Electric Co., common stock, the first issue of equities to be offered under the competitive bidding regulation.

Fabricated Steel Orders Off Sharply

New York, June 26 (AP).—The American Institute of Steel Construction reported today new orders for fabricated structural steel in May were the smallest of any month this year, totaling 165,186 tons, compared with 212,320 tons in April and 126,815 in May, 1940.

Shipments of the steel were larger than the average shipments for the year, about 7,500 tons in excess of new orders. In May, 172,730 tons were shipped, while 181,747 were shipped in April and 115,617 tons in May, 1940.

The backlog of orders scheduled for shipment in the next four months was 718,897 tons.

Deposits Decrease In Postal Savings

Postal savings deposits at the end of April are reported by the Federal Reserve Board at $1,317,000,000. This was $3,000,000 less than at the end of March, and $16,000,000 less than at the end of April, 1940.

Bank Excess Reserves Drop $160,000,000

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday lendable excess reserves of banks declined $160,000,000 to a total of $5,150,000,000 in the week ended June 25.

The decline was due to a number of factors, including an increase of money in circulation and Federal tax payments.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended June 25 member bank reserve balances decreased $148,000,000. Reductions in member bank reserves arose from increases of $57,000,000 in money in circulation, $57,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks, $36,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and $17,000,000 in Treasury cash, offset in part by increases of $8,000,000 in reserve bank credit, $8,000,000 in gold stock and $6,000,000 in Treasury currency. Excess reserves of member banks on June 25 were estimated to be approximately $5,150,000,000, a decrease of $160,000,000 for the week."

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended June 25, 1941, were reported as follows:

Fresh Milk Now In Soldiers' Diet As Innovation

New York, June 26 (AP).—United States soldiers in cantonments and on maneuvers have fresh milk in their daily diet, the Milk Industry Foundation reported today, for the first time since the Revolutionary War.

More than 350,000 quarts of fresh milk, as well as 20 tons of butter and more than 10 tons of cheese, are consumed daily under the present diet, which calls for 6 ounces of milk, 2 ounces of butter, 1 ounce of evaporated milk and ¼ ounce of cheese for each man. This demand for fresh milk and daily products means that more than 1,000,000 quarts of milk are required each day for pasteurizing and distribution or processing into dairy products for the Army.

The Milk Industry Foundation also reported that sales of fluid milk during May increased 8.9 per cent over the same period a year ago. The daily average for May showed sales of 7,162,696 quarts, compared with 6,576,696 quarts in May, 1940.

Copper Products In Heavy Demand

New York, June 27 (AP).—Movement of copper in finished products from manufacturing plants in May reached a new monthly high of 139,164 tons, topping the previous high of 137,535 tons in March and exceeding by 12,969 tons the April shipments of 126,195 tons, metal circles reported today.

The heavy rate of consumption was attained through use of 49,190 tons of copper from Latin-America, the largest amount of such metal going into domestic manufacture for any month to date.

At the end of May there was a deficit of 264,850 tons in consumers' copper supplies on hand and purchased for future delivery when matched against needs for working stocks and unfilled orders, dealers estimated.

Annuity Payments Taxable in Kansas

Topeka, Kans., June 26 (AP).—The Kansas Supreme Court held in a far-reaching decision today that payments made to insurance companies under annuity contracts are subject to the States 2 per cent premium tax. The tribunal divided 4 to 3 in the case.

The State insurance department is expected to collect about $500,000 in back taxes from about 25 companies under the decision.

The test case was brought by the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. The concern maintained that the law applied only to insurance premiums and that annuity payments did not come within its scope. Twenty-six other insurance companies agreed to be bound by the decision.

Tobacco Men to Set Mart Opening Dates

Virginia Beach, Va., June 26 (AP). The Tobacco Association of the United States will announce tomorrow the opening dates for the sales season in the various belts from Georgia to Virginia.

The sales committee convened today for discussion of the market openings with representatives from the tobacco growing areas and is expected to make its report at the associations business session during the morning.

J. W. Dunnington, of Farmville, Va., president, and other leading figures in the industry were on hand totday. Dunnington and George Van Dyne, of the Commodity Credit Corporation, Washington, will be tomorrow's chief speakers.

Engineering Awards Are Tripled in Week

New York, June 26 (AP).—Engineering construction awards for the week ended today were reported by the Engineering News-Record at $143,520,000, a gain of 312 per cent over the total for the corresponding week last year. The volume was 17 per cent under the previous week, which was high for the year.

For the last four weeks construction totals have topped the $100,000,000 mark.

Public construction showed the widest increase over last year, 443 per cent, but the figure was down 18 per cent from the previous week's record total. Private awards were up 40 per cent compared with last year but 14 per cent under a week ago.

Stock List Stages Moderate Recovery; Carrier Bonds Strong on Profit Reports

New York, June 26.—Stocks generally exhibited further rallying tendencies in today's market without working up a great deal of enthusiasm.

The list, hesitant at the start, began to pick up plus signs later and, at the close, fractional advances predominated, with a few wider swings in evidence. At the same time, many issues finished under water and a wide assortment was unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .1 of a point at 41.8, duplicating yesterday's advance. Dealings expanded in the first and final hours, with transfers totalling 533,390 shares against 425,730 the day before.

Market sentiment seemed mildly stimulated by hopes that the Bolsheviks were putting up a stronger resistance against the Nazi invasion than most had expected. Claims and counter-claims of belligerents, however, still left the facts in doubt.

The domestic business budget considered in boardrooms included a more than seasonal rise in last week's freight loadings to a new top since 1930 and May railway statements revealing the best net and gross showings for the month in 11 years.

Steels edged up at the last, as maintenance of high operating rates in this industry were predicted. Motors managed to finish a shade ahead despite the row between Federal Price Administrator Henderson and Chrysler on the rescinding of recent boosts by this company and the warning by the OPACS head that price-fixing legislation was a possibility. Announcement also was made that tire and tube prices would be frozen at June 16 levels.

Strength of major commodities was a bolsterin ginfluence for securities. Cotton futures ended up $1.05 to $1.15 a bale within striking distance of 11-year highs posted earlier in the week.

Savage Arms and Reading Railway common, among stocks, entered new high territory for the year. Others in front were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Glenn Martin, Sperry, N. Y. Shipbuilding, American locomotive, Anaconda, Kennecott, Western Union, Dow Chemical, Du Pont and Newport News Shipbuilding.

J. I. Case lost 2⅛ points and Douglas Aircraft was off 1¼.

Among Curb favorites were American Cyanamid "B," American Gas, Bell Aircraft, Brewster Aero, Glenn Alden Coal, N. J. Zinc and Pennroad. Volume here was around 106,000 shares compared with 69,000 Wednesday.

Railroad issues were far out in front of a generally advancing bond market today.

Publication of additional earnings statements indicating that many roads had the best gross and net return in May since that month in 1930, brought buyers to the rail posts early in the session and it was there that much of the day's total business of $13,128,100, par value, was handled. It was thhe biggest turnover since May 6 and compared with $9,082,700 on Wednesday.

Obligations of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad enjoyed wide favor after confirmation by a Federal court of the road's reorganization plan. A half dozen individual issues of the company advanced small fractions to 3 points in heavy trading.

Others moving up fractions to more than a point included Boston & Maine 4s at 68, Chicago & Alton 3s at 16¼, International Great Northern first 6s at 18½, New Haven convertible 6s at 28½, Missouri Pacific 5s at 28½, International Mercantile Marine 6s at 89 and Portland General Electric 4½s at 82½.

Changes in the foreign group were mostly fractional and the trend was uneven. There was a fair demand for some Japanese issues at higher prices. Denmark 5½s dropped 10½ points to 54½ on limited offerings.

United States Governments were quiet but retained a steady undertone. In over the counter dealings some of the longer term tax exempt Treasury loans made modest gains.

Cottonseed Oil Leads Jump in Commodities

By the Associated Press

Farm commodities continued their rapid price climb yesterday in futures and cash dealings in Eastern and Midwestern markets. Some items reached high levels for a decade or more.

Leading the move in the New York exchanges were cottonseed oil, up .35 to .38 of a cent a pound (this market attained the highest prices since 1926); Santos coffee, up .10 to .20 of a cent; world sugar, up .02 to .04 of a cent; cotton, up $1.05 to $1.15 a bale.

Wool tops closed .02 of a cent a pound higher to down .4 of a cent. Cocoa and hides were a shade lower. Rubber rose .10 to .30 of a cent, but dealings here were limited to evening up of old contracts, new commitments having been barred by recent Government action.

Chicago wheat advanced 1⅝ to 2 cents a bushel, partly in sympathy with rises in hogs, soybeans and lard. Corn closed unchanged to ¼ higher.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples advanced to a new four-year high at 88.97 per cent of the 1926 average, compared with 88.47 yesterday.

$1.03 for New Wheat

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—The first car of new wheat to be received in Chicago was sold here today at $1.03 a bushel despite its comparatively poor grade.

This was only 2 cents below the best price for July futures quoted on the Board of Trade during the session. With wheat prices the highest since May, 1940, the price quoted for new wheat was more than 20 cents better than a year ago and the best since 1937.

The car received graded No. 4 red because of certain foreign matter, tested 59.6 pounds per bushel and 12.7 per cent moisture. It came from eastern Indiana. With No. 2 old red wheat priced at $1.05½, the market was 9½ cents below the Government loan rate for new grain.

New York, June 26 (AP).—Cottonseed oil futures prices today scored another wide advance to the highest levels since August, 1926. At the top some contracts were ahead 41 points. The close was 35 to 38 points higher. Dealings amounted to 457 contracts.

Chief motive for the new wave of buying was continued broad demand for edible oils in the cash market and strength in other farm staples. Trade reports said some cash vegetable oils were marked up as much as ½ cent a pound.

Futures closing prices: July, 12.91 bid; September, 12.67; October 12.50; December, 12.38; January, 12.39.

Rail Loadings In Week Reach 11-Year High

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that 885,558 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was an increase of 22,583 cars, or 2.6 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 157,065 cars, or 21.6 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 247,024 cars, or 38.7 per cent, compared with 1939.

Loadings were the highest since the week ended November 2, 1930, when they totaled 934,715 cars. The previous 1941 high was 868,017 cars for the week ended May 24.

The rise in total loadings was of more than seasonal proportions. Miscellaneous freight and grain shipments were classifications showing the largest gains. Livestock declined moderately.

Private Martin, Ex-Market Head, Tells of Rebuke

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, June 26.—William McChesney Martin, jr., former New York Stock Exchange president and now an Army trainee, made a brief unscheduled address last night at a banquet honoring Emil Schram, newly elected exchange president.

Private Martin told of his Army experiences. Six days after he was inducted, he said, a sergeant called him from the ranks to practice executing "right about face," which he had been doing badly. Each try was worse than the preceding, Martin said, until the exasperated sergeant said:

"I've met some stupid men in my day but I never met anyone like you. I don't know you name but you're awfully lucky to be in the Army. You couldn't make a living anywhere else."

Martin was 33 when he was named president of the exchange at a salary of $48,000 a year.

Defense Bond Questionaire

Q. What is the reason for buying a defense bond?

A. To keep America free. To show your faith and pride in your country. To warn foreign dictators that the United States is the strongest country in the world.

Q. But if I have not enough money to buy a defense bond, what can I do?

A. Buy defense postal stamps, on sale almost everywhere. Your postoffice, bank, department store or druggist has them, or can get them for you, at 10 cents upward. Save enough stamps to exchange for a defense bond.

NOTE—To purchase defense bonds and stamps, go to the nearest postoffice or bank, or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington.

World Wheat Supply to Top 1939 Record

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that world supplies of wheat for the marketing year beginning July 1 were expected to surpass the 1939 record of 5,508,000,000 bushels.

This year's crop was forecast as about the same as last year's production of 4,042,000,000 bushels, but reserves of old grain were said to be the largest of record, due principally to the war's restriction of export trade.

Production in the Northern Hemisphere may not be very different, the department said, from the 3,608,000,000 bushels produced last year. Increases in Europe and the United States were expected to about offset decreases in Canada and the Orient.

Present crop prospects in Europe indicated a production larger than the very small crop of about 1,360,000,000 bushels harvested last year, but still below the ten-year (1931-40) average of 1,573,000,000. Prospects were said to be poorest in the Balkans.

Production in the southern hemisphere may possibly total between 25,000,000 and 50,000,000 bushels more than last year's crop of about 435,000,000 bushels, the Department said.

Washington Parley To Study Surplus

Ottawa, Ont., June 26 (Canadian Press).—Representatives of the four major wheat exporting countries, troubled by the weight of grain surpluses now on hand, will meet in Washington July 10 to discuss questions relating to international trade in wheat after the war, Trade Minister J. A. Mackinnon said today.

Surplus grain in the four major exporting nations — the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina—on July 1 were forecast at 1,137,000,000 bushels compared with 805,000,000 last year.

The surplus inthis country was placed at 398,000,000 bushels, or an amount sufficient to supply 60 per cent of a year's domestic needs. This supply will be supplemented by thsi year's prospective bumper crop of about 910,000,000 bushels.

The Canadian surplus was said to total about 540,000,000 bushels, or the largest quantity ever carried over by a single nation.

The Department said that the size of world stocks, together with curtailed import markets, would greatly depress United States prices were it not for the Government loan program designed to support prices at 85 per cent of parity. Current domestic prices, computed on the basis of export values, were said to be about 40 cents higher than existing export price levels.

Slight Decrease In Auto Output Noted in Week

Detroit, June 26 (AP).—Automotive News in its regular survey of automobile production today estimates output for this week at 126,086 units compared with the 128,084 vehicles it figured as last week's production. A year ago this week assemblies totaled 84,758.

The trade publication says that some of the smaller companies already have started tapering off on 1941 model production.

The survey places the aggregate of June assemblies at "well over 580,000 cars and trucks," and adds that "most of the major companies are scheduling full operations through July."

General Motors' output is estimated at 55,195 this week against 55,210 last week; Chrysler divisions at 26,740 against 26,581, and Ford divisions at 27,500 compared with 28,193.

New York Cotton

New York, June 26 (AP).—Cotton futures today came within striking distance of recently established 11-year highs under a new wave of buying inspired by Washington "cotton news."

Closing prices were at the top with gains running from 21 to 23 points.

In its buying operations the trade seemed to regard as significant reported opposition in the Senate Agricultural Committee to cotton textile price fixing. Also attracting attention was a report that the Congressional farm bloc was urging the Government to buy all 1940 cotton crop left unsold at the end of July at full market prices.

Worth Street business was at small levels and prices were unchanged on most basic cloths.

Exports Thursday, nil; season so far, 1,013,367. Port receipts, 7,311; port stocks, 3,315,272.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Selling evaporated at times in the wheat pit today, permitting moderate buying of mills, commercial and speculative interests to lift prices as much as 2¼ cents to new highs for the past 13 months.

Buying was based partly on the small portion of new wheat which is being offered for sale as reflected by meager hedging sales, and was stimulated also by showery weather in parts of the harvest area, strength of soybeans, lard and hogs and Russian claims of success in certain military operations. Reports that downstate mills were overbidding Chicago offers for the small amount of "free" wheat up for sale also attracted attention.

July and September futures touched highs of 1.05 and 1.06¾, but due to profit-taking, the market closed fractionally below best levels. Final prices were 1¼@2 cents higher than yesterday; July, 1.04⅝; September, 1.06¼@1.06⅝.

Corn closed unchanged to ⅛ up; July, 73⅞; September, 76¾. Oats @¼ higher; soybeans, 3@4 higher; rye, ⅝@1⅝ up, and lard, 17@30 higher.

Dr. Forman Dies; Educator And Historian

Dr. Samuel Eagle Forman, 83, educator and historian, died yesterday at his home, 3600 Albemarle Street Northwest, following a brief illness.

Vigorously active until a few days before his death, the noted political scientist had written and published in his eightieth year "In Defense of Democracy."

Descendant of a pioneer Maryland family, Dr. Forman was born in Brentsville, Va., the son of Francis E. and Eliza Jane Miller Forman. Following graduation from Dickinson College, where he also received his master's degree, Dr. Forman earned his doctorate of philosophy at Johns Hopkins University.

He served as principal of Salisbury (Md.) and Bristol (Conn.) High Schools and in 1900 was appointed director of teachers' institutions for Maryland. Contributor to many periodicals, Dr. Forman also wrote many works and textbooks on American history, politics, civics and men of affairs.

Among the volumes are "Life and Writings of Thomas Jefferson," "Philip Freneau," "Conditions of Living Among the Poor" (1906), "A History of the United States" (1910), "The American Republic," "The American Democracy," "The Rise of American Commerce and Industry."

He leaves two nieces, Mrs. J. Frederick Essary, and Mrs. Isabell Croswell, of Washington. His wife, Caroline, died three months ago.

Services will be held at the residence at 10 a. m. tomorrow, with burial in Baltimore.

Mrs. Agnes Scott, Widow of Former Senator, Dies

Funeral services for Mrs. Agnes V. Scott, 93, who died in her home, 2400 Sixteenth Street Northwest Wednesday night after an illness of nearly six months, will be tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N Street Northwest. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Scott was born in 1848 in Martin's Ferry, Ohio. In 1870 she married Nathan Bay Scott and moved to West Virginia. She came to Washington in 1896 with her husband who was at that time Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He resigned to run for Senator and was elected.

Her husband served in the Senate until 1911 when he left to organize the Continental Trust Co. here. He died in 1924.

Mrs. Scott is survived by one sister, Mrs. George Trowbridge, 3160 Nebraska Avenue Northwest; two granddaughters, Mrs. Peter H. H. Dunn, of Bermuda; Mrs. Daniel J. Callahan, jr., 3301 University Avenue Northwest, and two grandsons, Guy T. Scott, 4521 Dexter Street Northwest, and Nathan Bay Scott 2d, 3300 Nebraska Avenue Northwest.

George E. Davis, Painter, Dies; Rites Tomorrow

George E. Davis, 54, of 1019 G Street Southeast, lifelong resident of Washington, died yesterday after a brief illness in the Mount Alto Hospital.

Mr. Davis was a painter and active for 31 years in the painters' union, Local 368. He was at various times president and business agent for that organization. During the World War he served in the Army.

He is survived by his wife, Annie M. Davis, and nine children, John H. Davis, Estelle Davis, William Davis, Donald Davis and Earl Davis, all of 1019 G Street Southeast; George Davis, jr., 326 South Carolina Avenue Southeast; Albert J. Davis, who is traveling in Virginia; Mrs. Margaret Livingston, 906 Seventh Street Southeast, and Mrs. Elsie Welch, of Seat Pleasant, Md.

Funeral services will be at the residence tomorrow at 10 a. m., followed by burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Last Rites Held For Mme. Jacquin

Final rites were held yesterday for Mme. Marcelle Madeline Pillard Jacquin, 42, wife of Col. Paul Antoine Jacquin, Air Attache at the French Embassy here. She died Tuesday in Doctors Hospital following a short illness. Services were held in St. Matthew's Cathedral. Burial was private.

Mme. Jacquin arrived in Washington last November and made her home at 2237 Bancroft Place Northwest. She leaves beside her husband, two children, Francois and Madeline. Col. Jacquin came here four years ago with a French purchasing commission.

Friends Boosting Glass As Senate Pro Tem Head

By the Associated Press

Friends were working yesterday for the election of Senator Glass, 83-year-old Virginia Democrat, to succeed the late Senator Pat Harrison as president pro tempore of the Senate.

Senators George (Democrat), of Georgia, and Connally (Democrat), of Texas, also have been mentioned for the post.

Glass was designated by Harrison to serve for a time as president pro tem while Harrison was under hospital treatment.

Church Music Papers Heard By Organists

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Round-table discussions on topics pertaining to their craft occupied the delegates to the second biennial convention of the American Guild of Organists yesterday morning at a meeting in Foundry Methodist Church. Warden Channing Lefebvre presided over the interchange of views which followed the presentation of papers on "Church Music Ideals," by Rowland W. Dunham; "The Value of Junior Choirs in the Program of the Church," by Grace Leeds Darnell, and "The Renaissance in Choral Music," by Carl F. Mueller.

BROWN

Much interest was aroused by Dr. Glenn Dillard Gunn, who urged the organists to utilize more advantageously the tone-color resources of the greatest of all musical instruments. He contended that the public can be stimulated to greater interest in organ recitals if the players will vitalize the classics in ways analagous to certain modern orchestral transcriptions of Bach.

His remarks were illustrated by Edouard Nies-Berger, who played the Bach fantasia in G minor with beautiful contrasts of tone, and enlivened the C minor prelude and fugue with humor. The brief demonstrative recital included a "Prayer" by Marco Enrico Bossi, Walter Piston's clever and dissonant fantasia on the name of Bach, and an "Eclogue" by Bernhard Wagenaar.

At the noon hour, Leslie P. Spelman gave an interesting recital in Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, beginning with pieces by Henry Purcell, William Byrd and Louis Clerambault, and indicating the romantic period with a prelude by Sigfrid Karg. The major portion of his program was devoted to contemporary composers, some of the works being so new that they were read from manuscript.

Among these exhibits of present-day music were a charming prelude by Frederick Jacobi, a prelude by Paul Pisk, a theme and variations on Indian themes by Horace Alden Miller, an effective piece, "The Fountain," by Eric De Lamarter, a "Carillon" without bells by Richard Keys Biggs, four "Casual Brevities" by Rowland Leach, and a "Sonata da Chiesa" of solid workmanship by the Dutch composer, Hendrik Andriessen.

Last night the delegates attended an evensong service conducted in Washington Cathedral by Paul Callaway. This was a repetition of a service recently presented there by the Cathedral Choir augmented by singers from the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, the Chapel of the Holy Comforter, and St. John's Church, Georgetown. The program reached its climax of interest in the "Five Mystical Songs" by Ralph Vaughan Williams, settings of poems by George Herbert.

Aircraft Labor In East Not Yet Organized

By Dan Rogers

United Press Staff Writer

The labor need with relation of America's far-flung defense effort falls into two categories, the ever-growing need for more skilled workers and the ever-present need for "willing workers."

The first has to do with expanding the supply of skilled workers, for whom specialized training is necessary, fast enough to keep pace with the rapid growth of defense industries. The second has to do with keeping the hundreds of thousands of defense workers satisfied so that production will not be held up by stoppages and strikes.

Industry, with the cooperation of local educational authorities and of Federal Selective Service officials, seems to have the first phase of the labor problem well in hand with company training schools in which thousands of men are being trained for the additional skilled jobs.

Training Varies

This training varies from short courses familiarizing a new man with one simple machine operation to lengthy courses turning out all-around mechanics and even foremen and superintendents. In industry generally, it appears that this program will be adequate—considering that workers in vital defense plants are exempt by most draft boards—but there will not be a skilled worker too many available.

The second phase of the labor problem—avoidance of strikes and stoppages—is far too complex and controversial to be discussed here. However, here are a few of the things noted in a tour of a number of the largest defense industries, and the remarks of a few plant executives on the subject.

The greatest labor field in defense industries east of the Mississippi not yet organized by the C. I. O. or A. F. L. is in aircraft, both engine manufacturers and plane builders.

The great engine plant of Pratt & Whitney at Hartford is not organized. Neither are the thousands of workers of the Glenn L. Martin Co. at Baltimore. The great Curtiss Wright group, making both engines and completed planes, has an independent union. So does the Thompson Products Co., of Cleveland, major manufacturer of valves and other parts for aircraft engines.

C. I. O. Working Hard

At all of these plants the C. I. O. is making intense efforts to get a foothold, with apparently not a great deal of success as yet. At these plants company-labor relations apparently are on a friendly footing and none have had any major labor trouble in the recent past.

Burdette Wright, vice president and general manager of Curtiss Wright, with more than $700,000,000 in defense contracts, stated the labor case at his plants in language which might be applied to the aircraft industry generally in the Eastern States.

"Labor relations at Curtiss Wright have been good and the men have been very cooperative," he said. "Now they are being affected by the trend of the times and as a result we have gone to arbitration on wages. Two men from the union (The Aircraft, it is called), and two from the company selected a fifth impartial member. At the moment wages are being worked out at the plant here between the union and the management.

"We don't expect any strike but you never can tell. The C. I. O. is at the gate all the time."

With the signing by Ford of a union contract, the labor situation in the vital Detroit area, with gigantic defense orders embracing aircraft, guns, shells, tanks and numerous other articles in addition to huge automotive orders, appears brighter than in most sections of the country.

Custody Suit Faces Woman Who Beat Boy

The ordeal of Mrs. Evelyn N. Stewart in the District Court was not ended yesterday when a jury of three women and nine men found her guilty of beating and burning Jimmy, her 7-year-old son by a former marriage.

Next week she will enter the courtroom of Justice M. Morris to fight the efforts of her first husband, Kenneth Ford, to obtain custody of the child.

Mrs. Stewart yesterday stood in the criminal court of Justice T. Alan Goldsborough and heard the foreman of the jury pronounce her guilty. The jury arrived at its decision 15 minutes after it was closeted.

Maximum penalty for Mrs. Stewart under statute law is two years in jail or a fine of $250, or both. Justice Goldsborough will pronounce sentence today.

Prosecuting the case, which lasted one week, was assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margolius. The defense was presented by Attorney Paul S. Sedgewick.

Mrs. Stewart was accused of first beating Jimmy and then placing him in a tub of hot water at their home, 2133 First Street Northwest, last April 17.

Listen!
with Glynn

You'd think when a girl was going on vacation the next day that, possibly, she might sort of skimp her work in the last few hours on the job.

But that isn't the case with Kate Smith, whose "Variety Hour" is going off the air for the summer after tonight's performance over WJSV and the Columbia network.

No indeed! For not only is Kate presenting two full hours of entertainment for the Nation tonight, as is her wont—the show for the East between 7 and 8 p. m. and the one for the West Coast three hours later—but she's also appearing as a guest star on C. B. S.'s new "Proudly We Hail" series at 9:30.

On the "Proudly We Hail" program, dedicated to American defense workers, Kate is to sing some new patriotic songs, in keeping with the times.

On the "Variety Hour," just for the sake of variety, Kate is to sing some songs, but they'll be a selection of the selections which she has found to be best liked by her radio audience during the 1940-'41 season.

The "Variety Hour's" place for the next few weeks will be taken by the new romantic serial, "Claudia and David," a capsule form of which you've been hearing on the show for these past four weeks. It bids fair to equal the popularity of "The Aldrich Family," which has become a regular network feature, after having got its start in exactly the same way on the Kate Smith Hour last year.

Contract Bridge

You hold the East cards of today's hand, taken from the recent World Bridge Olympics, at a four-spade contract. South opens the seven of hearts. Plan your play so as to take ten tricks and win a "par."

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
EAST DEALER

NORTH: ♠ 6 4 ♡ Q J 10 8 2 ◇ 10 7 ♣ 10 7 6 2
WEST: ♠ A Q 10 3 ♡ A 9 4 3 ◇ K 5 4 ♣ K 4
EAST: ♠ K J 9 8 2 ♡ K 6 5 ◇ 9 6 2 ♣ 8 3
SOUTH: ♠ 7 5 ♡ 7 ◇ A Q J 8 3 ♣ A Q J 9 5

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ◇	Dble	1 ♡
1 ♠	2 ♣	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 7 ♡.

The Solution

Faced with four losers—two in diamonds, one in clubs, one in hearts—declarer should see that the best chance is an "elimination throw-in" of South through the third round of diamonds.

East wins the opening lead. Two rounds of trumps are taken, and East leads a club. After the two club rounds are out of the way, East regains the lead, by a trump if necessary, and leads a diamond.

Regardless of when South chooses to take his ace of diamonds, the king wins the first or second round, and the third forces South in the lead. His forced minor suit return permits West to ruff and East to discard a heart. East wins his contract, losing only two diamonds and a club.

This line of play depends upon finding both minor aces in the South hand, with South having a singleton heart and North no more than two diamonds. The bidding shows that all important cards are probably so placed.

8 Ship Firms Agree to Cut Subsidy Rates

By the Associated Press

Eight American steamship companies engaged in foreign trade under operating-differential agreements with the Maritime Commission have voluntarily agreed to a reduction in their subsidy rates to a "comparatively nominal figure," the commission announced yesterday.

The commission said four other American flag operators had not yet agreed to reductions in their payments. It added that each of these operators had submitted information for further consideration by the commission.

The understanding with the eight companies, the commission said, was reached after a review of the foreign flag competition encountered and its current influence on the operations of American vessels.

When it announced April 31 that it would review subsidy payments to American companies "in the light of present shipping conditions," the commission said disadvantages normally experienced by American operators with respect to wages and other operating expenses in competition with other nationals do not appear, in many instances, to be present today.

"Surplus cargoes and heavy demand for space have resulted in substantially reduced competition," the commission said.

Subsidy payments in general amount to the difference in the cost of operation between United States and foreign-registered vessels. Under the agreement with the eight companies subsidy payments will be reduced to one per cent of the difference in cost for wages and subsistence of officers and crew. Payment had been for the full amount of the difference, in addition to subsidy payments for the difference in cost for maintenance, repairs or insurance which now will be eliminated entirely.

Subsidy payments have approximated $12,500,000 annually. As a result of the agreement, the commission said, they have been reduced "to a relatively small amount."

Companies which have agreed to subsidy reductions included:

Moore-McCormack Lines, Inc., which operates the American Republics Line from North Atlantic ports to the east coast of South America and the Pacific Republics Line from Pacific Coast ports to the east coast of South America.

American Export Lines, Inc., operating from North Atlantic ports to Lisbon and to India.

American South African Line, Inc., operating from North Atlantic ports to South and East Africa.

Lykes Bros. Steamship Co., Inc., operating from West Gulf ports to the Carribbean Sea and from Gulf ports to the Far East.

New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Co., operating from New York to Mexico.

Seas Shipping Co., Inc., operating from North Atlantic ports to South and East Africa.

United States Lines, operating the American Pioneer Line, from North Atlantic ports to Australia, New Zealand and the Far East, and the American France Line, operating from North Atlantic ports to Spanish-Atlantic ports.

These four companies, the Commission said, had not agreed to the reductions:

Grace Line Inc., American President Lines, Ltd., American Mail Line, Ltd., and Oceanic Steamship Co. (Matson).

Bloody Prints Were Dr. Joss', Court Is Told

By the Associated Press

Bath, Me., June 26.—A State police witness testified today that he had been able to identify only the fingerprints of Dr. Merrill E. Joss out of a number of "bloody" prints found on a kitchen door in the Richmond home where Dr. Luverne Harris Joss, 38, was slain March 27.

Her doctor-husband is on trial for the murder.

Lieut. Leon P. Shepard, State police criminal identification expert, was asked by Attorney General Frank I. Cowan:

"Of the bloody fingerprints, which were you able to identify?"

"Dr. Joss'," the policeman answered.

"Did you find anyone else's prints?"

"I did not."

Defense Counsel Ernest L. Goodspeed, apparently attempting to account for the prints, drew from State Police Capt. Joseph Young testimony that the 34-year-old defendant had told him of going through the kitchen to get a quilt in which to wrap the dying Mrs. Joss after he found her savagely beaten on their cellar floor.

While Lieut. Shepard testified, Mrs. Elizabeth Chapman Mayo, 32, whom the State charges is the "other woman" in the case, started forward from her seat in the rear of the crowded courtroom.

Goodspeed, cross-questioning Shepard, picked up a State exhibit—a rock found by police in the cellar—and asked if the policeman was prepared to say there was "human blood" on it.

"No," replied the witness.

"Did you find any hairs on the rock?"

"Dog hairs."

"No human hairs?" the lawyer asked—with considerable emphasis.

Fifty inches from the cellar floor, on a sand and limestone wall, Shepard said he found human and animal hairs (the Josses had a dog) and bits of gravel sticking to blood stains. But nowhere else on the walls, he replied to a defense question, was there any gravel.

$8784,300 Bid Low On Fort Howard Work

U.S. May Name Shipping Czar To End Chaos

By Charles E. Harner
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, June 26.—Reports spread through shipping circles today that the Washington Administration, annoyed by bickerings among the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission, was considering the appointment of an ocean shipping chief.

It would be his duty to coordinate transportation within the priorities demanded by the two armed services of the national defense materials requirements of the Office of Production Management and the needs of the British as represented by the Maritime Commission.

Ship operators, doing the biggest business in the history of the American merchant marine and moving every pound of cargo their vessels can hold, say there is extreme confusion as to what kinds of supplies they must carry and routes they must take.

"Individually," one operator explained, "we are efficient. Ships are moving at their maximum speeds and turning around at each end of voyages in minimum times.

"But there is a collective inefficiency which is shocking. There is a lot of duplication of effort, changing of orders and general lack of policy which is cutting down on what the merchant marine could really do."

For example, it was said that the new Navy bases under construction are served exclusively by Navy ships, while only Army ships serve the new Army bases. Private contractors often are delayed in their work by the various orders in which Army and Navy officials think priorities should be filled. On many occasions, one merchant ship—or an Army or naval vessel—sailing from a central point would be the most efficient way to supply jointly nearby Army and Navy needs.

"A czar over us could stop such nonsense," a shipper said.

It was suggested that the Bland bill, now in Congress, is intended to set up machinery for coordination of ship movements with national needs. It provides for a system of warrants without which an American flag ship would not be able to sail.

An operator could obtain a warrant for a ship only if it was carrying the kind of cargo the Government wanted, when and where the Government wanted it.

Ocean men are intensely interested in the Russo-German campaign, hoping the smashing of the Nazi-Communist peace means they can resume the highly profitable run to Vladivostok, previously blocked to prevent the transport of supplies to Germany by way of the Trans-Siberian Railway.

Two Stuffed Horses and a Mounted Llama Bring $32 at Auction

"Thirty-two dollars. Do I hear 33? 33? No? Then this lot goes for $32."

With those words, spoken by Auctioneer David Notes, Jacob Leitman, of Norfolk, Va., became the owner of a stuffed llama and two stuffed horses. Asked what he wanted with the moth-eaten castaways from the Smithsonian Museum, Leitman replied that he will put the horses in front of his office equipment store to attract the public and give the llama away.

The sale took place yesterday at the semiannual auction put on by the Procurement Division of the Treasury in a junk yard at Second Street and Virginia Avenue Southwest. Discarded Government property, ranging from electric erasers to an oil truck, vintage of 1931, was put on sale.

Bidders came from as far away as New York. The sole lady present was Mrs. Anna Salawitch, of Baltimore, who operates an auto parts company. As cagey a bidder as any of her male competitors, Mrs. Salawitch bid often, but bought only a few odd lots of scrap metal.

"I always bid 'em up," she explained after boosting the price of a rusting truck $50. "When they see me bidding, they think its good, so they follow. I like to see a fair price reached."

Competition over some items was close. A pile of 50 used desks, all of which appeared to be in good condition, sold for $300. An air-conditioning unit brought $30. One man purchased the heap of broken chairs for $350, and seemed delighted at the price.

Once, when a troop train, filled with waving, khaki-clad soldiers, passed the junkyard, the auction stopped, as bidders and officials waved and shouted back. Procurement officials announced the sale brought in more than $9,000.

Chicago Printers To End Walkout

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Composing room workers who left their jobs on three Chicago afternoon newspapers Wednesday because of a grievance over wage negotiations voted today to return to work.

A spokesman announced the votes had voted five to one at a mass meeting. The workers voted to return in accordance with instructions from the executive council of the International Typographical Union.
